FOP Holds Closed Strategy Session On Holiday Pay

Members of the Hoffman Estates Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) planned to have a closed-door strategy session last night to discuss what actions they might take if deductions for holiday pay are taken from their checks Friday.

The meeting was scheduled Monday after police learned that village officials announced that a clerical error had resulted in the officers being paid for working holidays instead of receiving compensatory time off. The error apparently has been made since November 1970.

The FOP has also learned that an administrative order governing holidays, vacation, sick leave and other benefits had never been officially approved by the village board. Village Manager George Longmeyer could not be reached to confirm this development.

"THERE IS NOTHING in writing about these benefits. We have no benefits, except the whims of the mayor from day to day," said an FOP spokesman.

The police group has singled out Hoffman Estates Mayor Frederick Downey as being anti-police since contract negotiations between the mayor and the police broke down in May. The FOP is the recognized bargaining agent for the police.

One FOP representative said that it appears the village wants the FOP to become a formal union, with lawyers and enter into a written contract with the village, rather than the informal arrangement that has existed in the past.

Representatives for the group have ruled out the possibility of strikes, work slowdowns or "blue flu," as a means of protesting the deductions.

A POLL OF police officers shows that only two of the 28 patrolmen and sergeants will not be affected by deductions. It is estimated that the officers will lose about $2,000 in wages.

The deductions will be made for policemen who worked either the Fourth of July or Memorial Day or both. Some men stand to lose as much as $120.

FOP representatives said they would not object to receiving time off instead of pay for holiday work in the future, but they think the deductions for days already worked is unfair.

'My Discipline Strict,' Chief O'Connell Declares

The complaint by a Hoffman Estates patrolman that his police chief is more stringent in departmental discipline than are heads of departments in other villages probably is true, said Chief John O'Connell yesterday.

"I probably am very rough. I don't have quite the mercy that some courts do," said O'Connell. But, he added, "I would say I probably am firm but I would like to think of myself as being fair. I never had anyone tell me personally they felt I was wrong, and never had anyone up to now ask for a hearing before the fire and police commission."

The patrolman complained that O'Connell has a set penalty for any man who is involved in an auto accident in a squad car, where he is thought to have been at fault. He loses five days pay or compensatory time due or is suspended five days. There should be a penalty of some kind, but it should not be so severe, and should be variable to suit the individual case, said the patrolman.

Other departments are not so stringent, said the patrolman.

O'CONNELL VERIFIED he generally observes a standard five-day penalty in auto accidents where it is believed the police employe contributed to the mishap. The assessment of fault is made from reports submitted by the officer and his superiors, and the man is given a chance to explain mitigating factors.

And, said O'Connell, the seriousness of the accident should not be a consideration, because the officer may have been "just lucky." Whether there was $5 damage or $500 damage, the accident "could have caused someone some serious injury," said the chief. "I have to consider this."

Although the patrolman did not blame O'Connell for the strict rules, suggesting the chief was under pressure from his superiors, O'Connell said the policy is his own.

"It is my decision. There is absolutely no pressure put on me," he said.

A check of other departments in the area indicates Hoffman Estates may have stronger discipline measures.

IN PALATINE, village policy for employes in all departments is that no penalties will be assigned except in cases of extreme neglect, or those serious enough to be brought before the village fire and police commission. Drunkenness on duty would be an example of extreme neglect, said Chief Robert R. Centner.

Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Schaumburg use a form of review board, in some cases with the accused patrolman selecting some of the members, and in others with the membership permanent. The boards review the accident and circumstances, and recommend action ranging from no penalty up to a five-day suspension or the equivalent. The chief, however, is not bound by the recommendation, and may use his own judgment if it conflicts with the board.

In each of these villages, the seriousness of the accident, amount of damages and type of call the patrolman was responding to are among review board considerations.

International Village

Some Say It's The Best

by MARILYN HEISER

Publicity seekers stage activities ranging from flagpole sitting to protest demonstrations to attract the media's attention. But Schaumburg's International Village has received nationwide publicity simply by being there.

That, in itself is newsworthy, according to articles about International Village in May in the New York Times, in June in Saturday Review, and in one planned for Newsweek.

Apartment living in the suburbs is a relatively new phenomenon, according to census statistics cited in the New York Times. Singles, especially, have been moving out of the center city, such as Chicago's Near North Side, and flocking to the unpolluted air, expanses of green, and easy living in the suburbs.

Amidst singles complexes springing up in suburban areas of the nation's major cities, International Village, with its 1,500 residents, 60 per cent of them single, stands out.

LINDA LYNCH, International Village's manager, said the complex does not have a public relations department. None of developer's Norman Ackenberg's complexes (there are International Villages in Lombard, Minneapolis, and one planned for Ft. Lauderdale) send out any promotional literature except upon request.

Located at Algonquin and Meacham roads, Schaumburg's International Village strikes the visitor as a transplanted European complex. Three-story buildings reminiscent of Swiss chalets and English country houses decorate the landscape.

St. Moritz, Heidelberg, Bordeaux, Devonshire — the European-named buildings with their chocolate brown trim against white, pink, or green stucco circle around well-groomed green areas.

The design of the buildings, while unusual, are actually a minor part of International Village's appeal. Mrs. Lynch stressed that the residents are out-going joiners, oriented toward physical activities. They came to the right place.

The facilities run the gambit from indoor and outdoor pools, sauna baths, jogging trails, and tennis courts to a lighted ice-skating pond, arts and craft room, indoor golf driving range, and basketball court.

Group activities are encouraged by a full-time social director, Mary Curran. Mrs. Lynch said, "International Village gets so much publicity because it's the best complex around. Others don't have a social director. And our full program, including yoga and ski clubs, intramural games, and holiday dances is the prima-

Springinsguth Road Ready In 10 Days

A new Springinsguth Road between Schaumburg and Bode roads will be ready for use within 10 days.

Tony Fosco, district engineer of the Cook County Highway Department, said the road will have a new base and asphalt surface and will be 24 feet wide for two lanes. Previously 18 feet wide, repair of the road is part of a general project of highway widenings and improvements in the area.

Ecology Unit Backs NMAD Pullout Plan

A two-pronged suggestion calling for withdrawal from Northwest Mosquito Abatement District with diversion of tax funds to a proposed village department of water management and mosquito control won the endorsement of Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee Tuesday.

The proposal, calling for an immediate investigation of the legal aspects of Schaumburg's secession from NMAD and authorization of a study to determine feasibility of establishing a local control unit, was made by CEC member Gary Crawford.

It will be transmitted to the village board next week by Trustee Peter Justen who serves as CEC liaison representative.

THE IDEA stemmed from recent abortive attempts to have NMAD temporarily resume spray control in Schaumburg due to emergency conditions.

Last year Schaumburg, along with Palatine, banned use of malathion and other chemicals considered toxic in NMAD's program within the villages' municipal limits.

That move resulted in NMAD initiated court action now pending with both villages.

Schaumburg's ordinance does not prohibit an NMAD program but will not allow use of the toxic insecticides.

Presently NMAD refuses to re-enter Schaumburg because the village will not recognize the district as a licensed exterminator.

MEANWHILE Levitt & Sons, developers of what is believed to be the hardest hit area in the village, has privately contracted with Clarke Outdoor Spraying Co., La Grange, to fog that subdivision.

The independent contractor has agreed to use pyrethium, a chemical acceptable to the village.

Homeowners association members in the Churchill subdivision of Schaumburg have also contracted with the independent exterminator and will pay for services on an independent basis.

St. Hubert's Plans Door-To-Door Census

A door-to-door census for the new mission community of St. Hubert's Catholic Church, Schaumburg, will be conducted Saturday and Sunday.

St. Hubert's West will serve an area from Schaumburg Road to the Northwest Tollway and from Barrington Road on the west to Hilldale Drive on the east.

The new faith community includes the developments of Sheffield Parks East and West, Sheffield Towne, Sheffield Manor, Barrington Square, Moon Lake, Barrington Lake Apartments, Barrington Square Condominiums, Prairie Ridge, Interlude, Sheffield Village and Hilldale Village Apartments.

Father George Kane, resident priest of the community, said that a volunteer force of men and women will direct the survey towards Catholics in the area. The project is part of an effort to positively identify Catholics, discover their needs, and to gain an understanding of the community as a whole.

Engineer Calls It 'Uneconomical'

NIPC Official Raps Lake Water Plan

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The recent allocation of Lake Michigan water to Northwest suburban communities was criticized by an official of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) yesterday.

Joseph A. Smedile, NIPC chief engineer, said the allocation of Lake Michigan water to the DAMP commission and Tree Towns "has in effect preempted planning" of the use of the water supply.

Smedile, speaking at a meeting of NIPC's planning committee in Chicago, said the proposal that DAMP and Tree Towns pump water from a site in Glencoe is "a very, very uneconomical way of handling water."

The Illinois Department of Transportation, late in July, gave DAMP approval to pump 34.8 cubic feet per second of the lake water through a pipeline to the area in 1975. Tree Towns was given an initial allocation of 56 cubic feet per second. DAMP's allocation would go to 42.5 cubic feet in 1980, and Tree Town's to 70.8.

SMEDILE CRITICIZED suburban communities for "leapfrogging" over their neighboring towns to connect to Lake Michigan water supplies. He said the DAMP and Tree Towns allocations are a classic example of the state's preemption of planning authority.

Alternative means of bringing Lake Michigan water to the Northwest suburbs already exist, Smedile said.

The City of Chicago has the authority to sell water from the lake at its cost in the Cook County area served by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), he said.

Moreover, the city can sell water to communities as far as 35 miles from Chicago. Under both arrangements the city would bring the water to its boundary line and the suburban municipalities would have to pay the cost of transporting it from the city boundary to their communities, Smedile said.

Allocation of the water by the state on a basis of individual communities works against regional plans, he said.

He told the planning committee that NIPC Executive Director Matthew L. Rockwell has objected to state planning officials about the allocation of the water.

SMEDILE SAID the water allocated to DAMP, Tree Towns and other communities is in effect being subtracted by the state from the MSD's allocation of water.

The theory is that the MSD will use less water because of improved sewage treatment programs, which will mean less water will be needed to dilute the effluence from the sewage treatment plants.

In actuality, however, he said, the MSD will need time to upgrade streams and the amount of water needed for effluent dilution will not decrease for some time.

Smedile made his comments after telling the planning committee that a regional water supply plan will be prepared by NIPC during this fiscal year.

ry attraction here."

The physical layout and active social program of International Village evokes the atmosphere of a well-manicured country club crossed with a swinging college campus.

JUDGING FROM resident response, it's a product that meets a demand.

Tom Conlon, up until this summer a teacher at Rolling Meadows High School, has been happily living at International Village for a year.

"It's a different way of life than living in Chicago. The people here are friendly. They're not afraid of each other. International Village has so much to offer — it's the best-designed complex around."

Most of the residents heard of the complex from others living there or noticed its unusual styling as they drove past. They do not seem surprised that the complex has gotten so much publicity.

Julie Keith, who has been living in International Village for six months, felt there weren't very many complexes oriented toward single people.

Mike Schubert, a salesman, said the "concept of compactness, with so many apartments and facilities together in one place, is unique."

Linda Mast, a stewardess for United Air Lines, and Diane Brooks, a teacher in Hoffman Estates, said that the people at International Village were "unbelievably friendly and ciose." They couldn't believe that everyone out here says hello to you."

There was some dissension about the good life at International Village. Some felt it was too far from the city and the social and cultural activities there.

But that was a minority complaint. The grapevine has passed the good word about International Village.

And the word has spread across the country.

A SKI CLUB member grimaces as he gets hit by a soggy sponge. The sponge toss was one game at a carnival for Little City School for the handicaped in Palatine, by the International Ski Club, at International Village last Sunday.

John Carroll Retiring From Senate

by BOB LAHEY

Sen. John W. (Bill) Carroll, R-Park Ridge, yesterday announced his withdrawal as a candidate for reelection to the Illinois Senate.

Carroll cited health problems as the cause of his retirement from state government after 20 years. He served four years as administrative assistant to Lt. Gov. John W. Chapman (under Gov. William G. Stratton) before being elected to the state House of Representatives in 1956. He served 12 years in the House before being elected to the Senate in 1968.

Names of state representatives Robert S. Juckett of Park Ridge and Eugene F. Schlickman of Arlington Heights, both seeking reelection to the House in Carroll's district, along with Niles Township Republican Committeeman John Nimrod, were immediately put forth by other committeemen as possible replacements for Carroll.

John Carroll

Both Nimrod and Schlickman yesterday expressed interest in running for Carroll's seat. Juckett could not be reached for comment.

NIMROD NOTED THAT he had been interested previously in running for the Legislature, but withheld his candidacy in favor of the three Republican incumbents, Juckett, Schlickman, and Carroll.

Township committeemen from the four townships in the newly formed 4th Legislative District have authority to select a replacement candidate. They include Nimrod, Richard A. Cowen of Arlington Heights (Wheeling Township), Floyd T. Fulle of Des Plaines (Maine Township) and William T. Bringham of Wilmette (Northfield Township).

According to law, each committeeman will have votes in the selection of a candidate according to the Republican strength of the portion of his township which lies within the legislative district.

(Fulle noted that the law leaves some question over whether the weighted vote is determined by the number of precincts in each committeeman's jurisdiction, or the number of votes cast in the last election. Based on number of precincts, Fulle's vote would constitute a majority; on voter turnout, Fulle and Cowen would control the vote.

CARROLL, PUBLISHER of a chain of weekly newspapers, said he will continue his newspaper business and promised to remain active in the campaign on behalf of President Nixon, Gov. Ogilvie and the entire Republican ticket. He will complete his term in office, returning to Springfield when the legislature convenes in November.

"Health problems which I am told will be aggravated by the hectic pace of legislative responsibility," were the reason for his retirement, Carroll said.

He added, "It is impossible for me to adequately express my sincere gratitude to all who have worked on my behalf and aided me through these many years."

The Democratic candidate for Carroll's seat, Thomas W. Flynn of Niles, was vacationing yesterday and could not be reached. He apparently was uninformed of Carroll's decision, but a campaign aide expressed surprise at the incumbent's withdrawal.

James Puccio of Niles, Flynn's campaign manager, said Carroll's withdrawal "can't do anything but help Tom" in the race.

Nimrod, however, said that the newly formed 4th District remains attuned to Carroll's political philosophy — he is considered a firm conservative — and said that any well-known Republican of similar philosophy should be easily elected in the district.

A two-day arts and craft fair will be held at the Trade Winds Shopping Center, 1550 W. Irving Park Rd., Hanover Park, this Saturday and Sunday.

A special feature of the show will be exhibits by resourceful craftsmen who have utilized throw-away items to produce objects of art.

Artists and craftsmen will be on hand to sell their wares and demonstrate their skill. All exhibitors are welcome. Call Harper Gallery, MU 4-1173, for more information.

Centex Park Subdivision Approved

The Schaumburg Plans Commission Tuesday approved the subdivision of a portion of the Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park bounded by Rodenburg Road and Wright Boulevard on the east and west, and Lunt Avenue and Morse Avenue on the north and south.

The commission also gave final approval to an amended unit of Lancer Corp.'s subdivision, Lancer Park. The amended unit is west of Summit Drive.

Lancer increased the size of the corner lots in the 18-lot unit. Previously the commission felt the setbacks from the street were too small.

The board also discussed the future operations and goals of the commission. Ray McArthur, the new chairman, said beginning with the next meeting, Sept. 5, the board will have an agenda giving advance notice of new business.

ALL PETITIONERS who bring forth plans for approval will have to submit the plans the Friday prior to the board's monthly Tuesday meeting.

McArthur also said John Coste, administrative assistant to the mayor, promised the board will have an engineer on hand to give technical assistance if a large development comes before the commission for approval.

The possible merger of the plans commission and the zoning board of appeals was also discussed. McArthur said the merger is an eventuality for the future.

H. J. Rosenberg, a commission member, said the zoning board is presently doing the bulk of the planning in Schaumburg. He said the plans commission should relieve the zoning board of some of the heavy burden it is now carrying.

To implement cooperation between the two boards, McArthur said a member of the plans commission will be appointed to the zoning board as soon as there is an opening. Russell Parker, chairman of the zoning board, was recently appointed a permanent member of the plans commission.

29 In Schaumburg Lack Auto Stickers

A total of 29 Schaumburg residents had not, as of July 24, purchased vehicle stickers in the village, according to a report issued last week by the village clerk.

In early May, the clerk's office began cross-checking vehicle sticker files with water department records and records for subdivisions not in the water system — Lexington Fields, Meadow Knolls and Pleasant Acres.

Notices were sent to 473 residents who had not registered their cars, at a total cost of $37.84. Stickers were purchased by 356 persons for a total collection since May 23 of $2,858.

Those who have not complied with the regulation may be fined $10 by the violations officer if the car is found without a sticker.

Village Board Accepts Weathersfield Upgrading

Weathersfield subdivision public improvements in the vicinity of Robert Frost Junior High School, Wise Road, were accepted by the Schaumburg Village Board last week.

The improvements include streets, sidewalks, sewers and water mains installed during construction by Campanelli Builders, who developed the subdivision. As with all public improvements installed by developers, the village has a one-year guarantee.

But another improvement, a sewage lift station erected at the proposed Salem Drive extension south of Golf Road by Hoffman-Rosner Construction Co., was temporarily refused by the village. The lift station is not yet in operation, and has only been tested briefly. The board suggested delaying acceptance until Jan. 1, 1973, when it will be in use. The year's guarantee will not start until the date of acceptance.

APPROVED BY the board was a special assessment for installation of sewer and water mains along parts of Golf and Roselle roads for commercial structures. Total cost of the installations is estimated at $148,438.29. The village will pay $33,937.99 for the public benefit of the sewer and water mains, while the users will be assessed for the remaining $114,500.30.

Prior to Tuesday's board meeting, the trustees, mayor and village engineer met as the board of local improvements. During that session, Village Atty. Jack Siegel explained special assessment procedures.

First BOLI must determine the need for improvements, and hold a public hearing, said Siegel. It then must recommend village board action, and the village board must move on the recommendation. These steps were taken Tuesday.

The ordinance then is filed in Cook County Circuit Court, where a judge holds a second hearing. Property owners are notified in advance of the court date and the estimated amount they are to be assessed. They have an opportunity to object to the assessment then, as well as at the BOLI hearing.

If the assessment is approved, property owners have the choice of paying their full share after receiving their first bill, saving interest charges, or spreading their payments over a 10-year period.

The village finances the improvements by issuing special assessment bonds to the contractor, who then can sell them. The bonds are tax exempt and carry 7 per cent interest rates.

THE CURRENT PLAN is for 10-inch sewer mains and 12-inch water mains starting in front of Roselle Dodge, Golf Road, extending east to the Arco Gas Station at the Roselle Road intersection, behind the service station property and back to Roselle Road, and north another 900 feet. They then will connect with existing mains. Property owners will have to pay for connections from their property lines to their buildings.

Also approved by the board were variations for a sideyard reduction at 1420 Colby Ln., and for a fence at 1409 Bladon Rd.

Approved on recommendation from the plans commission were plans for quadrominium development by Levitt and Son at Sheffield Manor, subdivision of a number of large lots, an industrial lot size at Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and a lot size for an Annen & Busse Realty office across from Town Square Shopping Center.

Grocery Chains, Butchers Negotiate

After-6 Meat Buying Unlikely

by BARRY SIGALE

It may be possible soon to buy fresh, red meat after 6 p.m. at your neighborhood grocer because of contract talks being held by representatives of the butcher's union and officials of several major grocery chains.

But it remains to be seen whether local leaders of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America will approve such a move, one they have consistently opposed in the past.

Contract negotiations are in the "getting started" stages. A two-year contract between the butcher's union and the grocery chains expires Oct. 1 and intensive talks are expected to begin later this month.

And one of the major questions on the minds of many suburban shoppers — whether they will continue to be inconvenienced by not being able to buy meat at the grocery store when they want to — may be answered.

IT IS NOT clear whether "very rebellious" and "pretty aggravated" customers — as described by one suburban food store chain manager — finally will be afforded the opportunity to buy meat after 6 p.m. or if he will continue to return to the store at another time, usually on a crowded Saturday afternoon.

What has made some shoppers mad was enforced by a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1962. An antitrust suit was filed then by Jewel Food Stores against the butcher's union, charging that the union should not be able to control its own hours and that of the sale of meat as a legal labor objective.

The Supreme Court ruled in favor of the union and it has stayed that way ever since. You can't buy fresh meat after 6 p.m. or on Sundays in grocery stores in Cook and Lake counties. The rule is not universal, as in some other parts of the state extended meat-purchasing hours are permitted.

Since that ruling, according to a chain store spokesman, there have been attempts to get the union to change the contract to reflect the needs of a changing society which has demanded more services and better quality.

"It has always been an employers' request but it (a change in position by the union) hasn't been available," the spokesman said. "It hasn't been granted. It has been, though, a perennial topic of discussion."

ACCORDING TO a spokesman at union headquarters in downtown Chicago, it is the chain-store owners who never before have been able to agree among themselves as to what to pay butchers and how zo determine their hours, and that this has been one of the stumbling blocks to changing things.

The spokesman also said that the union has become increasingly effective in representing its members, especially in past years when they were able to reduce the average workday from 12 to 10 to 8 hours.

The subject of buying fresh, red meat came into sharper focus recently with the change in store hours of grocery chains. Now there is the midnight Jewel, the Dominick's that's open until midnight and beyond and such chains as 7-Eleven, which have had later hours for years.

Feeling the pressure of other chain stores responding to increased hours with increased hours of their own, some 7-Eleven stores now are open 24 hours a day, all year long, excluding Christmas, although some stores even have picked up on their option and have opened on this religious holiday.

ACCORDING TO a survey of Northwest suburban grocery stores, the average shopper who takes advantage of longer store hours does so because he runs out of small grocery items or in an emergency needs some kind of aspirin or medicine.

These longer hours, according to the survey, show that the purchase of fast service items leads in volume of what is bought during the new, later hours. The average shopper buys most of his week's supply of staples during the day. Late at night he buys cigarettes, milk, bread, candies and snack foods.

But it's the problem of not being able to buy fresh meat when they want to that upsets shoppers. According to a chain store manager:

"Customers have been very rebellious when they learn they cannot buy (fresh meat) after 6 p.m. They get pretty aggravated. In fact, they've put me on the spot many times, wanting these items. People tell me they have the money, they've worked for it and they want to spend it. I'd like the business but there's nothing I can do about it."

BUYING FRESH, RED MEAT from butchers in major grocery store chains will be deliberated when contract talks progress between the butcher's union and representatives of the grocery chains. But as of now, it's no meat after 6 p.m., and never on Sunday.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

Thoughts at random:

The gubernatorial campaign already has degenerated into a name-calling contest, with both Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Democratic challenger Daniel Walker spending most of their efforts making the other out to be a liar.

With more than three months left in the campaign, it seems there is nowhere to go from here but downhill.

Personally, I would rather see some bedrock proposals for financing of schools, long-range solutions to the mass transit mess, meaningful tax reform, and some other issues, rather than arguments over who told the biggest lie about funds for stocking fish ponds.

I USED TO READ Jack Anderson's column despite the fact that his tiresome insistence that he had secret documents to support everything he revealed in print.

I don't read Anderson anymore. His fabricated tale about Sen. Thomas Eagleton and drunken driving charges make it a waste of time.

"Fabricated" is a nasty word to use in reference to a story by a brother journalist, but after a lot of hemming and hawing, Anderson finally has come around to admitting that he bought an unsubstantiated charge from Eagleton adversaries and put it forth as fact.

If he had a good city editor, Anderson might well have been fired for what he did. He does, however, have editors. The people that pay him for publishing his column could "fire" him from their own papers. If his list of clients is not sharply reduced, newspaper publishers who carry his column will leave themselves open to questions of credibility.

ANYBODY WHO PREDICTS anything about Democratic politics in this election year has got to be some kind of an idiot. This idiot would speculate that Lawrence O'Brien is the logical choice to replace Eagleton as George McGovern's candidate for Vice President.

If, as reported, Eagleton was chosen chiefly to act as a healer between the old guard of the party and the "new politics" element, O'Brien looks like a likely replacement.

With close ties to the old-timers in the party, O'Brien impressed many of the newcomers to the national convention with his even-handed conduct of the convention as chairman.

O'Brien, too, would have less to lose than some of the other possibilities being bandied about, should the Democratic tickets be defeated.

With the current outlook for the McGovern ticket in November, it is unlikely that any "names" in Democratic politics with reasonable prospects for higher office in the future will want to risk their prestige. Sen. Adlai Stevenson demonstrated that with his quick removal of his name from consideration.

6 Groups Slated For Hearings

Six groups are scheduled to testify today in continued hearings on real property tax classification in the Cook County Board chambers.

The hearings, being conducted by Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton's office, are to determine how various types of real estate in the county will be classified for taxation purposes under a provision of the new Illinois Constitution.

Representatives of the State Street Council and a University of Wisconsin professor representing the Architects' Committee for Site Value Taxation will testify in the session beginning at 10 a.m.

This afternoon, the hearings will include testimony from representatives of the South Side Condominium and Cooperative Association, the Housing Cooperatives in Chicago and the 360 Lake Shore Drive Trust.

State Rep. Arthur L. Berman, D-Chicago, also will testify in the afternoon session of the hearings.

One Day After Disclosure

University Officials Finally File

by IRA TEINOWITZ
Chamberlain-Loftus News
Special to the Herald

SPRINGFIELD — Three top state university officials whose pay has been held up for failure to file ethics statements Monday filed the statements, one working day after the story was disclosed.

James B. Holderman, $45,000-a-year executive director of the Board of Higher Education; David S. Derge, $50,000-a-year president of Southern Illinois University, and Richard Nelson, $40,500-a-year president of Northern Illinois University, filed their statements almost exactly one month after the law says they were to file.

State Auditor Michael Howlett has asked Atty. Gen. William J. Scott whether the three can be paid for the month in light of a provision of the new state constitution saying failure of a state official to file "shall result in ineligibility for or forfeiture of office."

Howlett said he has no intention of paying the officials until he learns whether they can be paid legally and whether they must be docked for July.

THE THREE STATEMENTS reveal little about the officials. Holderman included a letter with his saying it was a duplicate of one he had sent to the office more than a month ago. Also included was a sworn affidavit from his secretary saying that she had sent in the statement to the office of the Secretary of State before the deadline. On the statement, Holderman said he had no outside interests separate from his job.

Nelson, who had been unavailable for comment last week, also listed no conflicts in his interest statement. Though Nelson continued to refuse to return calls, a university spokesman said that Nelson was out of town when the forms came in late June or early July and that Nelson was unsure whether he should list the university lobbyist on his form and wanted to talk to the lobbyist before filling it out.

Derge listed a political science consulting firm he used to work with as a possible conflict of interest. The firm, Behavioral Research Associates of Bloomington, Indiana was dissolved Jan. 1, he said.

Secretary of State John Lewis began distributing forms March 1.

If Scott rules that the state auditor cannot pay officials not filing ethics statements, the effect could also extend to local officials.

Memories Of McGovern The Bomber Pilot

by JAMES A. KIDNEY

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Thoughts of the presidency were far from 22-year-old George McGovern's mind on Dec. 20, 1944. One engine of his B-24 bomber was on fire and he had to land the craft and crew safely.

Ralph C. "Bill" Rounds recalls the incident vividly. He sat next to McGovern in the cockpit as his copilot. McGovern was "the old man." Rounds was 21.

Now a cattle broker in Wichita, Rounds kept a diary of his war years. For that date it says:

"We flew the entire crew except Sam Adams, navigator. It was to be my seventh mission. Target: Brux, Germany, oil installation.

"We got up past Lake Belaton and No. 2 and No. 3 manifold pressure dropped. We could not keep up with the formation. We peeled off at 23,400 feet and dropped to 18,000 heading south back toward the base in Italy.

"All at once, No. 3 engine began throwing oil and smoking badly. One minute later, she began vibrating violently. We tried to feather it, but it wouldn't. It just kept windmilling.

"The plane lost altitude rapidly, and No. 3 was hitting 2,800 rpm — a runaway prop. The engine burst into flames around the turbo charger. We slowed down to 180 indicated, and headed for a landing strip on Vis, an island off the coast of Yugoslavia. It was partisan-held territory.

"We got down okay, and luckily caught a ride to the base by way of a transient C-47."

WHAT IS NOT in the diary Ralph Rounds is willing to tell, and he has nothing but praise for his pilot.

Rounds, who McGovern called "Bill" and the rest of the crew called "Rounder," lived with his pilot from October, 1944 to July, 1945 in a tent at Cerignola, Italy.

"George was always a mature and rather precise sort of guy, not much for monkey business, but very compassionate for his crew and very friendly," Rounds recalled in an interview. "I was 21 at the time, and more like a grown kid. But George was a mature guy right from the start. He was a true sort of big brother to the crew.

"I looked up to George, and look up to him now. In those days he had a lot of cool savvy."

McGOVERN IN those days "was like a professor you like," Rounds said. "He was working to be a teacher, and that's the kind of guy he was. He was well-read, studious and intellectual, but he could handle an airplane."

Rounds said he did not want to give an impression that McGovern was always serious. He liked a good time as well as anyone.

"HE WAS MARRIED to that cute little Eleanor, a dandy gal. George constantly wrote his wife, and referred to his happy homelife. But, being a glamorous pilot and so forth, George wasn't one not to have a little wine and get right with it. He would not back off from a good party, but he never drank to excess. You could count on him to wake up with a clear head, which was more than you could sometimes say for me."

$150,000 Structure To Be Built In Long Grove

Jewish Congregation Plans Area Synagogue

A Jewish congregation described as "young and middle-of-the-road" is building a synagogue north of Buffalo Grove, in Long Grove.

Rabbi Mordecai Rosen of Congregation Beth Judea describes his congregation as evenly divided between reform and conservative members.

"We are a congregation of young Jewish families, and we hope to become the central institution of the local Jewish community," he said.

The new synagogue, which is to be built on Rte. 83 north of Long Grove Road, will cost about $150,000, including land, Rosen said. The first phase is to be completed within a year. A second phase is included in the plans by architect Phil Kupritz.

The congregation presently meets in Kingswood Methodist Church. School classes are in Henry Wadsworth Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove.

ROSEN said the congregation presently has about 125 families, but he expects at least 200 by the end of the year. "I very strongly hope to put an upper limit on membership — 250 or 275 families," Rosen said. "I want to always be able to greet any member by name."

"If a congregation is too large, the rabbi becomes a religious administrator, and I don't want it to become so big I'd have to give up my educational work," he said.

Rosen has a background as a Jewish educator. He was head consultant for all conservative schools of the greater Chicago area, for the Chicago Board of Jewish Education.

He has a bachelor's degree from Yeshiva University of New York, a master's degree in education from Hunter College, New York City, and hopes to complete work on his doctorate in education at Loyola University next year. He was ordained in 1957.

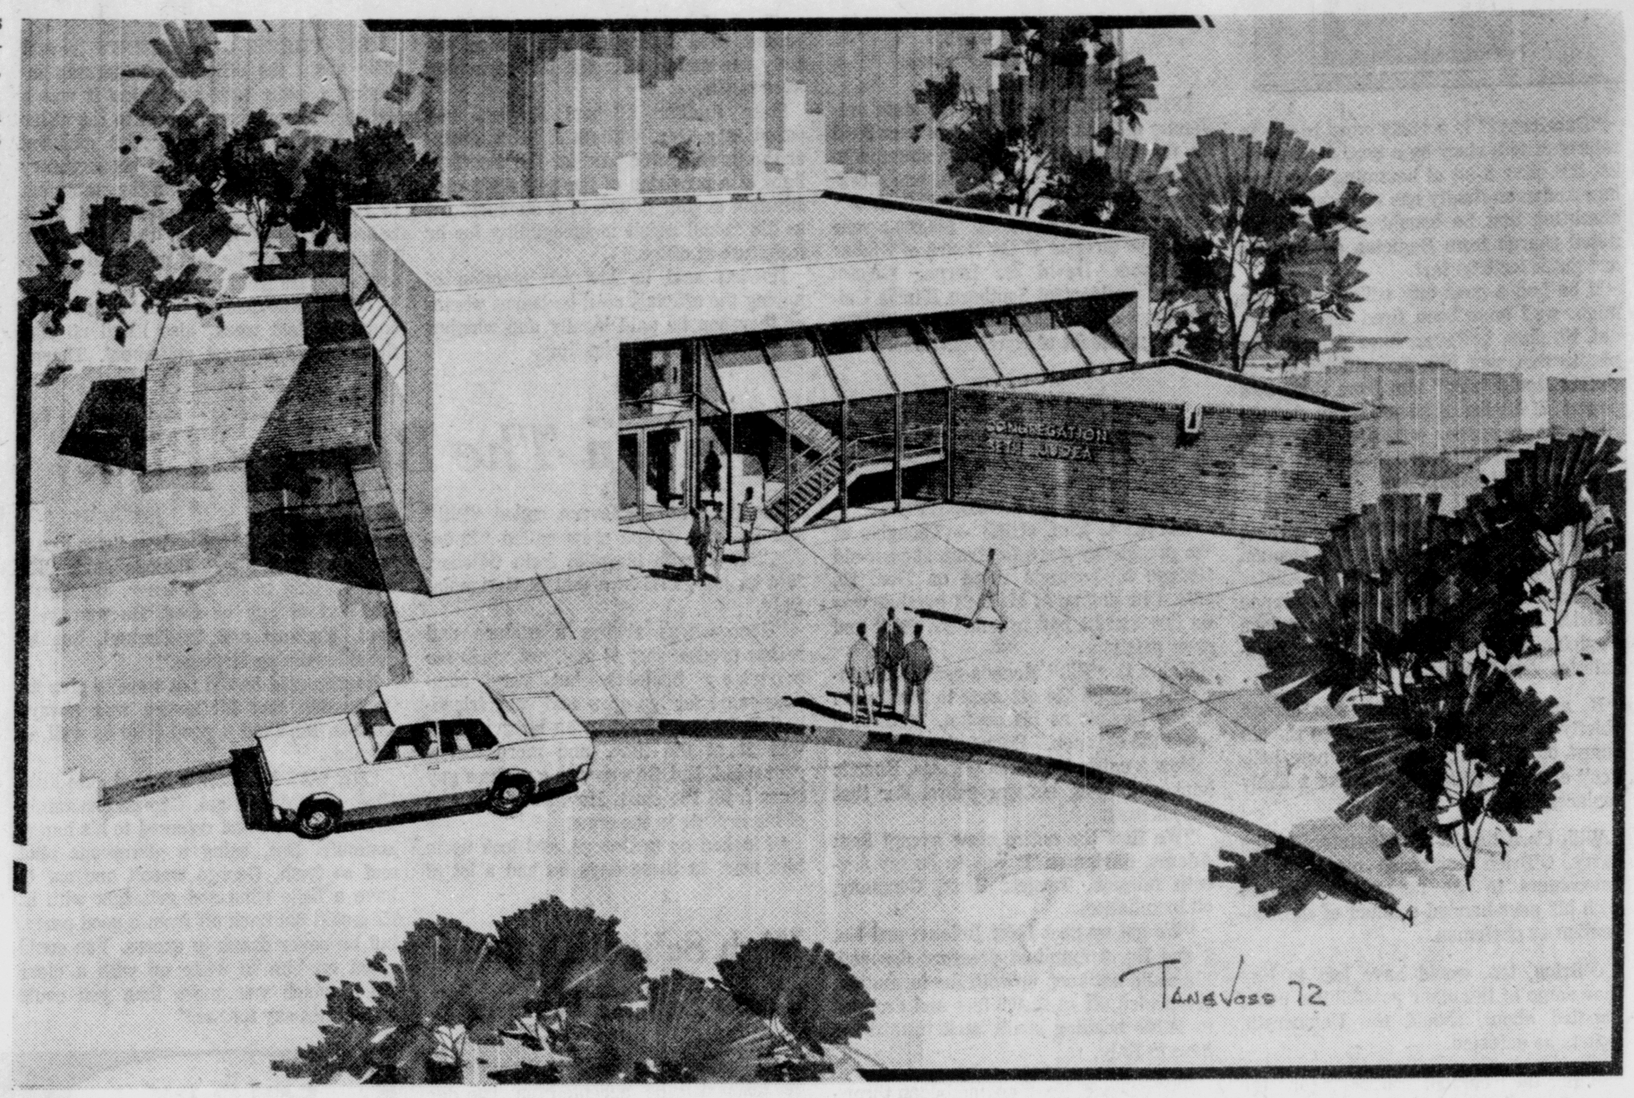
WITH HIS background, Rosen will direct all Hebrew classes at the congregation, saving the cost of an additional teacher.

"I encourage everyone, including children, to call me by my first name, to dispel the mystic aura that tends to settle on a rabbi — an aura that tends to separate the clergy from the congregation," Rosen said.

He said every effort will be made to involve every Jewish family caring to participate in the congregation, even if the family is only primarily interested in the social activities.

If too many families are attracted, Rosen said, "in a few years we might ask a group to establish its own small congregation, using our facilities."

He explained that Congregation Beth Judea itself was started four years ago by about four interested families who wanted a local congregation.



THE NEW SYNAGOGUE for Congregation Beth Judea will be built on a wooded lot on Rte. 83 north of Buffalo Grove. The congregation will serve a large portion of the Northwest suburbs. Included in the building are classrooms, and the structure can be expanded in the future. Construction has not yet begun, but the building is expected to be completed within a year.

Printers Ratify 2-Year Contract, Go Back To Work

Members of Chicago Typographical Union Local 16 have ended their four-week-old strike by ratifying a contract offer by the Franklin Association.

Assistant organizer of the union, Ed Poremba, said yesterday union leaders are satisfied with the agreement, which was approved Sunday by a vote of 608 to 105.

Included in the new two-year contract is an $11-per-week wage increase for journeymen printers retroactive to June 7, the day after the old two-year contract expired, an additional $2-per-week increase beginning Dec. 7 and a final $12-per-week increase beginning June 7, 1973.

The first increase brings the journeyman printer's scale to $240 for a 35-hour week, the second increase would bring him to $242 per 35-hour week and the third increase would bring him to $254 per 35 hours.

According to Poremba, several other benefits were agreed upon in the new contract, including increases in the pension, education and health and welfare funds.

The union first went on strike July 5 against the Franklin Association, a group made up of employers of commercial printing companies, which handles most job printing contracts in the Chicago metropolitan area. Newspaper printers are not members of the union and were not affected by the strike.

Striking journeymen printers received $143 a week in strike benefits.

It's No Ordinary Job

Chairman Shakes Up Racing World

CHICAGO (UPI) — Alexander MacArthur has been an investigator off and on since World War II, but he says that prior experience "was just a church social" compared with his current job as chairman of the Illinois Racing Board.

In the three years since Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie appointed him to preside over the state's racetracks, he and other investigators have uncovered scandals, including the Kerner indictment, which shook the foundations of Illinois racing.

MacArthur still is digging into the dark corners of the racing business and, while he won't go into details, he has a 24-hour police guard at his home. In a recent interview, he described his latest activities this way:

"THIS INVESTIGATION has brought into observance some people who must have been born in Damon Runyon's basement, and the criminals among them are smarter than hell."

That's fairly typical of MacArthur's colorful style of speech, a trait perhaps gleaned from his late uncle, playwright Charles MacArthur, husband of actress Helen Hayes.

The 50-year-old cattle farmer also has a mischievous sense of humor which he frequently displays at Illinois Racing Board meetings, calling horses "livestock," for example, and smiling when horsemen wince at the word.

MacArthur makes his living fattening cattle on the 1,500-acre MacArthur farm in Algonquin, a McHenry County Community beyond the Chicago suburbs. He receives no salary as racing board chairman.

Alexander MacArthur

HE WAS A World War II bomber pilot and prisoner of war in Germany, becoming an insurance investigator after the war and a detective in the Cook County sheriff's office when Ogilvie was sheriff.

"I thought I learned something about the big leagues in the sherriff's office," he says. "But that was just batting practice . Everything else was just a church social compared to this."

MacArthur is also a proud man and the realization that some trackmen would like to see Illinois racing return to the free and easy ways of the 1950s and 1960s infuriates him.

"You're just waiting for pussy's tail to go out the door so you can play again," he recently told an adversary. "But I've got news for you. Pussy's going to lay down and have kittens — right in front of your mice."

MaCARTHUR believes however, that most people in racing share his desire to clean it up, and he says, "Information has been coming out of the woodwork. People think we're for real."

Ogilvie has been a believer ever since he met MacArthur in the 1950s when MacArthur was doing advance work for Richard Nixon's presidential campaign.

They became friends, and when Ogilvie was elected sheriff in 1962, he tapped MacArthur as one of his investigators. When he became governor in 1969, Ogilvie asked MacArthur to look into the Illinois State Fair. Shortly thereafter, a scandal broke that resulted in several indictments and led to the removal of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Richard Napolitano from the bench.

THAT JOB COMPLETED, Ogilvie asked MacArthur to take over the Illinois racing board. "I want somebody I know I can trust, not that someone says I can trust."

MacArthur balked, protesting he did his gambling planting corn and raising cows, and had been to the racetrack only twice in his life. Ogilvie countered by showing MacArthur statistics on how racing profits fund agricultural projects like the 4-H Club.

"4-H kids absolutely get right to me," MacArthur says. "They're so different from what I see around. They're still schooled in industry, diligence and hard work."

So he took the job, and now he grumbles only half jokingly, "I wish I'd had lockjaw when I said yes."

The fun started immediately. As soon as his appointment was announced, MacArthur says, seven well-known persons, including public officials, tried to persuade him to dine with Mrs. Marjorie Everett, then owner of Arlington Park and Washington Park racetracks and probably key witness against Kerner in the racetrack stock scandal case.

"I told them I had to plant corn," MacArthur says.

That was just the beginning.

HE NOTICED, when track owners applied for race dates, they provided not the required list of stockholders, but "all kinds of strange lists of nominees and trusts."

He started asking questions at meetings, frequently banging his gavel, making pointed remarks and insisting that startled track owners make phone calls — right then — to get the names of stockholders.

By 1970, he had a law requiring full disclosure of all racetrack stockholders, although it took almost two years after the Paul Powell "shoebox scandal" broke to get a complete list. One block of stock at Maywood Park is still under secret ownership.

Because he spent "so damn much time investigating," MacArthur says, he developed a rather one-sided view of racing people, and he likens some of them to "Japanese ambassadors who bow and scrape at you and have little Pearl Harbors in their pockets."

His own chief weapon is the power to withhold racing dates, the life blood of a racetrack, and to call in detectives when he senses something is amiss.

But he tires of the fight at times noting, "these horse people get a little vicious when they got mad," and he obviously worries about his wife, whom he married in 1964 with Ogilvie as best man, their two preschoolers and his wife's teenage daughter by a previous marriage.

Weighing the security problems and the amount of time the racing board job requires against the satisfactions of having a hand in cleaning up Illinois racing, MacArthur says he still has not decided whether he'll accept another term in the post if Ogilvie asks him to stay on this fall.

'. . . This investigation has brought into observance some people who must have been born in Damon Runyon's basement, and the criminals among them are smarter than hell. . .'

"Maybe I am going to qualify for the unlucky expert category. It seems I am already an unlucky student," complained the student.

"West had to get off to a lead of ace and another heart. I drew trumps; led a diamond to dummy's king and lost the diamond finesse. West led back a diamond and when the suit failed to break I was still able to lead a club to my king only to have West produce the ace. Wasn't I better than a four to one favorite to make my contract?"

"You were on your line of play" replied the professor. "You had a certainty with the correct line."

The professor was right as always. After drawing trumps the student should have led a low diamond from dummy and played his eight spot. This might cost him an overtrick but at the same time it would have insured his contract.

West would have won the trick with the 10 or nine. Should he lead a club, South would score his king. Should he lead a heart the student would ruff in dummy and discard his four of clubs, and should he lead back a diamond the student would win with his jack; cash his ace; enter dummy with a trump and discard a club on the king of diamonds.

Hanrahan Trial Special Hearing

Panther Attorney Mum On Statement

CHICAGO (UPI) — Black Panther attorney Donald Stang Wednesday defied a court order and refused to answer questions concerning a statement allegedly made by his client, Panther Louis Truelock, in the aftermath of a police raid in which two Panthers were slain.

Thomas Sullivan, a defense attorney in the trial of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan and 13 co-defendants, asked Stang about 50 questions trying to determine the authenticity of the statement.

To each question, Stang replied: "I decline to answer on the basis of the lawyer-client privilege."

The lawyer persisted in his refusal despite a ruling by Circuit Court Judge Philip J. Romiti that the Truelock statement was not a confidential communication between attorney and client because it was allegedly made in the presence of other persons.

STANG'S REFUSAL to testify occurred on the fifth day of a special hearing that has interrupted the trial of Hanrahan and his co-defendants on charges that they conspired to obstruct justice in the investigation of the police raid.

The hearing is being conducted to determine the authenticity of four statements in which Black Panthers allegedly admitted firing shots and handling weapons during the Dec. 4, 1969 raid in which Panther leaders Mark Clark and Fred Hampton were killed.

The statements contradict testimony that Panther survivors of the raid gave to the grand jury that indicted Hanrahan. Hanrahan's attorneys have indicated they believe the Panthers perjured themselves and say that may lead to dismissal of the indictments.

The four statements were discovered July 22 — after the trial began — by one of the special prosecutors who was looking for other evidence in the files of Black Panther attorneys. Of the four statements, only one was signed and sworn to. In that statement, Truelock allegedly admitted firing two shots during the raid.

Stang allegedly obtained the statement from Truelock about two weeks after the 1969 raid.

STANG AND SOME of the other 13 witnesses who have been subpoenaed in the special hearing tried unsuccessfully Monday and Tuesday to quash the subpoenas, block the hearing and return Hanrahan to trial. But Romiti ruled Wednesday that the hearings will continue.

Romiti said he recognized the attorney-client privilege but felt that Stang should take the stand and answer questions which were not covered by the privilege. Stang then took the stand but, with his attorney, Frederick Cohn, sitting five feet in front of him, refused to answer every question put to him concerning the Truelock statement.

In earlier testimony in the special hearing, it has been alleged that Truelock was suspected of being a stool pigeon and of having tipped off police to the 19 weapons found in the Panther apartment during the 1969 raid. Truelock is currently in the Cook County Jail serving time on a gun law violation and had previously been convicted of a felony.

Attorney Francis Andrew, who was Stang's co-counsel for Truelock right after the raid, testified last Thursday that he had asked Stang to take the statement from Truelock and had made sure it was signed and sworn because he wanted to protect himself.

He said Truelock had contradicted the general impression he, Andrew had after talking to other survivors of the raid that the Panthers had fired no shots during the raid.

New State Standards For School Districts In Works

Local school districts will find themselves drawing a formal plan for improving the education programs they offer if new standards for state recognition of school districts are approved by Illinois School Supt. Michael Bakalis.

The new standards, which will be used to evaluate all Illinois public schools, are now in a preliminary draft. Four public hearings on the standards have been held and revisions will be made before they are submitted to Bakalis later this month for approval.

All school districts in the state are evaluated by state officials every three years. If a district fails to meet the state standards, it may not be eligible for state aid money.

The major change in the standards is the requirement that all districts submit the plan for improving their offerings to the state, according to Linda Beckerman, an administrative aide in the state Department of Recognition and Supervision.

"The program allows districts more flexibility in setting programs and standards and will make them more accountable to their communities," Miss Beckerman said.

EACH PLAN, to conform to the standards, must include a section assessing local education needs, objectives for improvement and activities designed to accomplish them, procedures for evaluating success of improvements and procedures for involving the community in planning improvements.

The new standards will require all districts to submit their plans by May 1, 1973, in order to achieve full recognition from the state.

Other parts of the standards remain substantially the same as in the past, Miss Beckerman said, with standards for staff certification and for recommended and required programs.

Miss Beckerman said she expects the final revisions on the new standards to be completed this month, following meetings with various statewide education groups. Assuming that Bakalis then approves them, she said the new standards should be mailed to school districts by September.

"The standards have needed some change and improvement," she said. "That's why we're doing this."

Door Stuck? Let It Dry Out Before You Start To Plane

Doors stick for a number of reasons. Swelling and warping due to excess moisture is the most obvious one and heavy rains in many parts of the country early this summer probably caused much of this trouble.

But there are other reasons for doors to stick. Settling of walls and door frames, especially in new houses, is a common one.

The loosening of hinges and other hardware is another.

While planing off the excess wood from a sticking door is an obvious solution, don't grab the plane too quickly. Humidity does pass and wood dries out. Hardware can be tightened.

TAKE THE easiest step first. It may be all that is needed. Tighten all the screws in the hinges.

Once you know the problem is not in the hinges, examine the door carefully. See just where rubbing and sticking occur. If your eye doesn't show you, take a piece of heavy paper and run it around the edges of the door while the door is closed. There should be enough clearance for it to get all the way around. Where the paper doesn't slide freely you have found rubbing.

If the door sticks at the bottom on the outside corner then the upper hinge is not set deep enough or the bottom hinge is too deep. Best procedure is to shim the bottom hinge with strips of cardboard which will push the door away from the frame.

If the sticking is at the top at the outside, then shim the top hinge.

If this procedure doesn't work, or if sticking is along the edge near the middle or in several places, then you may have to trim.

If the rubbing is in just a few spots, try planing just these. You may be able to do it without removing the door. If you have to plane along the entire length or if the planing has to be done where the lock is, remove the door.

KNOCK the pins out of the hinges, bottom hinge first, and lift off the door. So that you don't have trouble with resetting a lock, do the planing on the hinge side of the door. Removing the hinge leaves is easier than taking off the lock. Plane lightly. When you reset the hinge leaves, deepen the mortise they were in with a chisel.

If the door sticks at the bottom, remove it and cut off enough so that it clears.

Take off small amounts. If the weather is extremely humid, remember that the swelling will go back to normal later.

Salary Disputes Can Be Eased

August in the Northwest suburbs is not only the month of mosquitoes, vacations and picnics. In the past few years it has become the month of extended arguments between teachers and school board members over teacher salaries for the school year.

This year is no different. In fact, the two high school districts which serve most of the Northwest suburbs — Districts 211 and 214 — have yet to end negotiations for the new school year.

This is the first year that both high school districts have been involved in such disputes at the same time. And, as August proceeds, there's the increasing possibility that the 25,000 students served by both districts could face teacherless classrooms later this month.

District 211, which serves Palatine and Schaumburg Twps., is in a far more critical position at this moment. The teachers and school board began talking in February; to date, neither side has agreed on anything, according to observers.

At issue are teacher roles in determining, or helping to determine, class size and working conditions. It appears that when those issues are resolved, both sides can begin talking about salaries for the 1972-73 year.

Only three weeks remain for a settlement, for classes in Dist. 211 are scheduled to begin on August 25. There's no provision for extending last year's contract, a fact that hikes the threat of a strike.

In Dist. 214, serving Wheeling and Elk Grove Twps., talks are in the hands of a fact-finding panel, which probably will make a recommendation shortly for a settlement. If the settlement is not accepted by both sides, the fact-finding report will be made public.

This impasse procedure is incorporated in the 1971-72 Dist. 214 contract. If no settlement is reached by Labor Day, the old contract will be extended — thus providing considerable optimism for the hope that a strike won't occur in Dist. 214.

There is no cause for panic, at this moment, as far as both districts are concerned. Especially in Dist. 214, both sides are making an earnest effort to break the impasse. Indeed, fewer basic issues need to be resolved in the Dist. 214 negotiations.

For both districts, however, and especially Dist. 211, it is obvious that a strike would serve the best interests of no one. Perhaps it would lead to a psychological victory for teachers or the board; it obviously would hurt the educational process for 8,000 or so students.

Before the first school day looms too large, we urge both sides to examine their own positions and to consider what can be sacrificed for the good of the children. Both board and teacher have that obligation to the public.

Beyond the root causes — which include personal stubbornness — lies a structure which encourages this annual conflict. A collective bargaining act and greater state funding of public education would ease these useless conflicts.

The specific issue today, however, is not one of needed legislation. It is the fact that reasonable people on both sides of the bargaining table must give up something before a settlement can be reached and the best interests of our children will be served.

Bunker's Humanity

Is there any social significance in the fact that for the second year in a row the comedy series "All in the Family" dominated television's Emmy Awards?

According to some critics, the popularity of the show means that "Bigotry has become respectable" We are all Archie Bunkers at heart but don't have the nerve to be as honest and vocal as he is. We may pretend — or even believe — that we are laughing at the always-discomfited Archie, but in truth we are secretly identifying with him.

Couldn't it be that the show's popularity is nothing more than a reflection of its excellence?

The show is simply funny. The writing is of a consistently high standard, treating what really are delicate and serious subjects with just the right touch of irony and, above all, humor.

Archie, surrounded by "dingbats" and "meatheads" and "different" people who threaten his psychological security, week after week has his prejudices exploded in his face, and week after week keeps coming back with more prejudices.

Maybe through him we experience a sort of catharsis that enables us to look at, and laugh at, those aspects of Archie Bunker that lie deep within ourselves.

Or maybe we just like to see the look on his face when, once again, he's proved wrong.

But what raises the series to its high level is the fact that Archie is more than a straw man set up to be knocked down to prove a point in each show. He is a human being we have grown to know and — stifle the thought — even to love.

Rather than making bigotry respectable, Archie Bunker has taught us that when we deny the humanness of the bigot or the racist we are just practicing a different form of bigotry.

Nixon Appeals To Labor

Top-level advisers to President Richard M. Nixon met quietly in Chicago Monday with some of the biggest names in Illinois labor.

It was a meeting which could not have been organized 30 years ago. Or four years ago.

The two men from Washington came to present the case for organized labor support of a Republican President.

They neither asked nor received promises of support for Richard M. Nixon, but they went away with the clear knowledge that the attitude of these union chieftains toward the candidate of "labor's party" was nothing short of hostile.

The visitors were Donald Rogers, White House labor consultant who told the AFL-CIO representatives that he was the first member of a building trades union ever given a White House advisory post; and Bernard E. DeLury, executive director of labor affairs for the national Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

The man who brought them together with the union leaders was Serrill (Danny) Danfield of Des Plaines, veteran member of Local 147 of the Painters and Allied Trades Union, and DeLury's Illinois counterpart on the Nixon committee.

Danfield was disappointed in the number of union men — seven — who turned out for the meeting. He had previously received assurances, he said, from 51 union officers around the state that they would come to listen to the Nixon side of the story.

Danfield admitted that the meeting had been organized on short notice. But the number of those who didn't show up dramatized the reluctance of laborites to associate themselves with the Republican Party.

It also emphasized the significance of the presence of the men who were there. They were for the most part greying men in dignified business suits who are in their third and fourth decade in the labor movement and the Democratic Party.

Bob Lahey

Rogers is one of them, a veteran of 20 years in Pennsylvania union politics, and still a Democrat. He had told the President, he declared, that if any other candidate but George McGovern had won the nomination, Rogers would not have involved himself in the reelection effort.

But the labor leaders were reticent with the Nixon representatives. Thirty years of suspicion of Republicans does not fade easily.

Rogers told them their suspicions had been well founded in the past. But the reason, he said, was simply that the Republican Party had never understood the problems of construction unions.

His presence in the White House, he said, was testimony to Nixon's desire "to build bridges of understanding" between the Republican Party and the building trades. For the last three years, he declared, the Nixon administration had been seeking "input" at the White House level from labor representatives.

His goal now is to enlist active support from union members and to forge a coalition in the next four years.

The labor leaders made one point with Rogers, that they cannot "deliver" their membership to Republican ranks. Nobody tells them how to vote, they insisted, and nobody tells their rank-and-file how to vote.

But these are men who control the money and the machinery of their organizations. They are movers and shakers in the labor movement, and they did not achieve their positions by failing to win votes.

It was apparent throughout the meeting that George McGovern would receive no help from these men. One told Rogers that many labor people are simply figuring on sitting this one out.

But Rogers warned them that might not be enough. If the election is a close one, they may in effect elect George McGovern unless they work actively for Nixon.

With Nixon in the White House, he told them, the door of the Republican Party is open to labor. "If you have a problem, call me," he said. "Just ask for the White House."

The meaning of that invitation, which would not have come from a Republican White House 30 years ago — or even four years ago — was not lost on the union leaders.

Still, they are waiting. "I have my union's endorsement in my pocket right now," one told Rogers. "You can guess who it is for."

But as they left the meeting, another veteran labor leader said to a companion, "Well, it looks like for the first time in my life I'm going to have to go for a Republican."

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

'Repubdicrats' Flourish

In the Monday, July 24, edition of the Herald, Bob Lahey touched on the subject of "Common Cause." He enumerated the voting records with regard to Common Cause's position relevant to various legislation; of several U.S. representatives, as well as our two senators.

I believe what Mr. Lahey demonstrated is the fact that there is something drastically wrong with the political system in America, when it becomes commonplace for Democrats and Republicans alike to consistently support the same political philosophy — thereby giving birth to a strange breed of political animal who is coming to be known as the "Repubdicrat." Lest I create the erroneous impression that this phenomenon is confined to Illinois politics, I will present the following:

Not very many months have passed since Howard K. Smith, on national television, quoted President Nixon as having made the statement: "I'm a Keynesian now." The liberal Mr. Smith could scarcely conceal his astonishment at this turn of events; for he realized that Mr. Nixon's statement was tantamount to saying: I'm a socialist now. This confession would seem to present the voters with the dilemma of choosing between a Republican incumbent who has admitted to being a socialist — and a Democrat nominee whose left-wing philosophy is well known indeed.

At this point I want to make it perfectly clear that I do not wish to create the impression that Mr. Nixon is the only "Repubdicrat" on the American political scene. There are many others:

First we have the case of the Republican Governor of New York, Nelson Rockefeller. This gentleman is well known for his ability to conceive and support every socialistic scheme known to mankind — always being careful to spend as much of the taxpayer's money as possible.

Secondly, any dissertation on the subject of "Repubdicrats" would be incomplete without the inclusion of that outstanding conservative: Dwight David Eisenhower. Mr. Eisenhower was a lifelong Democrat — right up to the very moment he was nominated by the Republican party to run for president.

Third there is the case of John Lindsay who crossed party lines to become Mayor of New York; and later to enter the Democratic primaries — after having served several years in the Congress as a Republican.

I believe it is evident from the foregoing that if we dare to look we will behold a most horrifying sight. We will see a strange looking political animal with the head of an elephant, and the torso and hindquarters of a donkey. If we observe this creature closely we will see that it is capable of crossing party lines just as casually as most of us cross the street.

I believe it is at this point that the electorate will realize that party politics in America has degenerated into nothing more than a game — a game that is played at two and four year intervals — specifically concocted for the sole purpose of amusing the public.

Long live the "Repubdicrat!"

'Let's Aid Helpless Cats'

The forces of law and order have won another significant victory in Des Plaines! The "city fathers" will place the Cat Ordinance in the Nuisance Code! Long-last relief for the poor harassed citizens who have had their beloved flower gardens ripped to shreds by these predatory beasts, is thereby attained. They will undoubtedly sleep more securely, knowing just punishment will now fall on the heads of these dangerous animals and their owners.

Small consequence to these people is Mayor Behrel's fear that this action "will place a terrible burden on the Police Department." Of what interest is it to them that our overburdened police department will thereby have less time to curb vandalism and more serious crime, so long as there are no tornup flower beds? The cat population of Des Plaines, conservatively estimated by Ald. Abrams as 2.75 times the number of human residents (2.75 x 57,000 or approximately 156,000) will now be effectively controlled. We are sure Ald. Abrams MUST be correct in his estimate, but some of our friends and neighbors have asked, "How come, we rarely even see a cat in Des Plaines?"

Now — if the Council could only "dream up" some legislation that would be helpful to those HUMANE people and voluntary organizations that try to find homes for some of the abandoned "mama" cats and their kittens — EVERYBODY would be happy! These people try to find good homes for these helpless little creatures where they can be loved, and love, which is really all they live for. Through their efforts, an accumulation of homeless "strays" is prevented — and fewer torn flower beds. These people (the good guys) really deserve the support of the lawmakers "in spirit" at least. We are sure you will agree that more help and encouragement should be given to that segment of our citizenry who advocate HUMANE treatment for both man and beast.

We hope the strain on our law enforcement forces may not be as great as the mayor predicts. We understand that the Public Health Department, which formerly handled these complaints, had relatively few calls in former years — and these usually from a few crack-pots who were not taken seriously except by a few isolated aldermen.

Who Authorized 'Abandoned' Beach?

The Paddock editorial "Let's Examine Nuclear Plant" could easily have more substance if your writer would make the short journey to the Zion plant site.

Observe that about ¾ mile of the Illinois Beach State Park has been obliterated by the erection of an eight-foot-high "cyclone" fence with "Restricted Area" sign on it. Also observe that two fine beach houses and two or more picnic shelters have been abandoned and the north end of this public facility has been abandoned.

I think newspapermen should probe such "happenings." Why is the north end of this dunes park being quietly abandoned? Are we being protected from atomic energy effluent? Who authorized the closing of this area, which included the only boat launching facility at the park? You devoted considerable space to hypothesis. How about a few facts?

McGovern's Missions

Referring to your recent two-part wire service series on George McGovern, I noted that the July 17 story stated he flew 35 bomber missions in World War II.

Seems to me the standard tour of duty then was 50 missions. How come Hero George got out of the other 15?

Impeach President, Reader Urges

Peter Gnagi, whose father was president of Switzerland, carried trash cans to the curb on garbage collection day while attending Alton High School in Madison County as an exchange student, was kept a well-guarded secret. TOO BAD. Fighting Illini could have asked him for an assist to reveal the stock ownership of racetrack stock being held in a Swiss bank. President Nixon has no business in Illinois unless he delivers the details before election day. President Nixon gave Mr. Scott $250,000 to combat crime in Illinois. I guarantee this readership that the next collection will produce some high class trash for a "different can." The pick-up day is close because handlers of this political collection on their way to the sanitary landfill will not strike. LABOR is neutral this year. However, the NOBEL Peace award committee will LABOUR. Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania recommends the PRESIDENT for the Peace Award; Jane Fonda calls the President a traitor, and yours truly would like to see impeachment proceedings started to restore this government's control to the people. . .of the people, by the people, and for the people.

Communist-U.S. Trade Hit

I strongly object to Bill Miller's article in the July 21 issue of the Herald entitled "Credit Key to Communist-U.S. Trade."

In the past, credit has been extended to communist countries who in turn have defaulted in their repayments. Thus goods "sold" to the communists are actually given to them. And who pays for the goods? Naturally, the taxpayers. This in itself is bad enough. But consider also the fact that the communist countries are directly aiding our communist enemy in Viet Nam and that over 45,000 Americans have lost their lives there. For these reasons the best policy for America is to stop all further aid to or trade with communist countries.

Some say this trade is good business, but isn't the life of one American soldier worth saving?

Word-A-Day

Business Today

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — A few months ago an associate professor of algebra at a Philadelphia technical institute received a $201 check from his publisher. It represented royalties from 1971 sales of a textbook on linear algebra which is used in several developing countries in Africa and the Middle East.

While $201 may not be a lot to some, it was needed by the professor who is supporting a family of five on an annual salary of about $12,000.

The widow of a former professor of mechanical engineering at a southwestern college recently received a foreign royalty check for $930. The deceased husband's textbooks, one on thermodynamics and the other on machine design, have been used abroad for 30 years. And the royalties have been an essential part of the widow's annual income.

THE YOUNG professor and the widow may lose this income from future sales in developing countries if revisions to an international copyright treaty now pending before Congress are ratified. Hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were scheduled to begin Aug. 2.

The question the committee will consider is a delicate one: The rights of an individual to protect his intellectual production vs. the rights of backward nations to educate their citizens through published literature.

The emergency of developing countries has created a vast market for textbooks and other instructional materials. A recent study found that 63 per cent of the world's school children live in developing countries. Eighty countries in South and Central America, Asia, Africa, the Middle East and parts of Europe qualify as "developing."

These countries have campaigned for years for "freer access" to educational material. Specifically, they want the right, if private negotiations fail to result in terms agreeable to them, to translate and reproduce educational material without permission of the copyright owner. The amount of payment, if any, would be left to the discretion of the developing country. It could be minimal, or in blocked currency, or almost nothing at all.

THE ISSUE came to a head at a diplomatic conference in Paris last year. After much maneuvering and infighting, revisions to existing treaties were hammered out. They gave developing countries what they wanted. Now the revisions await ratification by the United States and other countries.

While recognizing the need to help backward nations, certain U.S. authors and publishers feel that ratification would open the door to a potentially massive giveaway. They feel that words, ideas and artistic concepts flowing from men's minds should be protected just as vigorously as the products flowing from their mills and plants.

7-Eleven Celebrates 45 Years

A pioneer in the small convenience food store industry, 7-Eleven Food Stores is celebrating its 45th anniversary. 7-Eleven stores are operated by the parent firm, Southland Corp.

Joe Thompson founded the firm in Dallas, Tex., in 1927. The stores were operated as small neighborhood stores open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Through the years 7-Eleven has expanded to more than 4,500 stores and other retail outlets. Revenues topped $1 billion in 1971. 7-Eleven stores, dairies, and the company's ice, chemical and candy operations now extend to 40 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, Mexico and the United Kingdom.

During the 1960s the convenience food store field increased from 2,500 outlets to the present 15,000. These stores are operated by some 260 different companies. Annual sales of all convenience food stores increased from about $375 million in 1960 to $2.1 billion in 1969.

The present management team of the Southland Corp., John P. Thompson and H. E. Hartfelder, are planning new stores in the Chicago metropolitan area. There are currently 117 area outlets.

Retail Sales Up 13% In June

CHICAGO (UPI) —The Illinois Retail Merchants Association says retail sales by Illinois merchants showed a median dollar volume increase of 13 per cent in June of this year compared with the same period last year.

Food stores and speciality shops, such as jewelry and drug stores, showed a 10 per cent volume increase during June and an 11 per cent increase for the first six months of 1972, the IRMA said Tuesday.

Hardware, appliance and home furnishings increased 8 per cent in sales in June, the IRMA said, but shoe stores increased sales only 5 per cent and department sales lagged at a 3 per cent increase.

IRMA Pres. Hugh Muncy said the figures seemed to reflect a general customer confidence in the economy despite "dire predictions" earlier this year.

He said the sales figures were based on a poll of 60 IRMA members across the state. The IRMA has "several thousand" Illinois members, he said.

Earnings For Railroads Improve With The Economy

The railroad industry has been one of the important beneficiaries of the economy's accelerated economic expansion, say economists at Chicago's Northern Trust Bank.

The industry's net income for the first quarter of 1972 was double that of the 1971 first quarter, even though freight volume got off to a slow start this year.

"The welcome improvement in earnings," says Northern Trust's economic newsletter "Business Comment," "appears to have been largely attributable to a combination of rate increases, savings arising from the discontinuance of passenger service, and the benefits derived from the investment tax credit."

Earnings rebounded sharply in 1971 from a 32-year low experienced in 1970, but even this improvement did not represent a return to prosperity for the rails, says the newsletter.

Railroad operating revenues have failed to keep pace with the growth of over-all economic activity in the United States throughout the postwar period. Declining mail and passenger revenues have been partly to blame, but erosion of the industry's once commanding position as a freight carrier has been most serious, says the bank.

Motor freight carriers, oil pipelines, and air cargo have all been gaining in importance, reducing the rails' freight market share from over 50 per cent in 1954 to 38.6 per cent in 1971.

Rails remain the nation's largest hauler of goods, however, and innovations in equipment and service — such as "piggybacking" — have been employed to counter the inroads of other carriers.

Small Business Loans Set Mark

Record-breaking $62,838,737 in loans were approved by the Small Business Administration in Illinois during recently-concluded fiscal year 1972.

The total exceeded by 49.8 per cent the previous record of $41,928,934, established in fiscal 1971.

"I believe this is another example of the fact that the SBA in recent years has become a highly effective tool in the effort to stimulate the nation's economy," Midwestern regional director Robert Dwyer said.

He termed "particularly significant the fact that SBA loan figures in Illinois have increased by more than 600 per cent in the last four years."

The most spectacular gain in Fiscal 1972 was recorded in the 36 northernmost counties of Illinois, which are serviced by the SBA's Chicago office.

In this area, the SBA approved 715 loans for $46,398,672, an increase of 62.8 per cent over last year's putput.

The agency's Springfield Branch Office, which services the state's 66 southernmost counties, increased its dollar volume by 23.4 per cent with 277 approvals for $16,440,065.

Sola Industries

During the recent annual meeting in Milwaukee, Wis., shareholders of Sola Basic Industries were told that first quarter earnings per share rose 30 per cent over last year's comparable period.

Earnings of $1,018,156 or 30 cents a share on sales of $27,551,521 for the three-month period ended June 30 were reported by Frank H. Roby, chairman and president. In the corresponding period last year, earnings were $759,034 or twenty-three cents a share on sales of $22,144,000.

"The current quarter's performance was particularly gratifying since it was obtained without benefit of relief from price ceilings imposed Aug. 15 under the Economic Stabilization Act," Roby said.

Headquartered in Milwaukee, Sola Basic has 18 domestic and thirteen foreign plants all producing electrical and electronic equipment for the distribution, control and use of electric power. The company has an Elk Grove Village facility.

A. O. Smith Corp.

Earnings of A. O. Smith Corp. in the first six months of 1972 were ahead of a year ago, even though the second quarter was behind because of labor and cost problems at the company's elevator subsidiaries.

First half earnings were $7,652,000, or $1.55 a share, compared with $7,317,000, or $1.49 a share in the first six months of 1971. Sales in the period were $254,621,000 compared with $240,429,000 last year.

For the second quarter, earnings were $3,469,000, or seventy cents a share, compared with $4,037,000, or eighty-two cents a share in 1971. Sales in the second quarter were $129,125,000 compared with $123,605,000 last year.

A. O. Smith, through its Armor Elevator subsidiaries, is a major manufacturer of elevators in both the U.S. and Canada. In the U.S., nearly all elevator construction was halted during the entire second quarter by a strike of elevator construction workers. The strike began March 30 and was settled July 8 with a five-year, three-month contract.

Young fans follow fast action in Paddock Olympics at Conant High School.

Elk Grove Wins Olympics Title; Schaumburg 2nd

A show of power and strength continued to follow a carousel-type pattern as Elk Grove became the fifth different park district in six years to capture the Paddock Olympics mammoth traveling team trophy.

An awesome display carried the victors to a comfortable lead after Tuesday's events and a duplicate performance down the rain-drenched stretch yesterday insured Elk Grove of a landslide triumph.

Last year's hosts, Elk Grove accumulated 366 points to easily outdistance surprising runnerup Schaumburg's 260 and third-place Arlington's 249.

Palatine totaled 93 to Mt. Prospect's 82, Salt Creek's 80 and Wheeling's 76. Rolling Meadows notched eighth with 73, Buffalo Grove ninth with 64, Hanover Park 10th with 53 and Hoffman Estates 11th with 49.

The convlusion of the two-day spectacle centered around the events of tennis singles, softball throw, kickball, freethrow shooting and tug-of-war — all apparently to Elk Grove's liking as were standing long jump, 50 and 100-yard dashes, jump rope and team relay the day before.

Chris Emreth and Diane Brisco entered the winner's circle for Elk Grove in the nine and 13-year-old girls kickball competition, respectively, with Ken Santowski and Dan Streich duplicating the gold medal feats for the 12 and 13-year-old boys.

Thirteen-year-old Ken Davis and Angellati swished to crowns for Elk Grove in the boys free-throw shooting contest as did 10-year-old Maggie Steffen for the girls.

Elk Grove was shut out of first place in the tennis singles competition, but was still able to relax behind a comfortable margin over the 10 challenging park districts.

Host Schaumburg impressed by finishing second ahead of kingpins Arlington and Palatine, maintaining the position they had reserved after Tuesday's action.

Behind the winning efforts of eight-year-old Scott Nettger and nine-year-old Doug Allen in the boys free-throw shooting, Ian Brown in the 10-year division of the kickball for boys, Darlene Hamp in the same bracket for the girls, eight-year-old John Hamaker in the softball throw and 9, 10 and 13-year-olds Debbie Mazikowski, Kim Wallner and Sue Strathopoulas for the girls, Schaumburg was a steady customer in the blue-ribbon department.

Arlington was the final representative in what developed into a three-team dogfight, but the defending champions couldn't spark the rally that netted the Paddock gold last year.

Vicki Moore and Sue Skazynski contributed blue ribbons in the 10 and 12-year-old girls tennis singles while nine-year-old Joan Krewer, 11-year-old Lynne Toomey and 13-year-old Kendis Magnus accomplished the feat for the girls free-throw team. Don Holmes notched basketball honors for the 12-year-old boys.

Mike Hegeman and Jeff Peterson were kickball champions for Arlington in the eight and nine-year-old boys events while a 12-man contingent brought home the gold medal in the newly installed tug-of-war matches.

Buffalo Grove found event champions in Margo McNery for the eight-year-old girls free-throw competition and June Fenzel in the eight-year-old girls kickball contest.

Salt Creek relief on the efforts of Dan Kelly in the 10-year-old boys free-throw shooting, and Glen Tisdall in the 11-year-old boys kickball test.

Hanover Park bagged an event champion when Rosalie Mueller charged to the 12-year-old girls kickball competition while Wheeling counted Gina Neri in the 12-girls free-throw shooting.

Tuesday's boys 50-yard dash results became official and in the winner's circle were eight-year-old Touzinski and Tom Walsh and John Ramirez of Elk Grove, Spencer York of Buffalo Grove, Tom Aherin of Palatine and Hugh Hannon of Schaumburg.

FINAL STANDINGS

1. Elk Grove	366
2. Schaumburg	260

6. Salt Creek	80

Paul Logan

RUSHING — a key part of a balanced football attack.

Rushing — a word that also describes acting with great haste.

Both versions of the word took place when the annual Hall of Fame game was aired Saturday on ABC. The Chiefs and the Giants took care of the former and the network for the latter.

A quick look outside confirmed that it was a sunny July day, at least a month away from autumn leaves and crisp weather. That meant that ABC, lusting for the millions of supposedly football hungry viewers, was rushing the season again.

No way was I ready to watch football even though Fabulous Frank, Dimples Don and Hyperbole Howard were the featured attractions. It was just another exhibition game.

The tribune All-Star game — an annual joke — was bad enough on Friday. Two games in two days in the middle of the summer was just too much.

When you think of a Hall of Fame game, you at least expect to see two of the better NFL teams. No Saturday, however.

The Chiefs just missed the Super Bowl shot — no short changing the fans there. But the Giants are terrible. This team is possibly as bad as the Bears.

Not even Cosell's confabulations could keep me captured in front of my set.

Because of this game, the chiefs and Giants will now have to play half a season before the first "money game" takes place later in September. The normal exhibition schedule calls for six pre-season games.

The prestige that exists around the Football Hall of Fame should dictate that the game be held late in the exhibition season when the weather is more footballish — September.

Televised football is great because of the replays and slow motion. A fan can learn a lot about the finer points of the game.

Airing football exhibitions in late July and early August is something else again. Besides being a waste of time, it burns an avid fan out to watch so many games prior to a long season.

Until the first regular season game begins, the Logan set will remain off. My wife will say "Amen" to that. However, baseball games and the Olympics will fill that void. Sorry, wife.

Another ridiculous "execution" game that comes up this weekend when the Bears — you remember "Halas' Hasbeens" — take on those same Chiefs in South Bend. They're actually charging admission for the slaughter.

If the starting lineup for the Chiefs plays for three quarters the score could rival the 66-24 rout in the 1967 exhibition Season.

Since the seasons are overlapping again, it's time to make amid-summer comment about the Cubs and Sox.

Last week P. K. Wrigley did what he should have done a couple hundred losses ago — say to Leo Durocher what umpire Tom Gorman says in the commercial, "YOU are GONE"

Leo was a fine manager and coach in his day — the 1950s and beyond. Then he could handle men; he couldn't the past few seasons.

Many an owner would have brought down the ax after seeing what could have been a glorious year in '69 turn into such a disaster.

Leo Durocher

Some said Durocher deserved another chance, but he failed miserably again in '70. The same thing has been true the past season and a half.

Now Whitey Lockman takes over an ancient team by baseball standards. When you think of most of the names to follow, you remember them more as they were when they led the National League by 8½ games and everything was roses:

Billy Williams (34), Jim Hickman (35), Ron Santo (32), Glenn Beckert (32), Joe Pepitone (32), Milt Pappas (33), Juan Pizarro (35), Steve Hamilton (35), Billy Hands (32), Paul Popovich (32), Randy Hundley (30), Don Kessinger (30), and Jack Aker (32).

Sure, they've got the young arms in Fergie Jenkins (28), Burt Hooton (22) and Rick Reuschel (23). Also, Williams is enjoying possibly his greatest season ever. But, on the whole, this ball club has been allowed to grow old together.

Even after sweeping the Cardinals last weekend, the old echos of former optimism came from the Wrigley den. When asked what the Cubs' chances of catching the awesome Pirates were, Hundley said, "Very definitely. We're playing good ball."

The only catching they can possibly hope for is in their seemingly annual battle for second place with the Mets. It will take plenty of trading, the beginning of a youth movement and several years before a realistic pennant drive can ever be staged again on the North Side.

It might be tough for Cub fans to admit it, but the Sox are the team with the best chance of winning a pennant in the coming years. With just four men barely out of their twenties in Wilbur Wood (31), Dick Allen (30), Ed Brinkman (31) and Ed Spiezio (31), the switch to youth has already been accomplished.

Making up the youngsters are Terry Forster (20), Carolos May (24), Tom Egan (26, Tom Bradley (25), Ed Herrmann (26), Jay Johnstone (26), Bill Melton (27), Pat Kelly (28), Stan Bahnsen (28), Mike Andrews (29), Rick Reichardt (29), Vincente Romo (29), Walt Williams (29) and Rich Morales (29).

Despite the loss of Melton, this young team has managed to stay in the race. Many expected the Sox to be a dozen games behind the loaded Oakland A's after Melton left, but they're stil hanging in there, mainly because of Allen.

One thing that both Cub and Sox fans would probably agree on — both teams have legitimate most valuable player and triple crown threats in Billy Williams and Richie Allen. If the season continues to see the Pirates and the Athletics pulling away, rooting for these two individuals might be the only excitement left in Chicago. . .

. . . Then again, there are those big, bad, bungling Bears . . .

They're off in sizzling 50 yard dash for 8-year-old boys.

Logan Square, Cal City Clash In County Action

by JIM COOK

Logan Square's quest for the golden state legion fleece will make a scheduled stop in Northbrook this afternoon for the Cook County playoffs — the final depot down the trail to Illinois' classy terminal in Arlington Heights, Aug. 10-13.

Only one of the five teams arriving in Northbrook will reboard the state-bound express and the Ninth District playoff champion Lions have reserved a good position in the ticket seller's line.

Ably coached by Larry Nomellini, the Lions will unpack a suitcase containing 36 victories, 12 losses and two ties. On the same track, however, is Eighth District titlist Calumet City and there isn't room for both to pass.

Although the tourney is billed as a double-elimination dogfight, one will be derailed during today's opening contest of the County Tourney at 1 p.m.

Cal City is still recuperating from a heart-stopping photo-finish within its own district. The Jerry Munda-piloted team gained the County berth with a 10-6 mark within a five-squad circuit and rest 14-9 overall.

The club is essentially molded around two bonafide standouts in Connie Zelencik and George Demopoulos. Both are versatile hard-throwing righthanders, strikeout kings and power hitters.

"George struck out 15 in our last ball game," Munda said, "and Connie has had 13 in a couple of games. Each is about 6-4 and about 210."

The legion giants are also overpowering at the plate as well. "George was hitting over .400 all year," Munda continued, "but he's tailed off to about .370. Connie is hitting well above .300, too, and they can both hit the long ball."

Munda tagged both inconsistent defense and lack of depth as the Achilles tendon of his club, but added that one of the keys to their successful campaign was winning the close games and not rattling under pressure.

"We started with 17 players on our team, but with injuries, kids that quit and vacations, we're down to 11," Munda admitted.

The Lions, whose winning habit has netted 83 triumphs in less than two years, are riding the crest of another sparkling season that has been underlined with the essentials of pitching, speed, defense and hitting. All were in abundance when they swept their way through the Ninth District playoffs in three straight decisions.

Pitching was magnified in the three-game set with workhorses Ken Martin, Mike Cook and Terry Smith delivering clutch performances.

Martin fashions a stingy 1.06 overall earned run average while Cook's is a minute 1.77 and Smith's a 2.46. Stan Bobowski heads the team batting derby with a .371 clip while Martin is right behind at .366.

The winner of this showdown will be paired opposite host Northbrook (a team the Lions have beaten twice this season) at 7:30 tonight while the loser faces a no-tomorrow situation against the Giles-Bellwood loser Friday at 4 p.m.

The lighted Northbrook baseball field is located on Waukegan Rd. (Route 43) about one and one-half miles north of Palatine-Willow Rd. in Northbrook.

THURSDAY
Game 1 — Calumet City vs. Logan Swuare, 1 p.m.
Game 2 — Giles vs Bellwood, 4:30 p.m.
Game 3 — Northbrook vs. Game 1 Winner, 7:30 p.m.

FRIDAY
Game 4 — Game 1 Loser vs. Game 2 Loser, 4 p.m.
Game 5 — Game 2 Winner vs. Game 3 Winner, 7:30 p.m.

SATURDAY

Game 7 — Game 6 Winner vs. Game 5 Loser, 7:30 p.m.

SUNDAY

Rebels Come From Behind, Win 6-5 In Short Game

The Northwest Rebels had to play only four innings to post their 15th victory of the summer Monday against the Northbrook American Legion team at Glenbrook North High School. The Rebels prevailed 6-5 in a game shortened by darkness as they improved their record to 15-5-1.

Dean Sheridan pitched the four frames for Northwest, allowing five hits and three walks while striking out three.

The visitors jumped on Northbrook for four runs in the second inning after the first three batters reached base without getting a hit. Wally Wiener walked, Bob Andreas was hit by a pitch, Sheridan walked, Kim Boley drove in two runs with a single and later scored on a single by player-coach Frank May.

That lead evaporated when Northbrook scored five runs in the second and third innings, but the Rebels came back to win it with a two-run fourth. Sheridan walked, May doubled, and both scored on wild pitches.

Northbrook, a fine team which is entered in the Legion's Cook County playoffs this weekend on its own field, got its runs on a hit batsman, double and single in the second and walk plus three straight singles in the third.

SCORE BY INNINGS

Northwest Rebels	040	2—6-4-2
Northbrook Legion	023	0—5-5-1

Herald Names Stan Bobowski Tourney MVP

Stan Bobowski, Logan Square's free-swinging southpaw, slammed his way to the Ninth District Tournament's Most Valuable Player Award in the opinion of the Herald sportswriters.

In pacing the Lions to a three-game sweep of the single-elimination playoffs, Stan hammered opposing pitching at a .550 clip with six hits in 11 trips.

Hitting from the three-hole in coach Larry Nomellini's batting order, Stan collected a double and homer among his six safeties and knocked home three runs. From his post in right field, Bobowski unveiled unlimited range in three flawless performances.

Lefty Bob Leja captured the 1971 MVP trophy with a stunning mound triumph for Ninth District champion Arlington Heights.

Bobowski will be honored Friday evening with a presentation of the award by Herald sportswriter Jim Cook.

Englishman Oliver Debuts In Challenge Cup Feature

Englishman Jackie Oliver, a familiar figure elsewhere on the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series schedule, will be making his first attempt in Mansfield, Ohio this weekend to master the demanding Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course.

Oliver, whose Can-Am exploits date back to 1969, will make his debut here, before what is expected to be a record crowd, in the Universal Oil Products Shadow, only American-built car in Can-Am competition.

A streak of bad luck has kept Oliver, one of the most exciting drivers in the series, from challenging the Mid-Ohio road circuit for three straight years. In 1969, Oliver was to drive the Ti22 here, but it wasn't completed in time for the race. The following year, that same car was destroyed in a freak accident six weeks before the race, at St. Jovite, Quebec. Last year, his first with the Shadow team, Oliver decided to pass up the Mid-Ohio event in favor of doing further development work on the car.

"Now I'm really anxious to try this circuit," Oliver says. "Everybody has talked about it so much and I'm dying to see it."

A veteran of the tortuous endurance racing circuits of Europe, Oliver is accustomed to difficult driving conditions, and he says he enjoys them.

"If a driver can master a particularly difficult circuit, or portion of one, that bothers other drivers, he achieves an instant advantage over them. I try to do that as often as I can."

The sam kind of luck that has plagued the scrappy Englishman in previous years is with Oliver again in 1972. In three race starts so far in this year's Can-Am, Oliver has yet to finish. Each time he has been frustrated by mechanical difficulties.

At Watkins Glen, N.Y., two weeks ago, Oliver was stymied by failing brakes, which eventually caused him to collide with a guard rail. Although no serious damage was sustained on the car, Shadow team owner, Don Nichols, has decided to run his back-up car here.

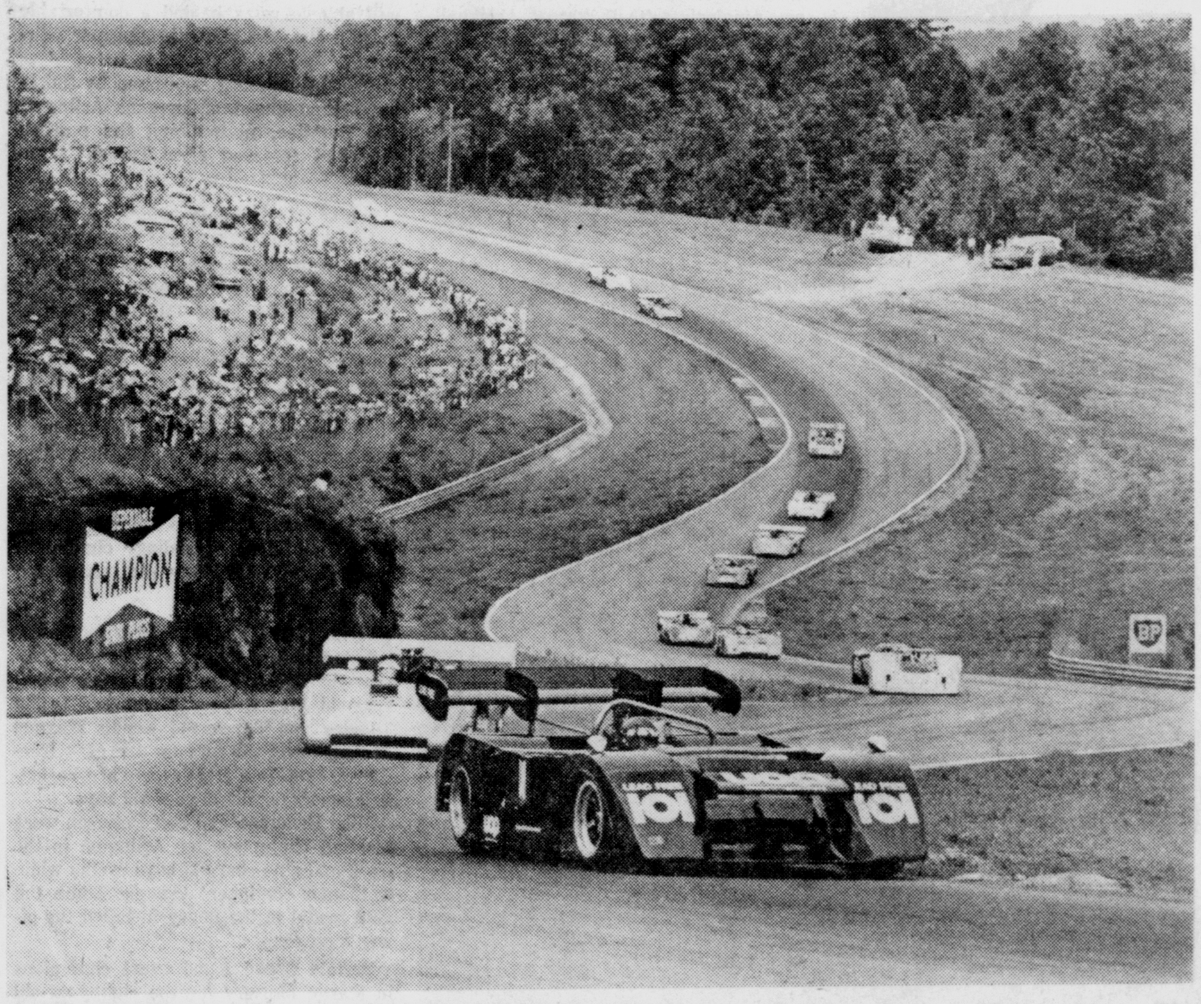
The Shadow crew, backed by the Universal Oil Products Company of Des Plaines has a couple of points to prove in the 1972 Can-Am series.

First of all, Oliver and the men from Nichols' Advanced Vehicle Systems are working to show that an American-built car can compete successfully with the best that European designers and builders produce.

The company, on the other hand, is compiling what it hopes will be incontestable evidence that unleaded fuels are in every way competitive with their leaded counterparts, no matter what type of an engine a motorist uses. Thus, the Shadow since last August has been the only racing car in the world to be powered exclusively by lead-free gasoline. And the team has not had an engine failure in all that time.

UOP believes this record has importance implications in the battle for cleaner air through reduced auto exhaust emissions.

A recognized leader in petroleum refining technology, UOP concluded sometime ago that the catalytic converter system is the most logical method available to reduce harmful exhaust emissions. But research showed that lead additives in gasoline reduce the effectiveness of such converters. The company is seeking to prove through racing that the motorist need pay no penalty in engine performance or economy.



JACKIE OLIVER in the Universal Oil Products Company Shadow, leading a group of cars at Road Atlanta, is running the entire 1972 Canadian-American Challenge Cup Series on lead-free gasoline. Oliver will be in Ohio this weekend.

Arlington swept the Men's B match with wins from Weeg, John Paczkowski, Greg Harris, and Clark in singles and Tobin and Timmons in doubles.

Des Plaines won the Juniors class but no information was available, and Des Plaines also won the Women's competition 4-1 as Rachel Kotsaqis picked up the lone point in singles.

Arlington had no trouble against Broadview in a 5-0 sweep with only four matches going three sets.

In the Men's A class Merkel, Lahey, and Don Rodig won singles while Merkel and Rodig teamed up for a 6-2, 6-2 doubles victory.

Pro/Stock Factory Showdown Coming

The United States Racing Team, the world's largest, professional motorsports team, will present a Pro/Stock "Factory Showdown" at Great Lakes Dragway, Union Grove, Wis., on Wednesday, Aug. 9, at 8:00 p.m.

Team drivers from 11 states, representing Ford, Chevrolet, Plymouth, Dodge and American Motors, will be racing for a $20,000 cash purse.

The event marks the only area appearance of the U.S. Racing Team during the 1972 season and promises to be one of the top autosports attractions in the midwest. The Union Grove Facility, rated as one of the top in the nation, is midway between Chicago and Milwaukee, off I-94 at Wisconsin KR, Union Grove.

Participating in this first-annual event, which will be run under the Team's unique "American Challenge" elimination and qualifying system, will be 16 of auto racing's most prominent figures. In addition to over 60 personal appearances each year, Team drivers participate in 30 national events throughout the U.S. and Canada and present 10 "Factory Showdown" championships in key markets. All mediums of communication report the activities of the Team, including T.V.'s "Wide World of Sports."

Headlining the Great Lakes show will be reigning World Champion, Mike Fons of Detroit in the Rod Shop Dodge; Ronnie Sox (Burlington, N.C.) winner of six major events during 1971 and current points leader, will drive the new Sox & Martin Plymouth Duster. Chevrolet fans will be supporting Bill "Grumpy" Jenkins of Malvern, Pa. who has dominated the Pro/Stock action this year with his revolutionary "Small block" Vega. "Fast Eddie Schartman of Cleveland, Ohio will lead the Ford effort and Ronnie Lyles, of Brooklyn, N.Y., the fastest rising black star in professional motorsports will be on hand with his 700 HP Plymouth Barracuda.

Wally Booth, of Detroit, will field the lone American Motors entry in the battle, a 1972 Gremlin X, powered by a 360 CID AM racing engine. Booth, a former Chevrolet standout, switched to AM. in '72 and has been quite successful with the nation's number one "underdog." Booth will qualify on the four car Chevy Team, joining Dave Strickler, York, Pa. 1972 Vega), Rick Mirarcki (driving Bill Blanding's "Mimi" Vega, from Syracuse, N.Y.) and Jenkins. Sox and Lyles will be aided by Oklahoma City's Don Grotheer in a Barracuda and Arlen Vanke of Akron, Ohio, is also a himi-Cuda.

Schartman, Wayne Gapp (Detroit), and two Atlanta drivers, Hubert Platt and Don Nicholson represent Ford's "Better idea" at Union Grove. Nicholson will drive a 351 CID Ford Pinto while the balance of the quartet will rely on Boss 429 "Shotgun" powered Mavericks.

Dick Landy, of Los Angeles, Herb McCandless of Burlington, N.C. (driving a Sox & Martin prepped Dodge Demon) and Don Carlton (Lenoir, N.C.) will join Fons in the "Dodge Boys" camp. Great Lakes Dragway promoter Bob Metzler reports that "The appearance of the U.S. Racing Team will be our biggest midweek presentation of 1972 and we hope to have the Team back in future years. These guys are real pros . . . on the race track and off. Plans for a "super" prerace promotion in our market area are not complete at this time, but I can promise some exciting co-promotions with local firms that will add more excitement to the Team's visit and stimulate new interest in the "world's fastest growing sport.

Pony League Tourney Opens At Lions Park

Play gets underway this evening at Lions Park lighted diamond in the inaugural Pony League double elimination tournament sponsored by the Mount Prospect Baseball Association for Boys.

The eight area teams, including a team representing the host Mount Prospect Baseball Association, are made up of 13 and 14 year old boys. Play opens at 6:00 this evening with teams from Niles and Wheeling kicking off the tournament which will lead to the championship game next Wednesday evening Aug. 9.

Mount Prospect Boys Baseball Association President Byron "Bud" Clark, in announcing the opening of the tournament and the pairings for the first round, indicated this tournament fulfills a long-range plan of the Association for such a tournament.

"We've long dreamed of such a tournament," he stated, "and it is now here. When the Mount Prospect Park District erected lights on its best diamond in Lions Park, we promised them we'd sponsor such a tournament in order to show off the fine facilities we have here. And now we've delivered."

Other Pony League teams competing in this tournament include teams representing Lincolnshire, Mundelein, Elk Grove, and Buffalo Grove.

After the opening game between Wheeling and Niles this evening, Tournament Director Victor Rose indicated host team Mount Prospect will meet Lincolnshire in the second game of the evening scheduled for 8 p.m.

The second section of the first round will be played Friday evening, Aug. 4, with Mundelein meeting Elmhurst in the first game at 6 p.m. and Elk Grove tangling with Buffalo in the night cap at 8 p.m.

The losers of the Thursday and Friday games will open plan in the loser's bracket with games scheduled for 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. on Saturday afternoon while the winners of the Thursday and Friday games meeting at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday evening, Aug. 5.

Play will continue daily in both the winner and loser's brackets until the championship game, tentatively scheduled for Wednesday evening, Aug. 9, at 8 p.m.

Winner's trophies will be presented after the championship game by representatives of the Mount Prospect Park District and the host Mount Prospect Boys Baseball Association.

Notre Dame High Schedules 'Old-Timers' Football Game

The Notre Dame High School Alumni Association is sponsoring an "Old-Timers" football game in an effort to raise funds for the improvement and expansion of the school's physical education program.

The teams will be composed of former Notre Dame High School football players from the classes of 1958 through 1972. Two squads will be divided according to odd-and even-numbered years. The game will be a regulation contest with full equipment and promises to be quite a spectacle. Pre-game and halftime activities are planned and the contest will be followed by refreshments and entertainment.

The game will take place Saturday, Aug. 12 at 8 p.m. at the high school stadium. Donations are $3 for adults, $2 for students (high school and college) and $1 for children. Tickets may be purchased at the gate or by sending an order to the Notre Dame High School Alumni Association, 7655 Dempster, Niles. The game ticket will also admit the bearer to post-game activities in the school. Besides refreshments, several bands will perform.

Chemplex Team 5 In Tournament

Team No. 5 (Jack Jacobs, Milt Kostner, Sven Solvik, and George Laybourne) will represent the Chemplex Twilight Golf League in the forthcoming Paddock Publications Golf Tournament Aug. 20.

Team No. 5 earned the honor by sweeping all six points during round 11 to maintain its slim one point lead over Team No. 6, Ray Cameron, Hank Gudrian and Bill Abbey, which also took six points.

With just three rounds remaining, it appears that the championship will be decided in the final round when Teams No. 5 and No. 6 face each other.

Walt Ramsey captured low gross for the evening with a 44, while low net was taken by Bill Abbey with a 36. Jack Blanchard's season records of 39 — 31 still stand.

In flight standings, Walt Ramsey defeated Ray Cameron to become the sole leader in Flight A. Meanwhile, Mike Melchior (B), Sven Solvik (C), and Bill Abbey (D) maintained leadership in their respective flights.

IT'S SHOW TIME for youngsters and adults when the puppet star meets the clubhouse manager in this scene from "My Kindgdom for a Can of Worms," a live magic puppet show appearing through Sunday at Woodfield, Golf Road and Rte. 53, Schaumburg.

Puppet Show At Woodfield

Children may have to elbow the adults aside today through Saturday when Woodfield presents a free puppet show in the amphitheatre of the Grand Court.

Puppets, live actors, magic and ventriloquism are on the program scheduled to show every hour from 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Woodfield is located at the intersection of Golf Road and Rte. 53 in Schaumburg, just off Interstate 90.

Performances of the original show, "A Day at Apple Canyon Lake," or "My Kingdom for a Can of Worms," set the show's theme, a message of the dangers of water and air pollution.

The dhow features an appearance by "Wonderos," the world's oldest and worst magician and scenes and slides of country scenery.

Concentrated Vitamin A Dangerous

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here's some advice you may or may not ever need:

—Don't eat raw bear meat. Not even bear "jerky" Might give you trichinosis.

—Don't eat the livers of huskies. Eskimos have known from ancient times the unwisdom of doing so. Some polar explorers didn't. So they suffered.

—Don't eat the liver of the Arctic bearded seal. It is even more dangerous than huskies' livers.

—Avoid polar bear liver, too.

The villain in all these livers is concentrated vitamin A, which makes people sick with "hypervitaminosis."

THE ADVICE ABOUT not eating uncooked bear meat comes from the American Medical Association (AMA). Bears, like pigs, harbor trichinosis organisms. No one, of course, would think of eating uncooked pork.

In people, trichinosis organisms get into the body tissues causing many miseries — muscle pain, stiffness, weakness, painful breathing, swelling around the eyes, rash, loss of weight and high fever lasting for weeks.

"Complications," according to the AMA Journal, "include general prostration, pneumonia, and sudden heart failure."

The journal said eating raw polar bear meat may have killed three Swedish balloonists in 1897.

In October, 1970, an Idaho hunting party shot an apparently healthy black bear. He cut the meat into thin, narrow strips for jerky, made by soaking the strips in brine for three days and smoking them for two days. Only one of the 18 members who ate the meat escaped all signs of trichinosis.

Three other modern outbreaks of human trichinosis caused by eating bear jerky or rare bear meat steaks have been reported.

NOBODY KNOWS how many bears are shot and eaten. But said the AMA Journal, it is estimated that trichinosis infection among bears in the United States is "four times greater than the prevalence in garbage-fed swine."

The advice about not eating certain animal livers comes from an article in the Chemical & Engineering News.

Some polar explorers, fallen on hard times , dined on their huskies, and suffered severe illness from eating the dog's livers.

Zoologist R. V. Southcott of the South Australian Museum discovered the apparent reason — huskies' livers contain extremely high concentrations of Vitamin A. A little more than 3.5 ounces of husky liver would be toxic to man.

The Arctic bearded seal liver is even more dangerous, and polar bear liver also is on the don't-eat list.

But the southern elephant seal and the Weddell seal of Antarctica, although they accumulate vitamin A., are considered safe.

"Only an exceptionally large meal," the article said, "would endanger the diner."

Hospital Group Urges Reforms In Rate Review

To alleviate what it calls serious financial problems caused by the current backlog of hospital rate increase requests before the federal Price Commission, the American Hospital Association has called on the Exception Review Section to "approve immediately all exception requests, subject to possible future adjustment when finally reviewed, which have been submitted to the Price Commission more than three months ago."

In a letter to the nation's nearly 7,000 AHA-member institutions, Dr. Madison B. Brown, acting president of the AHA, said, that "unless a simplified method for exception review" is initiated and "additional manpower are allocated to the exception process, a critical financial crisis will be facing the nation's hospitals."

According to the AHA, the Price Commission has an estimated backlog of 350 requests from individual institutions for rate increases in excess of the 6 per cent allowed without consent from the commission. Many of these requests are more than six months old.

DR. BROWN SAID that, based on an AHA survey, an estimated 20 per cent of the nation's community hospitals will be required to make application for an exception by the end of September. Since the current level of requests is only slightly more than 5 per cent of the total hospitals, this would mean a tripling in the volume of exception requests.

The AHA recommended that the section:

Approve immediately all exception requests — subject to possible future adjustment when finally reviewed — which have been submitted to the Price Commission more than three months ago in order to remove much of the existing backlog of requests.

—Develop a simplified and equitable method of review for all future exception requests in accordance with a reasonable time limit for final decision, such as 30 to 60 days.

—Employ the necessary additional staff to insure that a fair review could be guaranteed and the established time deadline could be met.

Dr. Brown said the most recent Consumer Price Index data suggest that hospital charges rose 3.47 per cent from September, 1971, to May, 1972, in contrast to an eight per cent increase in the previous years for the comparable period.

The Lighter Side

Nation Can Expect Oratory Epidemic

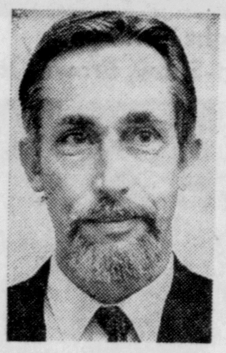
by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Most of us have become relatively immune to statistics. We are no longer flabbergasted, thunderstruck or bowled over by figures that are flabbergasting, thunderstriking or overbowling.

This is particularly true in Washington where the smallest unit of exchange is the billion and the national debt is computed in light years.

Despite being statistically jaded, however, I found myself reeling a bit this week before some "staggering" data that emerged from the International Platform Association (IPA).

Here for the organization's 70th annual convention, an IPA spokesman unleashed some updated estimates on the extent of the oratorical epidemic that is raging across the land.



Dick West

HE SAID the IPA, with a membership of about 13,000 speakers, lecture bureaus and program chairmen, would generate at least 195,000 speaking engagements this year. And that is only a drop in the bucket.

Or, to choose a more appropriate metaphor, a wheeze in the windstorm. For it is calculated that more than two million speeches will be made in New York City alone.

"We can't give a hard figure" on the national total, the IPA official said. "The estimates, however, are staggering."

But statistics, as previously noted, are comparatively meaningless. To appreciate the true magnitude of the lecture circuit expansion, you've got to be a party to it.

As I was the other evening when Newt Faglie from down the street invited me over to his place for a cookout.

THE OTHER guests included the Flinchers from farther down the street and a stranger whom Faglie introduced as Wellsley Fairtongue, "our after-dinner speaker."

Sure enough, once the barbecued muskox disappeared from the grill, Fairtongue arose and presented a 45-minute lecture on "The Care and Feeding of Cost Accountants."

During the question-and-answer period that followed, Fairtongue told me there was a big demand for guest speakers at neighborhood cookouts, family dinners, etc.

"Americans have become so accustomed to after-dinner oratory that a meal isn't complete without it," he said.

He predicted that the next development will be room-service oratory. When hotel and motel guests order meals served in their rooms, the tray will be accompanied by an after-dinner speaker, he explained.

Fairtongue added that he personally was looking forward to becoming the first guest speaker at a honeymoon breakfast in bed.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would it be possible for a woman past 50 to develop progeria? She has been a heavy cigarette smoker for about 35 years. She started premature aging about two years ago. Her face is so full of tiny wrinkles she looks 80 and is shriveling up like a mummy. Also she's getting bald. Is there some particular vitamin she could take that would help her skin? She is not overweight but she refuses to have a checkup.

Dear Reader — No. Progeria is a disease that affects infants and children. It is an endocrine disorder which results in a 10-or 12-year-old boy having many of the manifestations of a 70-or 80-year-old man, including heart disease and baldness. A person who starts developing signs of aging at 50 wouldn't be in that category at all.

There are some points in your letter worth noting. Heavy cigarette smokers are inclined to marked wrinkling of the face, particularly the crow's feet at the edge of the eyes and the network of fine wrinkles. The heavy smoker may have a wrinkled face similar to that of a person 20 years older than his actual age.

If more women realized that heavy cigarette smoking caused premature aging of their face, specifically deep wrinkling, they might think twice about their habit. You can do a little test on this and look around at your acquaintances and you will note that the heavy smokers more often have more deeply wrinkled faces than your friends who are nonsmokers.

There are many causes for loss of hair, but it is more common in women when they reach the middle years or change in life.

The lady that you mentioned should have a medical examination. She may have a marked change in endocrines associated with the change in life. If this is the case and there is no other problem, she might benefit from female hormones.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can you give me some information about wearing an IUD? I have had one about 10 years now and I have never had any trouble with it, not even at the beginning. I haven't had a pelvic examination except for cancer smears in six years. I can't feel the IUD, but then I never could that I remember. Several of my friends who have worn them have recently told me that it is very dangerous to wear one this long as it can work itself into the tissues and cause cancer. Now I'm worried. I'm 32 years old. Is there any truth to this?

Dear Reader — Don't worry! You've been listening to uninformed people who would do better to do more listening and less talking. There is no evidence that the IUD causes cancer. With extensive reading I haven't observed a single reported case of cancer that has been proved to be caused by the IUD. Nor is there any evidence that it works itself into the tissues of the womb. I do approve, however, of regular examination, but perhaps you've been getting one in conjunction with your cancer smear. If there were any real danger in your using the IUD, your doctor would have told you so.

New Issues To Salute Olympic Games

by BERNADINE M. RECHNER

Four U.S. postage stamps saluting the Olympic Games will be issued in Washington, D.C. Aug. 17, preceding the summer games at Munich, Germany. The winter games were held at Sapporo, Japan.

Four denominations — 6 cents, 8 cents, 11 cents and 15 cents — depict an adaptation of the official symbol of four sports: cycling, bobsled racing, skiing and footracing. The stamps will be printed separately.

The stamps reflect the geographical scope of the Olympics. Three of the stamps are for postal rates effective in the United States, Mexico and Canada — 6 cents for postal cards, 8 cents for surface mail and 11 cents for air mail. Fifteen cents is the surface letter rate and air mail post card rate beyond the U.S., Mexico and Canada.

LANCE WYMAN of New York City is making his debut as a designer of U.S. stamps. He has, since 1967, produced 39 stamp designs for Mexico and has six more commissioned.

His designs are paper collages in five colors — red, yellow, blue, black and green which are overlapping silhouettes of the athletes which create an illusion of motion. Wyman's unusual treatment was Descending a Staircase" — a painting that created a sensation at the 1913 armory art show in New York City.

All of the horizontal stamps are on a white background. The Olympic symbol, five interlocking circles in black, yellow, blue, red and green, are set on the "U.S." The stamps will be printed on the Andreotti press in these initial quantities: 6 cents — 40 million; 8 cents — 135 million; 11 cents — 40 million; 15 cents — 20 million.

German archeologists, in 1875, dug away 16 feet of clay above Olympia and uncovered a stadium with an estimated seating capacity of 45,000. It was here the Greeks staged the first Olympic Games, probably in 776 B.C. and probably consisting of one foot race. Coreobus of Elis won that race.

THE STRUCTURE of the Games has changed through the years. The four-horse chariot race was added in the 25th Olympiad. Women, who had not been permitted to view the early Games, participated in swimming events beginning in 1912 and in 1928, competed in track and field events. Winter sports were added in 1920. In the modern Games, which began in 1896, such non-athletic competitions as epic poetry, sculpture, architecture and music have been staged.

Ancient winners were awarded laurel, wild olive and palm wreathes. Modern winners get medals.

No nation officially wins the Olympics, although a point score is kept. The United States has "won" 14 of 19 of the modern Olympic Games. Russia has won two and Germany has won two.

Pierre de Coubertin, a French baron, is the father of the modern Olympic Games, which resumed in 1896 after they had been banned by a Roman Emperior in 394 A.D. The first modern Games were held in Athens with nine nations competing. The 1972 Games will include athletes from more than 100 nations.

Mint stamps commemorating the 1972 summer Olympics may be obtained at your local post office after Aug. 17. First-day cancellations may be obtained from "Postmaster, Olympic Stamps, Washington, D.C." In the upper right-hand corner of your envelope, please specify, in pencil, which denomination stamp you wish affixed. For the 6 cents stamp, remember to affix a 2-cent stamp to your envelope or request two 6-cent stamps to meet the domestic surface rate.

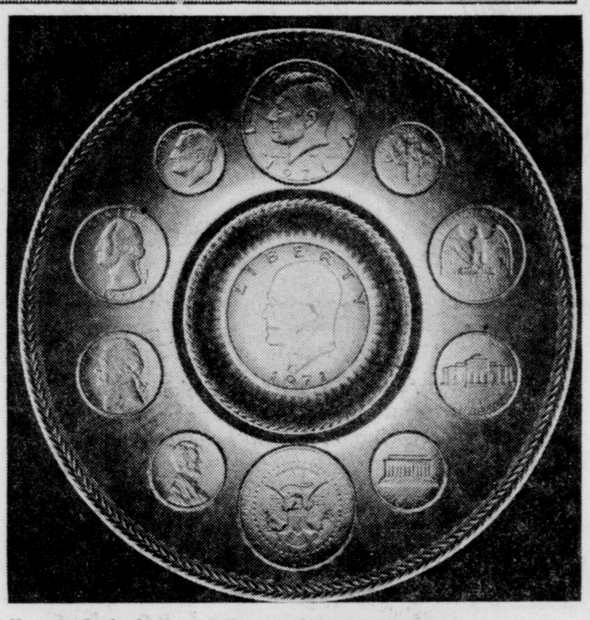
Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed



Because we regretfully overlooked an announcement that the 1971 Crystal Coin-Plate would be released on a somewhat limited basis, many collectors of such pieces were not aware the plate existed.

As an accommodation to readers who collect coin-glass, the manufacturer has graciously consented to extend their tentative closing date.

Consequently, the 1971 Coin-Plate will continue to be available through the finer glassware and gift stores throughout the country as well as through the home office of Imperial Glass at Bellaire, Ohio 43906.

An earlier issue commemorated the last year of silver coinage with the obverse and reverse of a Lincoln cent, Jefferson nickel, Roosevelt dime, and Washington quarter centered by the obverse only of a 1964 Kennedy half-dollar.

THE 1971 Coin-Plate displays the obverse and reverse of all five denominations from the one-cent piece to the Kennedy half-dollar centered by an obverse likeness only of the 1971 Eisenhower dollar.

The meticulously handcrafted presidential portraits create an almost exact reproduction of the six coins presently considered as a type set of current United States coinage. Whether or not this series will be expanded to cover future issues is not known, but I suggest that interested readers request of the manufacturer to be placed on a preferred mailing list to be notified of new designs.

1972 Eisenhower Dollars

The Mint is accepting orders for the new 1972 uncirculated silver Eisenhower dollar as of Aug. 1, 1972.

In a memo from the Bureau of the Mint, Mrs. Mary Brooks, director, announced that order blanks for uncirculated specimens of the Eisenhower silver dollar will be sent to those persons on the Mint mailing list the week of July 24, 1972.

The Mint is accepting orders for these special dollars as of Aug. 1, at the U.S. Assay Office, Numismatic Service, 50 Fell St., San Francisco, Calif.

Orders will be limited to five coins per person at a price of $3 each. Payment may be made by check or money order, but should be made payable to Officer in-Charge, U.S. Assay Office, and each order must be accompanied by a check or money order.

The Mint discontinued accepting orders for the 1972 Eisenhower Proof Dollars July 15 as previously reported in this column.

Bicentennial Issues

According to an article in Coin World, the Mint and the Postal Service are "locked in" to a production of two million American Revolution Bicentennial Philatelic - Numismatic Combination First Day Covers. Ordering was confined to the month of July.

The Mint's production schedule — because of its commitment to the striking of domestic coinage, will allow for the striking of only two million Bicentennial medals for insertion in the First Day Cover.

Insufficient Training Imperils Security Guards, Public

(Second of a two-part series on the burgeoning security guard business in the United States.)

by CAROL RHYNE

The security guard watching you as you browse through merchandise at the neighborhood shopping center may be dangerous to you, himself and his employer.

Because of their lack of knowledge and training, security guards have been criticized for acting impetuously in protecting their assigned domain, sometimes causing injury to an innocent person resulting in a jail sentence for the guard and lawsuits for his employer.

In the last decade the number of persons employed by private contract guard services has doubled. Those employed in the private sector of the security field number about 290,000. This makes up 36 per cent of all security personnel including public and private police and government guards.

Because of the tremendous growth in the private security industry, the U.S. Justice Department has taken a closer look at the guards hired to supplement public police.

In a recent study commisioned by the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice of the Justice Department, the Rand Corporation "think tank" described the typical guard as "an aging white male, poorly educated, usually untrained, and very poorly paid." The report said the average guard is between 40 and 55 years old. Younger students and teachers sometimes work part-time.

GUARDS COMMONLY learn about their duties from an on-the-job training program and many never get any formal instruction on the laws of the state in which they operate or the extent of their authority.

"Trained and responsible guards are desperately needed, but in general, the level of training is low," Robert Dodge, industrial security instructor at Harper College, said.

Dodge said much of the problem stems from the low wages paid to security guards. "The average salary for a security guard in the area is a little under $3 an hour for guards employed by a security agency and a little more for guards employed by an individual company.

"This means that we usually get the people who are older or not as well trained for these positions," he said. "The companies should raise wages high enough to attract good people. They need to remember, they're not hiring a body, they're hiring a brain."

One of the few private security services in the Northwest suburbs with a formal training program for its guards is the Illinois Counties Detective and Patrol Agency in Mount Prospect.

KENNETH FLETCHER, owner and chief of Illinois Counties, said his company currently has 40 hours a year of classroom instruction in addition to on-the-job training, but he wishes there was time for 200 hours more.

Fletcher said the course, offered each spring, is training for the firm's new employes and a refresher course for the "old hands." It includes lectures on industrial security, investigations, first aid, narcotics, traffic control, firefighting procedures, public relations and sidearms practice.

Many other agencies in the area reported the cost of a formal training program was prohibitive, but each emphasized that a newly hired guard was given some type of instruction, usually by the manager, before going out on his own.

A security guard is not a policeman. But because of the nature of his job, the guard sometimes finds his duties overlap the role of the policeman. Like the police, the guard is charged with protecting life and property, but the guard's responsibilities extend only as far as the grounds of his employer.

EVEN ON THE property of his employer, the security guard's powers are limited, especially in the use of a gun.

Dodge said one of the most potentially dangerous situations is when an untrained guard is armed with a gun without really knowing how or when to use it.

"If a company decides to arm its guards, it better have a good weapons training program, a legal program to explain when arms can be used, a thorough personnel screening program and it should provide adequate weapons, liability insurance and employe compensation in case the guard is injured while protecting the company," he said.

"The illegal use of a weapon by a guard can result in voluntary manslaughter with a penalty of one to 20 years in prison or subject both the guard and his company to a lawsuit," attorney Edward Downs, Prospect Heights, said.

Downs, who teaches a criminal law course at Harper College, said a few years ago a security guard shot and injured a man taking food from a vending machine in a Northwest suburban hospital. As a result of the incident, the guard was fired, and a lawsuit was slapped on the hospital, he said.

ACCORDING TO Illinois statutes, a security guard can use force likely to cause death or great bodily harm only if the guard "reasonably believes that such force is necessary to prevent imminent death or great bodily harm to himself or another, or the commission of a forcible felony" (armed robbery, arson, murder, rape, kidnaping).

More to Come (10all

There are state licensing regulations for anyone engaged in the private detective business, but there are few laws setting standards for the individual security guard. In Illinois, statutes require a security guard to be at least 21 years old and a citizen of the United States with no convictions for any felony or any crime involving moral turpitude.

Recently Rolling Meadows passed a local ordinance regulating the activities of private policemen and police-for-hire firms in that city. The ordinance requires security guards to register with the city police. It also sets standards for their uniforms so they will not be mistaken for public police.

Besides the limited powers of a private security force, the main difference between a private guard and a policeman is that the guard's job is to prevent, detect and report crimes on private property. The policeman's job is general law enforcement and apprehension of criminals.

Security personnel have been criticized for lack of training, but there are few places other than police academies where the necessary training is available, and many of the better security guards and security managers are former city or military policemen.

Harper College in Palatine is one of the few schools in the Chicago area where a prospective security manager can learn how to set up an effective security force and study the laws under which he must operate.

"THE INDUSTRIAL and retail security program at Harper does not teach guards how to handle firearms. We teach techniques and the theoretical knowledge necessary to be a private security manager," Dodge said.

Dodge said guards who have received some legal instruction are more conscious when they can or can't act. "When the guards and security managers know what the law is, they'll have a better idea when a person is violating it and what to do," he said.

Dodge said he sees greater federal pressures in the future for companies to secure their own businesses against theft and fire as well as to provide safe working conditions for employes.

"The National Bank Protection Act has forced banks to beef up their own security, and there is talk of assigning criminal penalties to an employer who doesn't provide a safe working environment," he said.

"It has been predicted that by 1980 retail losses due to employe theft and shoplifting will reach $5.6 billion and more than a million persons will be employed in private security," Dodge said.

"We'll never be able to completely stop theft, but a trained security force can help deny the easy opportunity to commit crimes against ourselves and property."

PLAINCLOTHES WOMEN security guards are being employed more in local shopping centers such as Randhurst as shoplifting tops the $2 million mark nationwide.

After The Flood: Part Two

South Dakota's Native Son Lends A Helping Hand . . .

(Second of Two Related Articles)

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

CUSTER, S.D. — The 450 pounds of buffalo meat ("tastes a little like roast beef") had all been consumed. Buffalo and beans ("a typical western meal") had been the main fare, garnished with 30 different salads.

Thus was the 50th birthday of George McGovern, presidential candidate, celebrated in his native South Dakota. "And when they get ready to add the face of George McGovern to Mount Rushmore," said a press wit, "they'll order the rocks combed forward."

Everybody laughed, including his brother Larry, who had come all the way from Minneapolis, and his daughter Susan, juggling a grandchild on her lap, and his sister-in-law Ila, Eleanor McGovern's identical twin. The hair of George McGovern is noticeably sparse on top and combed sideways to cover the expanse.

"I love this part of the country," the senator said dutifully when his chance came. "It's a great place to come to refresh one's spirit."

STRAIGHT from the convention success of Miami, the McGovern party had retreated to the Black Hills for two weeks of ostensible seclusion. The senator was in a $30-a-night log cabin in the Ponderosa pines of Sylvan Lake Lodge just off Rte. 89. And 14 other smaller cabins, at $15 a night, were delegated to lesser members of the party, while half an hour down the mountain in Custer, "the town with the gunsmoke flavor," half a hundred of the nation's press clustered in a motel.

It wasn't the way you or I would want to spend a summer vacation. Or a birthday party.

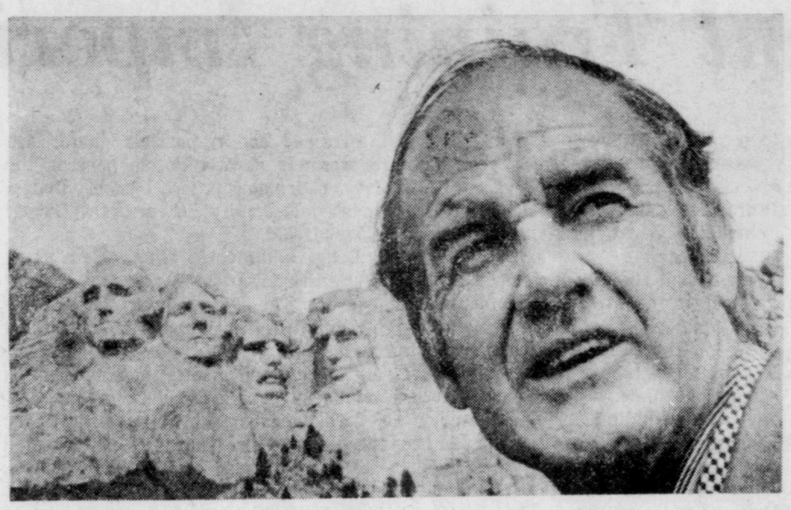
But George McGovern has already gotten used to the Secret Service men at his elbow and the jostling and the ever-present TV cameramen and the ladies gushing at him. In his home country he remembered names. An elderly man snapped an Instamatic with a flashbulb. McGovern looked up and with his teeth-baring grin said instantly, "Hello, Ralph."

He is too serious a man to relax even with this fetishistic crowd. "I sincerely believe we can win this election," he said while slivers of birthday cake (shaped like a White House) were being gulped, "because we've kept faith with the citizens of this land."

GEORGE McGOVERN had obviously come home also to call attention to the Black Hills area which has been hurting as a vacationland since the disastrous flood of six weeks ago which raged down its canyons and through Rapid City.

"Is Mount Rushmore still there?" asked one telephone caller from the Midwest. So McGovern had his picture taken against a backdrop of the carved granite heads of the former presidents to show it still is.

His presence as a vacationer meant a lot, too, to people like Bill and Ann Hopkins of Keystone, a tourist center in the hills. The flood down Grizzly Canyon washed away their antique and curio shop. Bill, a retired air force lieutenant colonel, had built it himself. Their loss was $55,000, including $5,000 in Black Hills gold. They had been open for business exactly three days. They bought a three-unit cabin, moved it onto the old site and have reopened. The McGovern presence, they hope, will help tourism and bring customers.



George McGovern: Yes, it's still there . . .

"At least," said Hoadley Dean, "they're not getting us mixed up with North Dakota. You know, the tourist business started here in 1927 when Calvin Coolidge spent the summer at the state game lodge. Now we've got another national figure. I issued the invitation, as a good Republican, for McGovern to come here the day before the California primary."

HOADLEY DEAN is a civic leader of nearby Rapid City, where the ravages of flood waters are still visible. But the Black Hills, the natives say, have never looked so beautiful this time of year because the valleys have remained a lush green deep into summer.

"The grass," said Dean, "is now a grab-and-a-half, two grabs high. Never seen it so good. The cattle marketed this fall should weigh very well."

Hoadley, as "a good Republican," didn't want to weigh McGovern's election prospects at the same time. In South Dakota, however, pride in the local product frequently transcends political affiliation. Carl Burgess was a South Dakota state legislator for 18 years, the speaker of the House and majority leader. He is a Republican. Burgess was at the birthday party for McGovern. He was entitled.

When McGovern first got the idea of running for president four years ago, he went to Burgess for advice. Carl patted him on the back. He also gave McGovern a check for $5,000.

"It's worth it to me," said Carl, "just to see George McGovern come back here." Burgess owns a wild-west tourist attraction called Rockerville in the Black Hills.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

Arlington Heights is a large, primarily residential suburb located along the northwest "finger of communities" paralleling the C&NW Railroad. In 1972 the town's population is approximately 70,000, which is a 155.3% increase since 1960. Originally called Dunton after its founder, the village changed its name to Arlington Heights because of its altitude, 704 ft. above sea level (106 ft. higher than Chicago). A good highway system is readily available but the C&NW remains the primary method of commuter travel, and nearly 6,000 Loop commuters use these facilities daily.

VILLAGE HISTORY:

The actual history of Arlington Heights began with the arrival of Asa Dunton and his family from New York in 1836. Dunton took a homestead here for himself and each of his two sons, then left the area. His son, William, returned to lay out the town along the Illinois and Wisconsin Railroad tracks.

In the next two decades the town flourished. A hotel was built; a sewing machine factory and foundry begun. The village suffered during the depression but revived during the post World War II prosperity and since that time has experienced a fantastic growth, both in size and population. While performing all the necessary services to keep pace with this rapid growth, the village has developed comprehensive long-range plans for improving the downtown area and is attempting to attract industry into other areas of the village to balance the community and stabilize the tax base.

MEDIAN INCOME:

Arlington Heights	$16,590
Northwest Suburban Area (avg.)	14,140
Chicago	9,883

SCHOOLS:

In Arlington Heights proper 15 elementary public schools (including 4 junior highs) and 5 high schools. Arlington Heights now has grown into two neighboring school districts which provide comparable educational facilities. Pupil-teacher ratio is 22.1 with $780 spent annually per pupil.

Parochial: Catholic, 2 elementary, 1 girls' school, 1 boys' high school, 1 junior high school. Lutheran: 1 elementary

All Arlington Heights residents pay taxes to three school districts: an elementary school district, High School District 214 and Harper Junior College District 512. All school districts are governed alike in that a seven-member school board, elected by the public on staggered three-year terms, is charged with full power to provide a sufficient number of schools and to operate those schools and levy taxes to support them. Each school board selects the district superintendent (or President, in the case of the junior college), the administrative head of the district, whose duties include employment and supervision of all personnel, public relations and all phases of educational programs and policies.

VILLAGE GOVERNMENT:

Incorporated as a village in 1887, Arlington Heights derives all its powers from the state legislature, principally as contained in the Revised Cities and Village Act of 1941, as amended. Since 1954, the village has operated under the council-manager form of government in which an elected president and board of trustees determine all policy and appoint a village manager to administer all functions of the village.

TOWN SHOPPING:

Downtown contains 4 main streets plus Dunton and Evergreen Courts. Other shopping centers are Arlington Market, Westgate Park and Shop, Northpoint and Surrey Ridge. Randhurst and Woodfield shopping centers are within a few minutes driving time.

CHURCHES:

Baptist, Catholic, Christian, Christian Science, Church of Latter Day Saints, Congregational, Episcopal, Evangelical Free, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, Reformed Seventh Day Adventist, United Church of Christ, United Presbyterian and Unity.

RECREATION AREAS:

Arlington Park Race Track contains golf course, restaurants, hotel and other sporting projects; several more being developed. Village park property extends over 100 acres including 6 community parks and 15 neighborhood parks; 5 public pools and 1 indoor pool. Two forest preserve areas; 10 private & semiprivate golf courses within 5 miles.

MEDICAL:

Village served by Northwest Community Hospital in the village and St. Alexius Hospital in nearby Elk Grove Village. Several professional buildings and approximately 60 doctors and 36 dentists.

TRANSPORTATION:

Express C&NW trains reach Loop in 33 minutes (locals in 47 minutes), and United Motor Coach buses take 78 minutes.

CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS:

Numerous social and civic clubs for men and women.

Home Selling Is For Professionals

The unexpected visitor can be a nuisance to even the most gregarious people. Even when you do expect callers, there are plenty of times you'd rather be doing something else.

But these "invasions" of your privacy or personal plans are just one of the risks you take when you decide to sell your own home by yourself. Guarding against them is one of the reasons most sellers prefer to work with professional Realtors.

"For Sale by Owner" signs are an open invitation for callers any time of the day or night. And when you are trying to sell your own home it is virtually impossible to make plans for weekend trips, or even evenings out, noted Robert G. Walters, vice president and district sales manager of both the Arlington Heights, 220 E. Northwest Hwy., and the Mount Prospect, 21 E. Prospect Ave., offices of Baird & Warner, Inc., and Michael J. Del Re, sales manager of the Mount Prospect office.

"The homeowner, in effect, is holding an open house at all hours for anybody who wants to see the home. He has neither the experience nor the skill to determine if the caller is a bona fide buyer prospect or just a curiosity seeker."

With luck, a seller may be able to differentiate between the qualified buyer and the curiosity seeker. "But it's been our experience that the owner needs all the help he can get," noted the Baird & Warner executives.

"Selling homes is the Realtor's business. Part of his job is to screen these people most actively and vigorously looking for a home from the curious or unqualified," they added.

When a Realtor brings someone to a residence, he will have first interviewed and determined that the buyer can afford the price and is in a position to go through with the purchase if he likes the home.

"A Realtor will also list the home with co-operating brokers through a multiple listing organization if one operates in the area. This means that the home is circulated through dozens of real estate offices in the community where it will be exposed to those persons most actively looking," they said.

The listing includes all vital statistics — its age, condition, architectural style, number of rooms, asking price and taxes.

The Realtor also assumes the administrative burdens of scheduling visits. All offers to buy are funneled through the office of the Realtor with whom the home is listed.

The seller is notified in advance when the Realtor wants to show the home to a prospect.

This means the wife will have ample time to prepare her home for showing. "She won't be burdened with keeping the house in 'just so' condition at all times because of unexpected callers."

It also means the family will not be burdened by sightseers at inconvenient times, such as at dinner time. Further it means the seller doesn't have to worry about being home all the time for phone calls or be present for the showing of the home — freeing the family on weekdays, weekends or whenever — to do as they had planned." They added that Realtors can often do a more effective job when the family is away.

The experienced Realtor has the knowhow to show the home to its best advantage. The visitor feels more comfortable to examine the home thoroughly and ask questions that might embarrass the owner.

"Showing and selling a major investment item like a home is an exacting task and best left to professionals."

Lower Taxes In Rolling Hills Of St. Charles

People buying homes these days have many, many different areas to investigate before they can be sure where they will live. Principal and interest payments alone cannot give an entirely true picture of all that is involved. Take, for instance, insurance and tax payments.

The average size lot in the Rolling Hills of St. Charles is 8,000 square feet. Whereas in some areas, the tax assessment on a lot of this size may run as high as 7.85%, and the usual rate ranges from 6.45% to 7.01% . . . in Rolling Hills, the tax rate is 5.01%, or $600.00. Yet this community is convenient to anywhere in Chicago. Located in the Fox River Valley, known for its garden-like settings and actual "Rolling Hills" . . . there is no prettier place to live. To say he least, savings like this in a place like Rolling Hills at today's taxes are certainly rare.

In this age of record-home building, insurance payments have become another major factor. Communities are rated by "classes." Some areas having a high 9-rating, have high insurance costs. Many areas around Chicago have as high as 8 or 9 ratings. A few areas, like St. Charles, have a rating of 5. To the home buyer, this means savings on insurance costs.

Available in Rolling Hills of St. Charles are a wide range of homes offering a variety of features. Two, three and four-bedroom homes start at $27,500. See the beautiful landscape and clean, comfortable surroundings at Rolling Hills . . . or call today.

For full details on all homesites available in Rolling Hills of St. Charles, call Welcome Homes . . . the St. Charles Number is (312) 584-8944 or call the general office at (312) 889-8955.

Warnings Voiced By Florida Study Of Mobile Parks

Every year now the number of Florida immigrants finding permanent residence in the Sunshine State would make a good size city of over 175,000 people. That is more than 3300 people every week who have decided that the Florida climate and lifestyle is for them. One out of 6 will live in a mobile home and by 1980 estimates place mobile home living to be one out of four.

Since Florida is the nation's leader in mobile home shipments it is a wonder that there are still not enough spaces in some areas. The pressure of the expansion of land values and the lack of sufficient new construction of conventional housing in the larger urban areas has created a problem for prospective mobile home buyers. The tremendous acceptance of Walt Disney World south of Orlando has brought a boom to Daytona Beach 75 miles away and to Vero Beach 102 miles away.

Cars waiting to get into Disney World stretched back as far as 25 miles on the expressways leading to Disney World last Christmas and Thanksgiving holidays. Severe crowding is true with mobile home parks too. Spaces near large centers are scarce and it has become a seller's market. It has become tough to find a space for a mobile home in a park and many that have found space, pay upwards of $200 per month for rent and financing costs. Should an outsider appear, the park operator will want to sell him a mobile home and the mark-up is usually 50 per cent or more by the park operators.

THE SCARCITY IN populated places is such that mobile home dealers even bid against each other for the right to rent space inside a mobile home park when it becomes available. The going prices range from $100 to $150. They do this so that they will have a space available for a customer who buys a mobile home so he may have a place to move it.

Of course he pays rent on the space until it is sold and then recovers his rents by passing them on to the customer. It's a take it or leave it situation in most cases. Dealers in mobile homes often admit they lose sales because propsective customers do not buy because they have no place to go.

Prices in many mobile home park subdivisions usually start around $4000 for 4500 square foot lots. This is approximately 1/8 of an acre. Each additonal 500 square feet increases the price by $500. Some lakefront property lots cost as much as $9500 for 1/10 of an acre. Even so, there seems to be a brisk business.

Many of the practices cited are seriously being discussed in the state legislature as well as in county commission meetings. Until the change is made there will continue to be many practices that should have regulation. New ideas of licensing new mobile home parks to control their density and methods of operation are being considered. New parks and subdivisions that cater to mobile home dwellers will in the future tend to complement adjacent existing parks or be nearby existing properties.

THE PHENOMENAL growth of central Florida due to the new Walt Disney World has made real estate and new building a premium compared to what it was just 2 or 3 years ago.

Many young couples or retirement couples are solving the problem of crowding by moving to smaller communities beyond the limits of higher economic pressures. They find many smaller communities supply their needs, yet they stay in the area of growth because modern highways speed their way to larger centers.

The interesting part of the above study, according to Joe Asbury, Realtor of Crescent City, Florida, is that he can drive to Daytona Beach or St. Augustine within one hour and yet he finds newcomers who want to be "downtown" and put up with the pressures and higher costs.

He says, "People should expand their viewpoint and look around a bit. They should move out a ways closer to nature where they can hunt or fish to their hearts' content. Joe represents Chicago-based Branigar Organizations' new development called Whispering Pines where roomy mobile homes can be placed on lots of one acre or more. The location is a mile from Lake George, with access rights for all homesite owners.

Formerly a native of Indiana, Joe Asbury decided after a successful business career to move to Florida 20 years ago. He started a small insurance and real estate service in Crescent City and has prospered handling local real estate in the county. Joe Asbury believes there are greater opportunities today because "Florida still has a long way to grow."

Company Assists New-Home Buyers

Families whose plans to purchase homes in new residential developments have been thwarted because they have trouble disposing of former residences soon may have help with their problems.

POTERE, Inc., America's pioneer home-buying company, is studying possible extension of its present equity purchases in the corporate transferee and re-sale housing markets in order assist buyers of new homes.

Daniel C. Hanrahan, POTERE's president, reported exploratory discussions with several major developers of new housing. Test transactions are in progress, Hanrahan said, "to help us develop a track record."

UNDER THE POTERE Equity Purchase (PEP) program, Hanrahan's firm offers to purchase homes for appraised valuation, less anticipated expenses of re-sales to subsequent buyers.

In the corporate program which Hanrahan started in 1964, POTERE contracts with companies to take over former residences of transferred employees, paying cash for their equities. Costs are paid by employers.

In the PEP program, first offered to individual sellers in 1971, estimated costs are subtracted from appraised values of properties and sellers are offered cash for their resulting net equities. If expenses prove to have been over-estimated, a seller is reimbursed after POTERE's re-sale of the home. If costs exceed estimates, however, the loss is covered by POTERE and participating real estate brokers with no recourse to the original seller, Hanrahan pointed out.

"Under both programs, a seller can go to his new community assured of having a known amount of money on an agreed date, for purchase of housing there," Hanrahan said. "We also provide that if a seller can realize a higher net return by selling to another buyer in the 60 to 120 days between accepting our offer and closing of the sale to us, POTERE will release its interest in the property."

POTERE works through real estate brokers. Because homes in most new real estate developments are sold directly by developers, PEP activity has ben concentrated in the broker-oriented re-sale market.

"WE FELT A void existed in the new-home field, because very few residential developers have provisions to help a prospective buyer cash out his equity in an old house in order to buy a new home," Hanrahan said. "Also, because POTERE is licensed in all 48 contiguous states, we provide a truly interstate program, offering to buy his home whether a prospect is moving across town or across the country."

Hanrahan would fill the void by enabling the buyer of a home in a new development to make his agreement contingent on receiving a POTERE offer that is satisfactory to him to take over his former house, then providing cash when it's needed.

Several large-scale real estate developers have expressed interest in POTERE's program, Hanrahan reported.

"They are awaiting economic evaluation of pilot transactions before deciding whether to announce availability to their prospects of the equity purchase plan," he added.

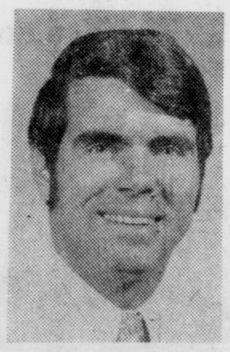
Robert Brissey Is Promoted By Branigar

Robert Brissey, Reedsburg, Wis., has been appointed assistant vice president of Branigar Lake Properties of Wisconsin, Inc. He will headquarter at Dutch Hollow Lake, Branigar's current community and vacation development in Wisconsin.



Robert Brissey

Brissey, a 1963 graduate of Western Illinois University, Macomb, joined the Branigar Organization in 1969. He has been a sales representative at Apple Canyon Lake, another Branigar community near Galena, Ill. Last year, he won the "Salesman of the Year Award" at Apple Canyon Lake.

At Dutch Hollow Lake, Brissey will train sales staff and assist in directing the lake project, now in its second full summer season.

Construction has been completed on the 60-foot tall dam and water is filling the future 210-acre lake. The Dutch Hollow clubhouse and swimming pool were expected to be completed July Fourth.

Only 1200 homesites are being sold at the 2,350-acre recreational community, with more than 500 acres set aside for the "Greenway System" of woods and meadows.

Sales offices are now open daily from 10 a.m. until dusk, with tours of the project available via four-wheel drive vehicles. Dutch Hollow Lake can be reached by taking Route 23 and 33 from the Reedsburg-Lake Delton I-94 turnoff and following the signs from La Valle.

Model Home Viewing Tips Offered

Chicago area homebuilders are forecasting a big and busy summer home shopping season and in the western portion of the metropolitan area especially they are putting finishing touches on many new models.

Morton E. Silfen, sales vice president for Hoffman Rosner Corporations, a major homebuilder and community developer, recommends advance planning to make your home tours rewarding.

Silfen observes that whether your mission is to find a new home or a decorating idea there is a right way and a wrong way to tour a model home to make it an enjoyable and efficient experience for all.

Here are the specific suggestions Silfen makes to help you make your model home inspections pleasurable:

1. Try to schedule your visits to model homes before 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Generally, the largest crowds show up after 2 p.m., which means you'll be able to see and do more if you're not caught in the crowd.

2. Dress comfortably. Women are urged to wear low-heel shoes or flats to avoid fatigue. High heels are not only more tiring but may cause the wearer to trip or to sink into lawns.

3. Use the designated parking space provided by the builder. Avoid parking where you'll block drives, walks, and other cars. Parking in the right place is your assurance that your car won't be blocked when you're ready to leave.

4. Most builders welcome visitors with children, but hope you either carry small toddlers or else hold them firmly by the hand.

5. You'll have an easier time, your shoes will stay clean, and so will the model homes if you stay on the walks and driveways.

6. Some builders rope off the interior of the house. This is done primarily to keep traffic moving in an orderly manner and to keep room interiors looking fresh, so it's best to stay behing the ropes.

7. Furniture in model homes is for show, not for use. If everyone used the chairs and sofas in a model home, the furnishings would quickly become worn and unattractive. If you become tired while out visiting model homes, you're welcome to use the comfortable chairs in the sales or information office.

8. To keep the models looking their best, most builders keep the water in bathrooms turned off. Adequate rest room facilities and drinking water are available for your use in the sales office.

9. Because of the heavy traffic through model homes, and also because of the possible danger to furnishings, most builders ask that you don't smoke while in the models.

10. If you carry a note pad and pencil to jot down questions as you go through a model, you'll remember pertinent points to discuss later on with the salesman. Most builders will be glad to tell you where they purchased their furniture, or who did their decorating, or anything else about the home.

11. To help keep the model homes comfortable, builders hope you'll close the outside doors firmly as you enter and leave. This will keep the model warm in winter when the furnace is operating and cool in the summer when the air conditioning is on.

12. Carrying food such as popcorn, ice cream bars and soft drinks through a model inevitably leads to mishaps.

13. During busy periods, salesmen may get tied up with customers and prospects. They'd like to get to you as soon as they can, so be patient. When your turn comes, the salesman will be happy to spend as much time with you as you require.

14. You're welcome to the literature on the model homes in the sales office. But since these booklets may cost 50 cents each, the builder hopes you'll treat them with care and not scoop them up indiscriminately.

15. Builders expect a normal amount of wear and tear in model homes. But they will appreciate your thoughtfulness if you point out any items that may have become broken or out of order.

"In short," Silfen said, "if you regard the model homes just as you would the home of a close friend, you'll enjoy it more."

Condominium Complex Borders Country Club

The demand for quality housing is so strong according to vice president Manuel S. Kramer of Hollywood Builders, that over 60 condominiums in Colony Country on Old Orchard were sold before the models were built and the sales office fully staffed.

Colony Country on Old Orchard in Mount Prospect is a $100,000,000 development on 230 acres bordering the Old Orchard Country Club and will be the most luxurious golfing community in the country, said Kramer.

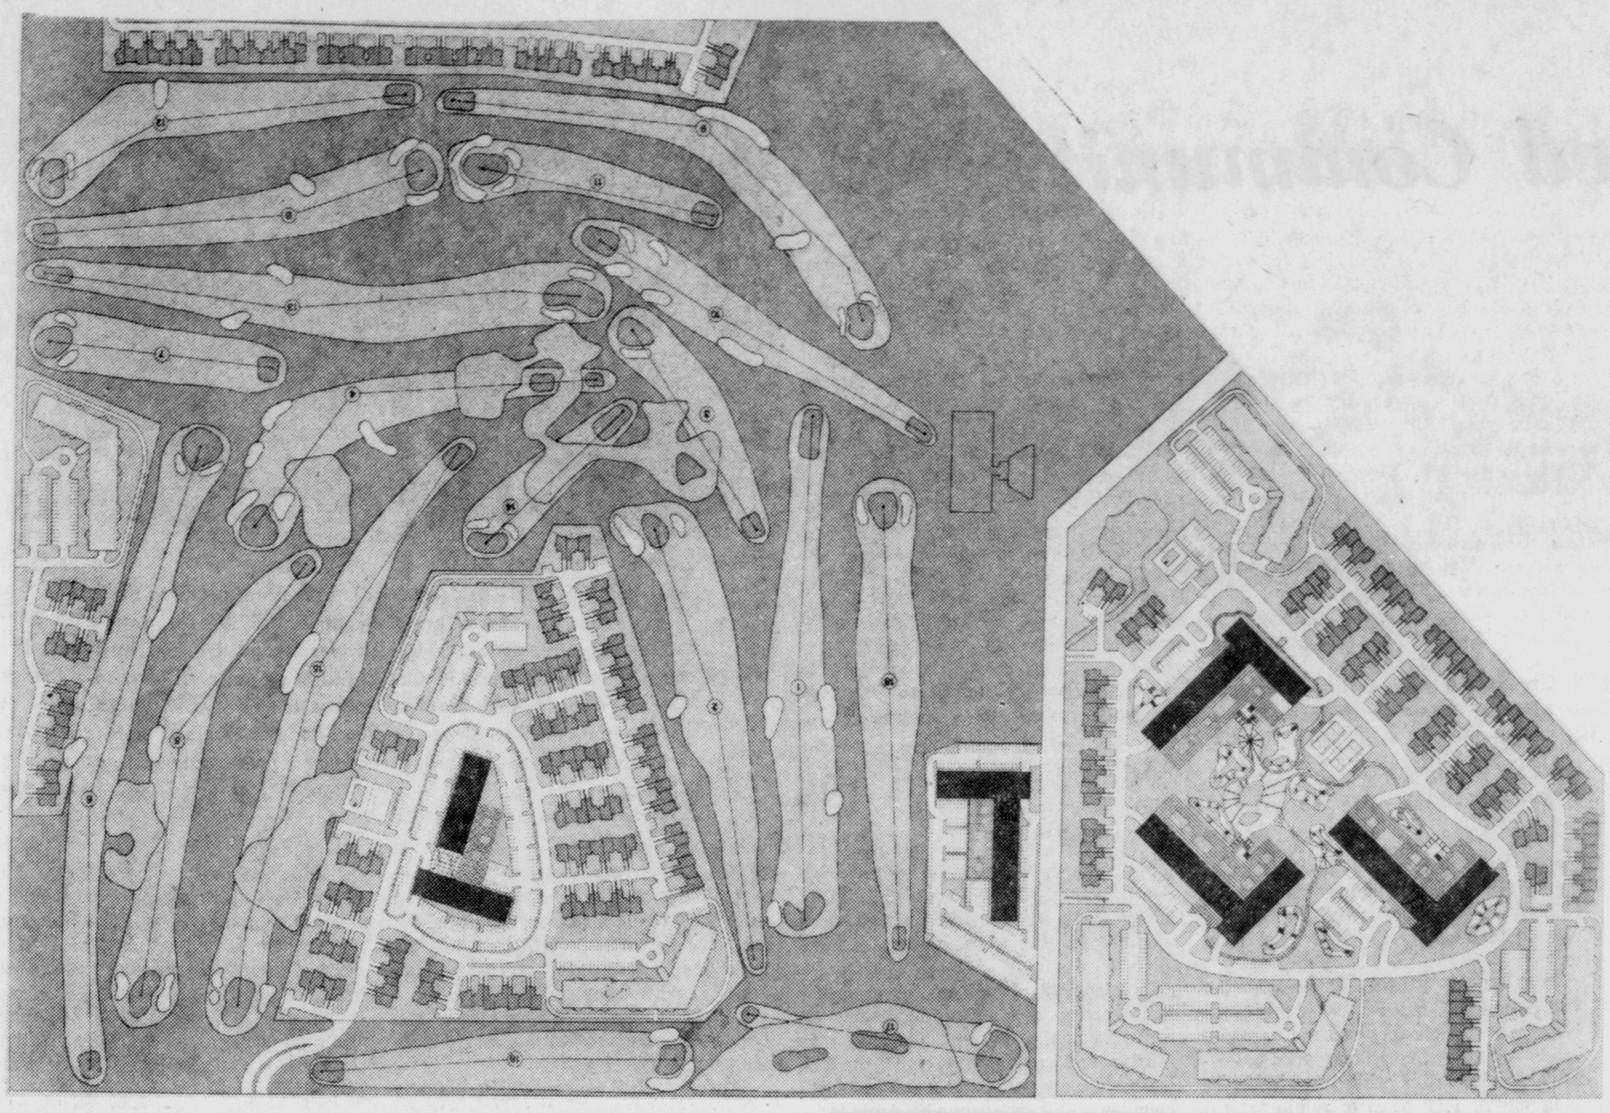
He said the building construction was slowed due to strikes, but "sales are being made on units because of the amenities and also the fact that the open country view is excellent from every home."

The sales office for pre-view is at 650 W. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect. Condominium models are open for inspection and the four country home models will be ready soon.

A club house with indoor-outdoor swimming pools, saunas, game room, hospitality room, exercise room and tennis courts will form a center for social recreational programs.

The 230-acre private compound, enclosed within the borders of Old Orchard Country Club will be completely maintained by the Colony Country Club Homeowners Association. The ecology of the golf course with its trees, fairways and ponds will be protected by a 50-year covenant.

Condominiums begin at $31,900 and go up to $55,900. The condominiums are one, two and three-bedrooms in Essex, Brittany and Claridge models. The Country Homes three-bedroom units with 2½ baths are in Dorchester, Mayfair, Canterbury and Windsor models.



COLONY COUNTRY on Old Orchard in Mount Prospect, on 230 acres bordering Old Orchard Country Club, is the largest development in the luxury housing field in Chicagoland. The ecology of the golf course and open space is guaranteed by a 50-year covenant.

$23 Million Planned Community

Plans for a $23 million planned community in west suburban Darien, about two miles south of Downers Grove, have been announced by Hartford-Midwest Development Corp.

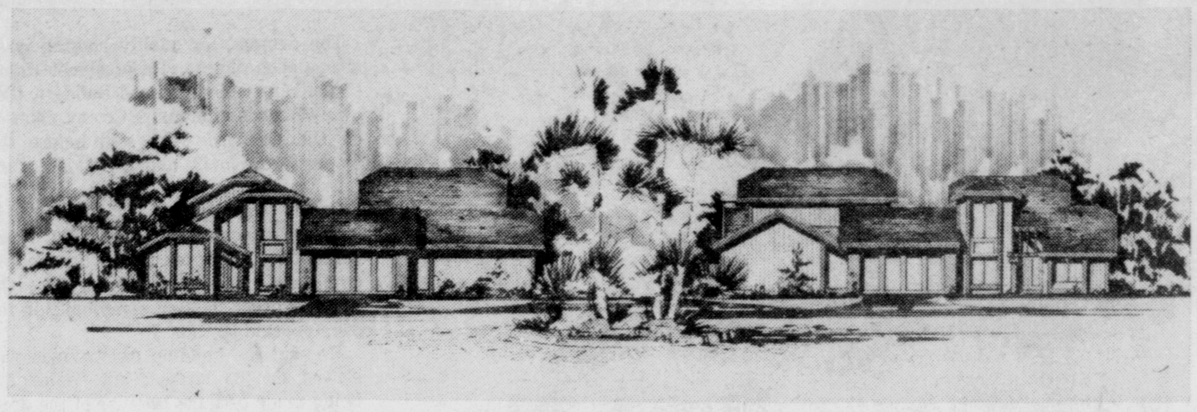
The new community, to be known as Saw Mill Creek, will contain 764 housing units priced from $25,000 including single-family homes, townhomes and condominium apartments, according to David Pattis, president of the development firm. Construction of the community, which will take about five years to complete, is scheduled to get underway early this fall.

Saw Mill Creek will be built on an 81.5-acre site about two miles north of the Argonne National Laboratory and alongside the Carriage Way West golf course development. It is south of Plainfield Road and west of Williams Street.

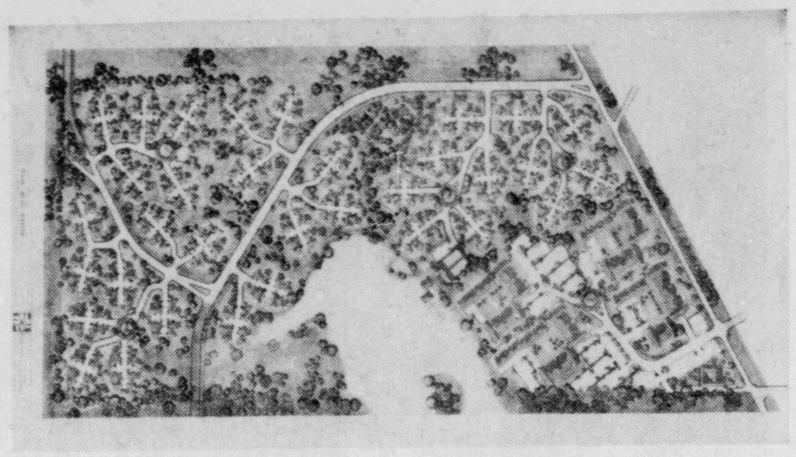
Bob Cowhey, vice president in charge of the development, said "The overall plan will stress recreation and open space. The focal point will be a large central lake with a marina facility. In addition we will have a 3½-acre wooded park, a 4-acre recreational field, a minimum of six swimming pools, tennis courts, and smaller neighborhood parks with tot lots."

Landscape design also provides for sitting areas, landscaped malls, and pedestrian walkways throughout a continuous greenbelt.

"The design idiom is for a planned environment of clustered homes and low-rise apartment buildings with extensive landscaping, winding roads and walks, and plenty of parks and open space," Cowhey said. "All homes have been designed to take advantage of this relationship with the outdoors, with a minimum of maintenance by the individual owners."



SINGLE-FAMILY HOMES at Saw Mill Creek will be built in clusters of eight homes or four pairs of semi-attached homes like those shown in artist's sketch. Each cluster of four buildings will be built around a winding road and landscaped cul-de-sac. B. A. Berkus Associates architects selected a contemporary, modified Western architectural style featuring natural wood and brick exteriors to complement the environmental character of the $23 million planned community by Hartford-Midwest Development Corp.



A LARGE CENTRAL lake with a marina facility, right, center, is the focal point of Saw Mill Creek, a new planned community in Darien announced by Hartford-Midwest Development Corp. Master site plan demonstrates developer's stress on recreation and open space. First construction phase will be 264 single-family homes in clusters around winding roads and landscaped cul-de-sacs.

THE FIRST PHASE of construction will be the production of 264 single-family homes in clusters around winding roads and attractively landscaped cul-de-sacs. Each cluster will comprise eight buildings or four pairs of semi-attached homes. The individual homes will be joined by garage areas but will face away from each other for privacy and view.

The firm will offer 176 three-bedroom 2½-bath homes with 1,600 square feet of living space at $35,000 and 88 two-bedroom two-bath units of 1,200 square feet at $32,000.

Each home will have an attached two-car garage and private patio.

The architectural flavor of the community designed by B. A. Berkus Associates of Los Angeles, Chicago and Washington is a contemporary, modified Western. Exteriors will feature natural wood and brick, while interiors will forcus on open space design.

Maintenance of common spaces between homes and between clusters of homes will be provided at a small monthly fee via a homeowners association.

Development of at least three recreational areas with swimming pools, the central complex on the lakeshore with marina and community center, tot lots, wooded areas, parks and green belts will coincide with construction of single-family homes.

COWHEY SAID conventional financing with down payments as low as five to 10 per cent, will be provided to purchasers at Saw Mill Creek.

"Our multi-family units won't be started for another two or three years," Cowhey said. "Our present design calls for 34 townhomes and 466 apartments in this later phase."

The two-and three-bedroom townhomes will sell for $28,000 to $32,000 while condominium apartments, from one to three bedrooms, will be offered at $25,000 to $32,000.

"Our multi-family units will also be clustered in a manner to emphasize comfort, privacy and a pleasant view. We'll have four quadrangels. There will be buildings of four or six stories at two sides with a building of townhomes along the third side. The fourth side will remain open, leading to covered parking areas," said Cowhey.

AT THE CENTER of each cluster will be a swimming pool with a large, landscaped terrace.

"These central terraces will actually have a double function," explained Cowhey. "They will provide esthetically pleasing open space between buildings and they will also serve as the roof for large underground parking areas."

There will be at least one underground parking space for each unit in addition to one space of surface parking for each unit. Cowhey pointed out that the natural terrain will be supplemented by berms and contours so that parking areas will be subordinated.

"While you cannot escape the necessity of large parking areas in a large complex, it is possible to prevent the sea-of-pavement view."

A small convenience shopping center is also planned for future development.

Meanwhile, Cowhey noted, downtown Darien is only ½ mile from Saw Mill Creek, the Oak Brook Shopping Center is about 15 minutes away. The Stevenson Expressway is approximately 1½-miles south of the new community and the estimated travel time to downtown Chicago by auto is 30 minutes. The Burlington Railroad commuter line has stations three miles away in both Westmont and Downers Grove.

THE ELIZABETH IDE Elementary School is less than a mile from Saw Mill Creek and Grove South High School is two miles away. Both provide complete modern educational facilities

"We expect middle income families in their early 30s as well as older couples whose children have grown and left home to be the primary source of buyers," Cowhey said. "Geographically, we believe people now living in nearby suburbs and the West and South Sides of Chicago will be strongly attracted to Saw Mill Creek. For some it will be a matter of remaining close to home and existing social contacts and for others it will be an opportunity to enjoy a fine suburban home without traveling too far from a familiar part of the metropolitan area."

Salesmen Attend Workshop Seminar

Recently attending a sales workshop seminar in Chicago from Wm. L. Kunkel & Co. were Larry Johnson of residential sales and William Spangler of Kunkel condominium sales.

Conducted by the Leadership Techniques Institute, the course concentrated on listing and closing procedures. The successful completion of the course enabled Johnson and Spangler to be identified as "tiger salesmen."

Spangler received a special award for winning a competitive impromptu short speech contest, which was part of the training format.

Johnson and Spangler's attendance at the seminar was part of the educational program made available to all sales personnel by Kunkel.

Arkansas Offers Skiing And Conventioneering

Jess P. Odom, Little Rock entrepreneur, today announced plans for the development at Dogpatch, Arkansas, of Marble Falls Estates. A highly unique snow skiing and convention facility which will offer a variety of seasonal attractions the year 'round. The operation is scheduled to be opened to the public for the 1972/73 winter season.

"The Marble Falls development will represent a capital investment of approximately $5 million over the next three years," Odom stated in making the announcement, "and a continuing investment program for a number of years thereafter. Long range projections indicate that by 1982 in excess of $25 million in development capital will have been invested in the project, according to Odom. "The installation should provide immediate full-time employment for 50 or so persons," the developer added, "and part-time work for as many as 150 during special events. It is conceivable," he continued, "that between 350 and 500 job opportunities will develop in conjunction with the project over the next five years."

DOGPATCH IS located between Harrison and Jasper on scenic Arkansas Highway 7 and is the home of Dogpatch, U.S.A., the recreation theme park based on Al Capp's internationally syndicated comic strip.

Also in operation in the Marble Falls park is the American Junk Exchange, a shop-swap outlet for antique and junk dealers. Planned features include a motel complex attached by covered-walkway to the convention center; complete dining facilities located in the center; and provisions for recreational activities including swimming, tennis, cave tours, hiking, horseback riding, and sightseeing. Golfing will be available at a nearby course. The adjacent Dogpach theme park offers a day of fun and adventure to visitors of all ages.

The Marble Falls operation is planned so that it will operate in harmony with the Dogpatch theme park, with each to complement the other and thus increase the number of visitors to both attractions. "The new convention-recreation facility will be operated around the calendar," Odom explained, "and it is entirely conceivable that the combined attractions will warrant lengthening the daily opening schedule for Dogpatch U.S.A." The theme park is presently operated Memorial Day through Labor Day on a daily basis, and on weekends during April, September, and October.

"WE ARE CONVINCED that tourism and recreation offer the greatest potential for affecting further economic progress in our state," the developer continued, "and that through these projects we will contribute signifcantly to such progress in northwest Arkansas."

Six hundred residential lots, to be used for the construction of both conventional and vacation-type homes, are to be offered for sale, and a number of vacation chalets will be constructed for rental or purchase, according to Odom. Also availabel for lease or purchase will be commercial property located within a 60-acre plot which has been reserved near the convention center and motel to provide a town center of shops, hotels, and other services for the convenience of visitors and residents.

Odom stated that a rustic style incorporating native stone accented with bright colors in the Alpine theme will keynote of the architecture throughout the development. The "A" frame of the Swiss Chalet will be a recurring feature. The convention center, also designed of stone relieved with color, will be a unique octagonal-shaped structure with a skylight-topped conical dome rising 35 feet above a flat-roofed perimeter.

"WE ARE proceeding at the fastest possible pace with all phases of the Marble Falls project," the Little Rock developer stated, "as we fully intend to host meeting groups, seminars, symposiums, and full scale conventions at our center during the coming winter season, as well as have the snow skiing installation in full operation." Reservations for the convention center, snow skiing, and motel facilities for the 1972/73 season are not being accepted at the Marble Falls Estates executive offices in Little Rock. "Supplementary motel accomodations are available at nearby Harrison and Jasper," Odom added, "and we already have in operation the Dogpatch Motel in the immediate area."

Marble Falls Estates takes its name from a picturesque 42 foot waterfall located in the Dogpatch park. The United States Post Office which serves the area was named Marble Falls prior to being changed to Dogpatch subsequent to the installation of the theme park in 1967.

The scenic beauty of this section of the state is steadily growing in popularity as a recreation and tourist mecca, and the Dogpatch-Marble Falls parks form somewhat of a hub around which many Arkansas points of interest are located. These include Eureka Springs, Bull Shoals and Norfork Lakes, Buffalo River State Park, Mountain View, and Hot Springs. Silver Dollar City at Branson, Missouri, is also in the immediate area. Such a tour circuit is especially attractive to campers, who represent the biggest boom in American tourism to date. One of the finest campsites in the state is found at Dogpatch, U.S.A., and other excellent camping facilities dot the northwest Arkansas countryside.

THE FOCAL point of the Marble Falls development will be the unusual aspects of the convention center which will serve to enhance its attractiveness as a meeting place. Although ideally remote, it will have good accessibility. The unique yet functional design of the structure will afford complete facilities for a single large meeting or several smaller groups. The central area under the dome roof, measuring 80 feet in diameter, will serve as the main auditorium. Folding wooden partitions having good acoustical quality will be installed around the circumference of this "core" area, as well as at various points to divide the 33 foot flat-roofed perimeter of the building, thus facilitating the partitioning of the meeting rooms according to need.

The outer area of the structure, plus a balcony which hangs at the rim of the center section, will be used for supplementary seating for the elevated permanent stage having a prescenium width of 32 feet. The convention center will provide seating for 1,000 persons, and banquet-style dining for 600. Opposite the main lobby, and adjacent to the entrance from the covered way which leads to the motel, will be a commodious dining room and adjoining lounge. The kitchen will be equipped to serve dining room patrons and smaller meeting groups and function as an adjunct to catering services for banquets. An overhead door in the convention center will facilitate the display of large items such as those in the heavy equipment category.

The first unit of a motel complex designed for modular expansion will be completed for the coming winter season. The Alpine "A" frame theme will be carried out to expose the lobby area to its fullest height.

SPECIALLY designed equipment will precipitate snowfall on an intermediate slope and two beginner slopes to launch this winter the firt snow skiing operation in the Mid-South. The intermediate slope will be lengthened to approximately 2,000 feet in future seasons. Complete skiing facilities will be installed, including chair lift and a beautifully designed ski lodge. The upper floor of the 60x82 foot lodge will feature a circular fireplace, the traditional hardwood floor, and snack bars. A balcony across each end will widen to an expanse of 10 feet at the rear, and this deck will offer a panoramic view of the beauty of the surrounding Ozarks foothills. The lower floor of the lodge will be devoted to shops and provisions for both rental and purchase of ski equipment and clothing. "Snow skiing facilities have been virtually non-existent in this area," Odom stated, but nationally it is a sport of increasing interest to all ages.

"I predict," he continued, "that many first-season novices from the local area will soon become proficient skiers. The Marble Falls slopes will be designed and maintained to offer skiing that is attractive to beginners and to serve as excellent practice runs for the professional." He added that plans are to offer special package rates and accredited courses to attract college students from campuses located within a reasonable mileage radius of the slopes.

More to bcome.

Baird & Warner Has Record Sales

Baird & Warner, Inc., a diversified Chicago-area real estate organization, rolled up sales production of more than 2,000 units and a dollar volume exceeding $100 million for the first six months of 1972.

According to John L. Hall, senior vice president and general sales manager, the sales division participated in 2,033 sales in the six-month period and generated $102,556,318 in dollar volume.

Both categories were records for the 117-year-old firm. The volume of sales participations was 7.3 per cent ahead of the 1,888 transactions of a year-ago while the dollar volume spurted 21 per cent ahead of the $84,929,961 for the like period in 1971.

Hall said, "The first half effort puts us right on target with our 1972 goals of 4,000 sales participations and $200 million in dollar volume. We are optimistic about reaching these goals."

For the month of June the firm, which has 28 sales offices in Chicago and suburbs, reported 355 sales participations, an increase of 5.5 per cent over 340 participations reported a year ago. June's dollar volume was $16,196,887, a 9.4 per cent increase over $14,955, 362 in June, 1971.

Land Use Politics Rapped

"Pending legislative efforts to use the power of federal money to influence the states to develop statewide land use politics would limit the power of all local governments, to zone the use of land within corporate limits," recently stated Arthur W. Pipenhagen, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

"While we recognize the right of federal and state governments to involve themselves in the land use of areas of actual critical environmental concern, we reject as wholly unwarranted and unnecessary the contemplated limitations of local zoning power," stated Realtor Pipenhagen. He cautioned that if passed, the bill would usurp local governments of sole determination in residential, commercial, and industrial development.

In a related move, the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors called upon the Department of Housing and Urban Development to rescind existent regulations limiting the authority of local governments to determine the location of federally-assisted projects within their areas of jurisdiction.

The board is one of 1,600 state and local groups of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, of which the 100,000 Realtors of America belong.

Apartment Living Is Growing Trend

Changing life styles and "future shock" are reasons that apartment living is now the "in" thing and will become even more so in the future, according to a Chicago area apartment expert.

"Growing numbers of people, including young persons and older folks, are no longer concerned with owning things, but are anxious to be themselves, do what they want to do, and go and come as they please, all of which is provided by the rental apartment," explains William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc., and general manager of the firm's property management division.

Sally's contention is borne out by building figures for the Chicago area. According to Bell Federal Savings and Loan Association, permits for 2,911 apartments were issued in May compared with permits for 2,699 single-family homes.

"OVERLOOKING THE fact that the apartment market may be temporarily overbuilt in certain areas of the Chicago region, the fact is that apartments have zoomed tremendously in popularity since 1955, when they accounted for only 8 per cent of all housing starts nationally," he said.

Sally agrees with Alvin Toffler, author of the book "Future Shock," who called rentalism the wave of the future and explained that renting means minimum involvement.

"Many people today don't wish to tie themselves down. They want the freedom to come and go as they please, to travel light, and that means few possessions," the Baird & Warner executive said.

The same trend is evident in the healthy growth of businesses offering rental cars, furniture, tools and all manner of household equipment for short-term use.

While people want the benefits that modern technology offers in the way of better housing, autos, appliances and furnishings, they no longer insist on ownership. Change is so rapid that people want to be able to keep pace. Ownership only burdens them with the accumulation of possessions.

"That's why, for example, we see 30 per cent turnover in modern apartment buildings, with people racing each other to see who'll be the first to move into the latest building with all the newest features," Sally said. "The idea of setting down roots is fast vanishing."

Even the modern homeowner is much like the apartment renter. Today it's possible to buy a home for 10 per cent down or less, meaning that the buyer has a minimum commitment to the house. His monthly mortgage payments to the bank are similar to rent and, Sally believes, the main reason for owning property in many cases is our nation's tax structure and deductions for interest, taxes, etc.

As the pace of living continues to accelerate, apartments will become even more popular. There will also be a need to make the newest apartments as up-to-date as possible, which means heightened competition among apartment developers to outdo one another with attractions.

"Swimming pools, balconies, party rooms, sauna baths are standard features today, but developers will have to think up other amenities to draw new people into entering the apartment market," Sally said.

IN ADDITION, developers will have to put more emphasis on professional management to accommodate the rising demand for service and to make apartment ownership profitable. The high turnover of residents and the increased competition inevitably mean a squeeze on profits, which in turn means building operation must be tightened so that no dollars are lost through poor management.

Does the apartment revolution mean home ownership is dead? Far from it, Sally acknowledges. There will always be people who are not attracted by fast-changing life styles and who want the stability that ownership provides.

But whereas these new home buyers were in the majority 20 years ago, they are now in the minority, and conceivably will become more of a minority in coming years.

William James, the philosopher, summed it up years ago: "Lives based on having are less free than lives based either on doing or on being." And since the "now" generation wants to do and to be rather than to have, apartment living is very much in fashion, Sally concludes.

Want To Know What Your Home Is Worth On Market?

Would you like to know what your home is worth even if you aren't planning to sell it now?

You can get a good idea of what your home would bring in today's real estate market from Quinlan and Tyson Inc., Realtors.

All 10 of Q&T's area sales offices offer a Market Evaluation to area homeowners — free of charge and without any obligation. The market evaluation is not an appraisal but an estimate of a home's value based on an experienced, professional opinion.

When a homeowner requests a free market evaluation, Quinlan and Tyson sends a team of sales representatives to the home. They inspect the home and give their independent opinion of what they think buyers will pay in today's market.

The Q&T personnel prepare a list of the "plus" and "minus" features of the home. They then compare the home with what buyers actually have paid for similar homes that have been sold recently in the area, making allowances for differences in the features of the properties compared.

These factors then are evaluated and Q&T comes up with a "market value" for the home. "Generally, our market evaluation can come within a few hundred dollars of the actual market value of the home," said Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president and general manager-real estate sales.

The market evaluation was offered to Highland Park residents in conjunction with the opening of Quinlan and Tyson's new area sales office in that community.

Elmhurst Development Draws Area Interest

Atrium/Elmhurst has attracted thousands of visitors from Chicago and more than a hundred suburbs since the planned unit development of townhomes and condominium apartments opened June 10.

"The broad area from which prospective buyers have come has confirmed research that indicated conveniently located multi-family housing in the $33,500-56,400 price range would have a wide market appeal," said Harry Wogman. Wogman is vice president-marketing of I. Simon and Son, Inc., co-developer of Atrium, with Romanek-Golub and Co.

Prospects have visited Atrium, just north of Roosevelt Road midway between York Road and Ill. Rte. 83 in west-suburban Elmhurst, from throughout an area bounded by McHenry and Waukegan on the north, the Fox River on the west, Joliet and Park Forest on the south and the lakefront on the east.

"Atrium is exactly in the center of this metropolitan area," Wogman said. "It is 17 miles to downtown Chicago, within 10 miles of O'Hare Airport and even closer to the growing industrial and office complexes of DuPage and western Cook counties."

"HEAVIEST TRAFFIC has originated in Elmhurst itself," Wogman reported. "Chicago ranks second, followed by the suburbs surrounding Elmhurst — Addison, Bellwood, Bensenville, Broadview, Cicero, Clarendon Hills, Downers Grove, Forest Park, Glen Ellyn, Hillside, Hinsdale, LaGrange, Lombard, North Riverside, Oak Brook, Oak Park, River Forest, Villa Park and Westchester."

In addition to appealing to a broad geographic market with its convenient location, Atrium has been designed to match the space needs and economic resources of a wide variety of buyers who are interested in a maintenance-free lifestyle," Wogman said. Two-story, solid masonry townhomes with basements offer two, three or four bedrooms, in the $41,600-54,900 price range. One-, two-and three-bedroom condominium apartments are priced from $33,500 to $56,400.

"Major appliances, central air conditioning and covered parking are among features that are included in the purchase of all units," Wogman said. "So are use of the central clubhouse, swimming pools, tennis courts and other recreation facilities, and upkeep of the intensively landscaped grounds that cover most of the 27½-acre development."

THE DEVELOPERS will have the greatest possible flexibility to build to meet market demand, because of the way townhomes are clustered around quarter-acre, landscaped courtyards, Wogman said.

"The 'mix' of two-, three-and four-bedroom townhomes in the initial two clusters — with first occupancy this August — was based on market research," he said. "The make-up of on-going clusters will be determined according to buyer preference."

How many of each type of condominium apartment homes to include in six-story elevator buildings likewise will be based on market demand, Wogman said. Occupancy is scheduled for spring, 1973.

When completed, the $20,000,000 planned unit development will include 210 townhomes and 288 condominium apartments, in addition to the clubhouse and recreation facilities which will be ready for occupant use this fall.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS & SELLERS

If you're in a hurry to sell . . . the "Multiple" system can speed things up.

Although some home sellers are in no particular hurry to sell their home, most sellers set a definite deadline for the sale of their home.

Generally speaking, the greater percentage of people who must sell their home in a hurry cannot rely on the rigors of selling the home on their own without the aid of a Real Estate Broker, especially a broker who belongs to an active, influential Multiple Listing & Sales organization. The "Multiple" system immediately puts hundreds of professional salespeople to work to find a qualified buyer for the home. All multiple offices are quickly aware of the property and they treat the property like their own personal listing, exerting every means of sales efficiency and experience to sell the home equitably for buyer and seller.

The big difference between selling a home individually and listing with a Multiple Associated Broker is the difference between whispering and shouting and the MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service is one of the nation's most powerful and successful sales organizations.

If you're selling in a hurry . . . call a MAP Multiple Broker office . . . and relax!

Larwin Acquires Modern Computer

Looking forward to the day when computer systems will e a sort of "housing supermarket," The Larwin Group, Inc., of Beverly Hills, Calif., has acquired one of IBM's newest computers, the System/370 Model 145, for diverse applications in its real estate and financial services activities.

Larwin is currently marketing three architecturally distinct villages in its 1,000-acre Greenbrook Country in DuPage County, and expects to announce additional developments in the Chicago area in the near future.

"Larwin is very possibly the most advanced user of electronic data processing in the housing industry," said Michael I. Keston, treasurer of The Larwin Group.

"In addition to the traditional applications of electronic data processing in accounting and other financial disciplines, Larwin uses its new IBM 370/145 to coordinate the scheduling of equipment, subcontractors, craftsmen, and materials during the construction process," Keston said.

"By using the computer as a scheduling device, we can cut weeks off the average new-home construction span. The computer therefore benefits both the housing producer and the prospective buyer by allowing more efficient construction and better quality and cost control, which is ultimately reflected in lower prices to the homebuyer," Keston said.

"AS MANY AS 80 to 100 vendors must be scheduled efficiently at every home site," said William T. Mercado, Larwin's director of mangement information services. "Delays of just a few days, even a few hours, can severely inflate the cost of construction. Better scheduling means fewer idle hours for craftsmen and equipment."

Larwin is presently conducting extensive research and development studies on modular and component housing, and anticipates the innovative use of its new computer in all phases of modular home construction and distribution.

"Modular housing is a process by which housing components or entire homes are built in the factory and transported to the site for assembly," said Mercado. "Advanced data processing capabilities are essential to efficient modular home construction. With the scheduling function of the IBM 370/145, Larwin might well offer the homebuyer a sort of housing supermarket. The buyer can select various house plans, elevations, options and financing alternatives, and have a completed home available for occupancy in a relatively short time."

"Modular housing is expected to account for a substantial portion of the new housing market by 1975, and we feel that Larwin's advanced computer systems will place us in a strong postion to explore that market," Mercado said.

LARWIN USES the computer's wide-ranging capabilities in all of its construction programs, including single-family housing and townhomes, urban housing, and multiple family housing. In addition to these major divisions, Larwin also has divisions in recreational communities development, mortgage banking and finance, real estate investment trust management, and commercial development. All of these areas are serviced by the new computer through the use of innovative computer applications.

Larwin's IBM 370/145 increases its computer capacity significantly from its previous system, an IBM 360/40. The new computer will provide a 250 per cent to 350 per cent increase in throughput and efficiency. The new computer is capable of 720,000 additions per second and marks a new generation of electronic data processing equipment designed for fast, efficient data processing and telecommunications with remote locations via leased telephone lines.

By improving its computer system, Larwin is keeping pace with its energetic growth since its merger with CNA Financial Corp. in 1969.

Since that date, Larwin, one of the nation's largest producers of single-family housing, has also entered the multiple-family housing, urban housing and recreational communities development fields, in addition to increasing its mortgage banking capabilities and becoming mangement adviser to Larwin Mortgage Investors and Larwin Realty and Mortgage Trust, two publicly held real estate investment trusts. Georgraphic diversification has included new communities in California, Illinois, New York, Washington, D.C., Nevada, Arizona and Colorado.

Build A Pond In Your Yard

According to information published by Ortho Garden Products Division of Chevron Chemical Company, here's how:

1. Dig a hole the size and shape of the pond you desire. Use the dirt you dig to form the hill for falls.

2. Shape the creek bed and falls.

3. Smooth the pond bottom and creek. Be sure to remove sharp stones and other material that may damage plastic liner.

4. Cover entire area with plastic liner. (Sheet plastic is available at most garden or building supply stores.) Trim to about one foot from water line; cover and decorate edges with rocks, driftwood, logs, etc., to keep plastic in place.

5. Set pump in bottom of pond, run length of plastic tubing from pump to top of spring and cover with dirt to conceal.

6. Landscape pond area with additional rocks and plants to give it the look of a natural setting.

If you'd rather — some companies make complete Waterfall Kits and Fountain Kits containing everything you'll need except the dirt, rocks, plants, and ambition.

The outside is every bit as inviting. Colonial, down to the paint (authentic Williamsburg colors), alongside an attached garage with space for your car and a small truckload of odds and ends. All fully landscaped.

And it's all yours – lock, stock and mortgage – for just $950 down and $151* a month. About what you'd pay nowadays for a decent apartment in a decent neighborhood.

Instead of rent, though, your $151 pays the principal, interest, and mortgage insurance on your future. Your own home.

Think about it.

The principal you get back someday. All of it and more, probably. Because chances are your home will be worth more when you're ready to sell.

And right from the start, your interest and real-estate taxes earn you a hefty tax dividend every April 15th. About like having two extra dependents to deduct.

As for maintenance, that's our department. So you can look forward to seven wonderful days a week without mowing, raking, pruning, painting, puttering, sprinkling, shoveling or anything else outside.

All in all, it's $20,990 well spent. $20,990 and not a penny more, because we pay the closing costs.

You're welcome to see our model homes any day of the week from 10 to 10. We're in Palatine. On Baldwin Rd., north of Dundee (Rt. 68) between Rand and Interstate 53. Ivy Glen. Handsome condominium homes, from $20,990. (312) 359-9212.

Cline Named Project Chief

John Cline, vice president, Russwood of Illinois, has been named project director in charge of all engineering, construction and on-site development of Lake Carroll, Shannon, Ill. The second home community, covering nine square miles in area, is located 20 miles southwest of Freeport. Cline's appointment was announced by John Lazarowicz, vice president of the parent company, Russwood, Inc., Charlotte, N. C.

Cline was project director for Carolina Forest and Woodrun, second home recreational communities in North Carolina now nearing completion by Russwood, Inc.

He attended Memphis State College school of engineering, Memphis, Tenn., and for two years previous to joining Russwood he was an engineer with the U. S. Army Corp of Engineers, working on erosion control of the Mississippi River. He was formerly with other realty and buiilding firms in Memphis, and performed the engineering field layout of the International Trade Mart, New Orleans.

He attended high school in Sikeston, Mo., and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Cline, 1805 Goodhaven Drive, Memphis.

Report Plenty Of Mortgage Money In Available

Home seekers and sellers alike will be cheered by a midyear mortgage report from Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the United States Savings and Loan League.

Strunk said that while the outlook for interest rates later this summer and fall is uncertain, there will be plenty of mortgage money on hand and loan terms should be liberal.

Savings associations make more home loans than do any other financial institutions. The League, whose member-institutions hold 98 per cent of the nation's $221 billion in savings and loan assets, is the biggest trade association for the business.

"Earlier, there were fears that the supply of mortgage money might begin to tighten in the second half," Strunk noted, "but these fears have largely disappeared.

"Despite a pickup in consumer spending as the economy gained momentum in the first half of the year, people continued to save at a relatively high rate — and the more they save, the more money our institutions have for borrowers.

"There is also a long-range trend toward more liberal loan terms — longer loan terms and lower down payments — which is making home ownership possible for more people."

STRUNK POINTED out that these developments are good news for all present homeowners and potential home sellers as well as would-be home buyers. The availability of mortgage money is crucial to a strong used home market and contributes to sounder real estate values everywhere.

But he also reported that while mortgage interest rates eased slightly in 1972's first half, many contradictory factors cloud the outlook for the second half.

"There's small chance of a substantial drop in mortgage rates until it's clear inflation is under control," Strunk said.

"The accelerating business recovery could spur credit demand later this year and push all interest rates higher. Bank lending rates have already gone up, so have corporate bond rates, and if they continue to rise, there will be upward pressures on mortgage rates too.

"At the same time, government spending programs probably will exceed tax receipts by a wide margin in the new fiscal year, suggesting that another big inflationary federal deficit is possible."

ANOTHER FACTOR that would tend to push rates up is an expected seasonal slowdown in savings this summer, coupled with a seasonal upswing in loans.

On the other hand, Strunk noted that housing construction might ease later this year and earlier next year, especially in the multi-family field.

"Apartment vacancy rates have been going up in some sections of the country," he said, "and a slackening in demand for new apartment financing would tend to push rates lower.

"The picture could also be affected by Federal Reserve policies and the fact that this is an election year, which could result in Administration moves to keep interest rates down."

In either case, Strunk concluded, the credit costs involved in a home purchase today are still a bargain.

"Interest rates are lower than for nearly all other types of consumer credit," he observed. "Historically, any rise in interest costs during an inflationary period is more than offset by higher prices caused by escalating land and construction costs."

Need A Repairman? Check Before Calling

It's washday morning.

You've gotten Dad off to the office, the kids off to school, the breakfast dishes out of the way. You're fired with ambition and ready to tackle the week's wash. You sort out the clothes, place them in the washer and press the starter button.

Isn't it exasperating when nothing happens?

It's even more exasperating when the serviceman you've called finds you didn't have the washer plugged in.

No, it isn't as unlikely as you may think. Records of appliance service companies indicate that approximately 40 per cent of first-year service calls on automatic washers alone are due to such oversights.

Commonwealth Edison suggests that the best way to avoid such embarrassments and to save money at the same time is to become familiar with the owner's manual or innstallation guide supplied by the manufacturer of any appliance.

FREQUENTLY, KNOWLEDGE of the appliance will lead to quick detection of a small malfunction and make a call for a serviceman unnecessary. Check the following items, which are the most common sources of trouble.

The electric cord. Quite often there is nothing wrong except that it isn't plugged in.

The power source. An inoperative light bulb does not necessarily indicate a power failure. The lamp may be merely burned out.

Fuses or circuit breakers. Don't replace fuses or reset circuit breakers until you find out what caused them to blow or trip out in the first place. What were you doing when the circuit cut out? Disconnect that lamp or appliance, then replace the fuse or reset the breakers. If they hold, the trouble is probably in what you were using.

Service interruption. If other appliances and lights operate, you haven't had a power failure.

Appliance controls. See that they are set correctly. Turn dials in the proper direction and give the push-buttons an extra firm push.

Lint screens. While performing their natural function, lint screens in washers and dryers can occasionally become clogged. Clean them frequently, preferably after each use.

Air conditioner filters. An accumulation of dust and dirt can block the filter. Follow manufacturers' instructions for cleaning or changing them.

Refrigerator and freezer coils. Dust and dirt on the condenser coils in the back of the unit impairs their operation. Clean them periodically with a brush or vacuum cleaner.

Doors and latches. As a safety feature, many appliances will not operate unless doors and latches are properly closed.

Electric range controls. Do some foods take longer to cook or bake than they should? Check the manual or automatic control settings. You may be using the wrong one.

Observance of these simple precautions may return an appliance to service instantly. If it does not, then call a serviceman — one who's qualified to work on your particular machine.

Harry Dolan Gets Top Shopping Center Award

Harry L. Dolan, vice president and general manager of Woodfield Development Corp., Des Plaines, was awarded the CSM (Certified Shopping Center Manager) designation at the annual convention of the International Council of Shopping Centers held recently at the Fountainbleau Hotel in Miami Beach, Fla.

This is the highest achievement one can attain in the shopping center management field. It is held nationally by fewer than 300 executives of a total ICSC membership exceeding 4,000 members. Those honored pass stringent examinations and are recognized for maintaining high standards in their profession.

Woodfield Development Corp. is engaged in the development, leasing and management of commercial properties throughout the Chicago area, including Woodfield Park in Schaumburg.

Dolan is also a Certified Property Manager (CPM) and member of the Chicago Real Estate Board and Junior Real Estate Board of Chicago. He was previously associated with Draper & Kramer, Inc. as project manager for Oakbrook Center in Oak Brook.

Polo Food Products Promotes Van Nunen

William Van Nunen has been promoted to general sales manager for Polo Food Products Co., Schaumburg, a division of

William Van Nunen

Allied Mills, Inc., according to an announcement from David W. Brink, general manager of Polo.

"In addition to his responsibility for sales to the institutional food service accounts across the country, Van Nunen will direct the sales programs for the commercial and retail functions of the company," Brink said in making the announcement.

Van Nunen has been with Polo for three years, starting with the company as a salesman in national institutional sales. His sales experience spans 11 years with another major food company, managing its midwest territory.

Van Nunen resides with his wife and five children at Schaumburg.

Comerford Named Program Manager

Earl Comerford

International Harvester Co. has announced the appointment of Earl A. Comerford, Arlington Heights, as manager, product programs for IH's farm equipment and consumer products.

Comerford, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, started his career with the company at its Omaha district in 1950. He later served in various positions at several company locations until his last assignment as manager, farm implement sales.

Hues For Fences

Most fences should serve as a background for garden plants, regardless of their other functions. That's why they should be finished with earth-tone stains of brown, gold and green.

Fuchsia Benches

No place to hang fuchsia baskets? Set them under a shade tree, on low benches built of fir 2x4s. Benches only eight to ten inches wide won't interfere with trailing branches.

Library Group Reelects Lyons

Robert B. Lyons, member and past president of Schaumburg Township Public Library board, has been reelected to the board of directors of the North Suburban Library System.

Lyons, chairman of the social science department of James B. Conant High School and past treasurer of the NSLS Board, was chairman of Schaumburg's Library Referendum Committee, currently serves as chairman of the system's Reciprocal Borrowing Committee, holds membership in the American Library Trustee Association and the Illinois Library Trustee Association, and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township.

Lyons resides at 250 Hermitage Ln. in Hoffman Estates with his wife, Nancy, and three children.

The North Suburban Library System, headquartered at 5814 Dempster St., Morton Grove, is comprised of 31 member public libraries in Cook, Lake and Kane Counties. Membership in the System provides each library access to books, films, periodicals, facilities and services which are generally unavailable from local resources.

Snow Melting System Makes The Job Easy

Jogging, the newest fad among men over 40, is heartily endorsed by most doctors. If practiced in moderation it will strengthen the heart and lungs.

But all exercise is not so beneficial. Shoveling snow, for instance, is rejected almost unanimously by the medical profession. The increasing number of heart attacks of men in their middle years after clearing snow from their walks is too high to be ignored.

One way to eliminate this chore is to install automatic snow melting, and the National Better Heating-Cooling Council says that in homes equipped with hydronic heating it can be done with less difficulty.

A network of tubing is embedded in the concrete of the driveway and sidewalk and connected to the boiler. The tubing has a separate control. When the snow begins to fall, the system goes into operation, circulating heated water through the tubing, melting the snow on contact.

To prevent the system itself from freezing when it is not in operation, the council advises adding an anti-freeze solution.

Brunswick Corp. Promotes Baldwin

John N. Baldwin of Des Plaines, has been named to the newly created position of European Area vice president — Marketing for the Bowling Division of Brunswick Corp. The announcement was made by J. G. Thomas, vice president for Customer and Industry Relations for the Division.

"John will be responsible for the total marketing effort of the Bowling Division in Europe," said Thomas in making the announcement. Baldwin will be stationed in the firm's Frankfurt, Germany office and will report directly to Thomas.

Baldwin, who joined the Bowling Division as a sales trainee in 1960, has served in a variety of positions including territory salesman, military salesman and product manager for pins, finishes and supplies. Most recently he was the marketing manager — indoor recreation products for Brunswick's International Division.

Neurater Retires From Illinois Bell

A telephone company veteran retired recently after almost 45 years with Illinois Bell.

Edward Neurauter

Edward A. Neurauter, 801 S. Emerson, Mount Prospect, was a central office foreman for the past 20 years, spending most of that time at the company's Lakeview Office at 3532 N. Sheffield Ave.

He helped develop training books at the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's New York headquarters. Much of what he worked on in the field of circuitry is still in use throughout the Bell System.

Neurauter's interest in electrical work goes back to his student days at Lane Technical High School, which he attended before joining the telephone company in 1927. Over the years he has put his skills to use during various disasters affecting telephone operations, such as the 1967 blizzard and fires in offices in Morton Grove and at Lakeview.

After the blizzard, which stranded him in the Lakeview building for three days, Neurauter recommended the use of more rectifiers to keep the company's emergency batteries charged longer. The batteries are used to operate telephone equipment during a general power failure. Neurauter believes these batteries should be able to provide power for at least eight hours without any extra assistance.

Lane Is Nielsen Vice President

A. C. Nielsen Company world-wide marketing research firm, has elected William Lane of 1511 N. Douglas Ave., Arlington Heights, as vice president. The announcement was made by F. H. Graf, executive vice president in charge of the Retail Index Division.

Lane joined Nelsen as a retail index field trainee in 1959. Following training, he handled assignments in San Francisco, Des Moines and Chicago. He entered Chicago client service in 1966 and was promoted to account executive three years later. Lane is a graduate of the State University of Iowa where he earned a B.S.C. degree.

NEW LOOK FOR DINING DECOR. The lacy, suede-like effect of Easy Edges follows the trend of ecology-minded decorators. In theory, the cardboard furniture can be recycled. It's fashionable enough to furnish an entire dining room, yet highly stylized to blend with leather of standard wood furniture. The natural earth tones tend to enhance the Easy Edges designs.

Stylish, Strong

Cardboard Furniture May Surprise You

by FRAN HECKART

An ingenious Los Angeles architect, Frank Gehry, doesn't eat his giant cardboard sandwiches — he makes fashionable furniture from them.

Gehry hit upon the idea of cardboard furniture while building scale model homes and towns with the medium. Noticing the versatility and durability of the cardboard when affixed in layers, he pursued the possibilities.

Imagination took the helm and the architect formed a company, Easy Edges, to manufacture his paper furniture designs.

The process involves laminating layer upon layer of corrugated cardboard (plywood fashion) with a water-proof glue. Razor-sharp cookie cutter-type machines stamp out the tables, chairs, consoles and other designs. Sanding smooths the rough edges.

Gehry has demonstrated the stability of his furniture by jumping ape-fashion from chair to chair, or table. As further proof, he's shown that two of the small decorator cubes will support a Volkswagen.

THE EARTH-TONE pieces have a lacy, suede-like surface which tends to disguise the "paper" medium. One shopper walked by a display of the furniture without realizing it was cardboard until the second time around.

Comments like "Oh, it's really cardboard," or "So this is the new paper furniture" are not unusual. Charming qualities belie notions of dull, drab cardboard used only for packing and shipping.

The surface of the designs can be varnished if desired or a special wax finish can be applied for increased stain resistance.

However, it is usually not necessary. Liquids can be mopped up; cigarette burns can be sanded or brushed away with a bristle brush. A vacuum cleaner is recommended for lifting crumbs and dust from the tables and chairs for major clean-ups.

THE MANUFACTURERS claim that a blow torch can be applied or that a table top can be smeared with catsup and the finish will not be ruined or even show signs of abuse.

Easy Edges' only enemy is the rain. It is not lawn furniture and is not guaranteed to withstand the elements.

Theoretically, the pieces are disposable and could be recycled.

Although only on the market for a few months, Easy Edges furniture is gaining popularity according to Frank Schmitt, manager of Petersen Interiors, Arlington Heights.

"I think it's some of the best paper furniture on the market," he said. "There's a lot more design to it than in some of the earlier attempts."

"EASY EDGES will hold up," Schmitt added. "It's been suggested that the furniture will even acquire a warm patina with age."

The current line includes a rocker, an 84x36x29-inch dining table, dining chairs, cube nests which separate as occasional tables or extra seating, writing tables, lounges, rockers and a buffet-type console.

The most expensive piece is the dining table which is designed to retail for $110; dining chairs are $35 and the rocker is $93.50. Cube nests are reasonably priced at $15.50.

$2.20 Minimum Wage

A Drop In Suburban Bucket

by MONICA WILCH

While the issue of the minimum wage — which currently has Congress in an uproar — may be a serious political concern, from a practical viewpoint it seems to be "much ado about nothing."

The bill now under consideration would guarantee wage earners $2.20 per hour. This is a significant increase from the existing minimum of $1.60. However, when you consider the proposition of actually living on either amount, the difference becomes negligible. At today's cost of living, $2.20 per hour is a drop in the bucket.

Consider the plight of people in the northwest suburbs trying to subsist on an income of $2.20 per hour. First strike against them is that Chicago ranks seventh among 39 U. S. cities in cost of living. Second disadvantage is that the northwest suburbs are not the least expensive place to live in the Chicago area.

NEVERTHELESS, the 1970 census figures indicate that a substantial number of residents here are hourly wage earners. For example, the census showed that 1,993 residents of Arlington Heights are laborers, a category of occupations usually paying hourly rates. Many of these people may well be at the minimum wage level. Indeed, any unskilled worker who is not associated with a union would be dependent on the federal minimum wage. In addition, clerical and service workers (waitresses, cooks, bartenders, motel employees) might be subject to minimum wages.

While the statistics used here are geared to a family of four, a great many persons working for hourly wages may be single, divorced, widowed, or separated. Often women are in the position of supporting a family — 57 per cent of the women in the work force in 1969 had children under 18 — and have no skills or advanced education. Thus, they must take the kinds of jobs most likely to pay minimum wages. Likewise, a young man just out of high school, or back from the service — perhaps newly married — may be able to find only an unskilled job at the lowest wages permitted by the government.

SO, THE breadwinner in a hypothetical family of four who earns the proposed minimum hourly wage makes a gross $88 per week (based on 40 hours), but brings home only $75 after taxes. Out of that he must pay for housing, food and clothing — at least.

The economic rule-of-thumb is that rent should be approximately one-quarter of one's monthly earnings. But apartments in the northwest suburbs start at a minimum of $125 per month, according to the Woodfield Report issued in 1970 (since then rents have gone up), and that figure applied only to Hoffman Estates. The next lowest rental figure was $150, with some suburbs such as Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect having rents from $180-$195 up to $350.

It is, of course, totally inconceivable that such a family could ever hope to buy a house, since the median home value in the northwest suburban area, according to recent figures issued by Paddock Publications, is $31,416, and tax rates run roughly from $6.20 to $7.10 per $100 assessed value.)

ASSUMING A theoretical budget, in which $75 goes for rent, the family has $225 left after housing costs for the month are paid; assuming the actual minimum rent figure of $125 (which still is less than realistic), the family has only $175 left.

Food costs will virtually "eat up" the remainder in either case. According to U.S. Agriculture Department statistics, the cost of groceries for a family of four in June was $108.25. However, this figure is based on national averages; the figure for Chicago would be even higher, since the cost of meat, poultry and fish here rose 2.5 per cent compared to 1.3 nationally, and fruits and vegetables here rose 6.9 per cent, compared to 2.7 nationally.

At this point, the budget shows $117 remaining, while in reality the family is down to $67 at most. The next item of necessity is clothing.

THERE IS a spot of good news here, since the cost of apparel and its upkeep was down one-tenth of one per cent in June, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. Moreover, federal price controls prevent any sizable price increases in clothing at present.

A spokesman for the J.C. Penney Co. said that 62 per cent of Penney's new fall apparel will be priced the same as in 1971, while 28 per cent will be lower. Only 10 per cent of the company's merchandise will show a price increase, due to higher cost of raw materials.

However, one of the most basic and essential items of apparel — shoes — are due to go up in price. Already an expensive commodity if one buys shoes of reasonably durable quality, a pair of shoes is predicted to cost $2 to $5 more this fall due to a shortage of leather on the world market.

AT THIS point, the wage earner's paycheck has been pretty well obliterated — and we haven't even considered such costs as utility bills, car payments or transportation fares, medical expenses, and insurance.

Although the foregoing is an over-simplification of a complex economic situation, the nearly insuperable gap between the minimum wage and the current cost of living cannot be denied. Obviously, a wage earner making $4,576 annual gross income is not going to be living the typical life of a middle class northwest suburbanite, whose average salary is $14,148.

But he still must buy food and he must have housing. And if he chooses to live in this area — as more and more such families are doing — he must somehow meet these costs. Even for a family living in a lower economic neighborhood in Chicago, food prices will be as high or higher, and rent will probably take more than the theoretical 25 per cent of a wage earner's paycheck.

The simple fact is, a family just can't live in this area on $2.20 per hour in 1972.

EASY EDGES ROCKER is not only great for sitting, it's a fashionable addition to any modern room decor. Debra Bell, Evanston, assumes a "comfy" pose in the easy-sitting cardboard chair. Constructed of laminated corrugated cardboard and reinforced with a light plywood on the edges, the chair will support large men as well. The chair retails for $93.50 at Petersen Interiors, Arlington Heights.

Good Advice On Facing The Sun

We all take for granted the fact that the sun can tan our skin. However, scientific study of the sun's effects on skin is a relatively recent development. It wasn't until the second half of the last century that the first studies of the effects of ultraviolet rays on the skin were made.

By now, many of our questions involving the sun and skin have been answered. For instance, we know that the cause of a suntan is melanin, that melanin is a protective pigment formed in the skin, and that the amount of melanin that can be formed by the skin is governed by heredity.

To understand how the sun changes the color and comfort of our skin, we must remember first, that the sun's rays reach us in varying lengths and strengths, and second, that the skin is made up of three different layers, the top one being the epidermis, which helps to protect the skin from further penetration of the sun's ultraviolet rays.

ESTEE LAUDER, one of the world's leading cosmetologists, believes so strongly in sensible sunning she has written a comprehensive guide which is inserted in every box of sun preparations she makes. Her advice for healthy sunning includes:

1. Encourage your skin to produce its own protective melanin slowly and surely with five to ten minutes of sunning at a time for the first few days.

2. Don't sunbathe between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., since these are the hours when most ultraviolet reaches us.

3. Since ultraviolet rays are visually undetectable to the sunbather, it is important to remember that they can reach us through water and grey or overcast skies.

4. Allow yourself more than one or two days to get a deep suntan.

5. You should consult your doctor before going into the sun if you are taking medication.

6. For best suntanning results, use a sun preparation that affords the correct amount of sun-screening for your skin. Use it liberally and always reapply after swimming.

Remember to apply it to such out-of-the-way areas as the tops of ears and feet, the backs of knees and neck, or previously unexposed parts of the body. Estee Lauder has a complete range of sunning preparations formulated with varying degrees of sun-screening and tan-promoting agents.

Doug Thieman In Double Wedding

There were two brides at the altar of St. Mark's United Methodist Church in Bloomington, Ind., on July 16, and Douglas Alan Thieman of Arlington Heights took one of them, Deborah Jo Stout, as his own.

Debbie and her sister, Susan Annelle Stout, decided on a double wedding after they became engaged to Indiana University students. The girls, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stout of Bloomington, have also attended the university.

Debbie is a senior, as is her husband, and Susan is a recent graduate now teaching school. Her bridegroom, Kenneth Starrs of Bloomington, attends the university's police academy.

Douglas Thieman is the son of the George Thiemans of 1122 N. Patton Ave., Arlington Heights.

HE AND DEBORAH and the other bridal pair exchanged vows and rings in a 2:30 p.m. ceremony. The girls chose different gowns but were each other's maid of honor.

Doug's bride wore a voile gown with a smocked Empire bodice with short sleeves and high neckline edged in lace. Matching lace trimmed a wide flounce at the hem of the skirt and encircling the sweep train. Deborah wore a Camelot headpiece with an elbow-length veil and carried a bouquet of white mums and yellow roses.

Her bridesmaids were Melissa Farlow, Paoli, Ind., and Patricia Routon, Bloomington, with the bride's sister Karen as junior bridesmaid. The girls wore yellow dotted swiss trimmed with white daisies and carried nosegays of matching daisies.

DOUG WAS ATTENDED by Thomas Hauer of Arlington Heights as best man. His groomsmen were his brothers, Gregory and Jeffery, along with Thomas Vieweg of Denver.

The two bridal couples greeted 400 guests at a reception in the church hall after the service. Then each left for their own honeymoon destination. Doug and Debbie chose The Abbey at Lake Geneva for a week's honeymoon.

After their return, they were feted at a garden reception at the Thieman home in Arlington by 150 guests.

They are now back in Bloomington to begin classes in fall. Debbie is affiliated with Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority and Doug with Theta Chi Fraternity. He is a graduate of Arlington High School.

An extra capful of bath oil or moisturizer in your tub will keep your skin smooth and soft and preserve your tan a little longer.

Bride Sews For Attendants

Joan Nawoj became a full-time seamstress in preparation for her July 1 marriage to Richard Hagan of Paducah, Ky. In addition to designing and making her own gown, she made the gowns of her six attendants.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nawoj, 506 NaWaTa, Mount Prospect. Richard is the son of the Robert Hagans of Owensboro, Ky.

Their wedding took place in St. Raymond Church, with Mrs. Charlotte Mischel of Owensboro as matron of honor and the groom's brother Steve as best man. Joan's sisters, Mrs. Mary Gondek of Arlington Heights and Alice Nawoj, were bridesmaids, along with Mrs. Janet Nawoj, Joan's sister-in-law, and Teresa Shoemaker of Henderson, Ky. Kim Strehl, 6, the groom's niece, was flower girl.

THE COUPLE'S brothers, James Nawoj and Gerald Hagan, ushered along with Ronald Strehl and Henry O'Bryan III, Owensboro.

After a reception at the Brass Rail in Arlington and a honeymoon in Wisconsin, the couple are living in Paducah.

Joan, a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and Brescia College, Owensboro, will teach school while her husband attends the Institute of Electronic Technology. He studied at Brescia College for two years before going to the institute.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I made a boo-boo. An emergency came up while I was ironing the children's things and I completely forgot the sprinkled clothes left in the basket. By the time I got to them there was mildew on everything. I washed everything in a strong detergent and chlorine bleach solution but there are still a few stains. Do you have any suggestions?

—Mrs. John T.

White things can be bleached out with a strong chlorine bleached solution, then laundered again. On the other items, you can moisten the stains with lemon juice and salt, then lay them in the sun and follow by laundering. If this doesn't work, use a sodium perborate solution following the instructions on the box.

Dear Dorothy: Noticing so many discussing milk substitutes, I wonder how many of them know that powdered milk added to water and left overnight in the refrigerator can take the place of whole skim milk without anyone knowing that a change has been made? After a week of this I told my children about the change. They are now giving it to their own children.

—Ethlyn Sibilsky

Dear Dorothy: In line with your article on getting over the time change when traveling, someone told me eastbound air passengers should start going to bed a little earlier each evening, then getting up earlier in the morning — until the time more closely resembles the time of their destination. Going West, the travelers would reverse the procedure.

—Joan D.

It's sound theory, Joan, but hardly practical. The six-hour difference between New York and Paris would have you going to bed around 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., wouldn't it?

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living. Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

Did you ever order whipped potatoes in a restaurant and get the instant variety? Or order coffee with cream and be served a "non-dairy product?" And what about the "butter" with your rolls — is it the real thing, or margarine? When the menu lists a sundae or a cream pie with whipped cream, how many times do you get a "whipped topping" instead?

Truth in advertising and ingredient labeling laws have been enacted to protect the consumer in the grocery store, but restaurants seem to have slipped through this particular controversy unnoticed. With all the food limitations on the market, you really can't be sure what you're getting when you order from a restaurant menu.

THE FEDERAL regulations do not apply to restaurants unless they are an interstate business, according to Blanche Stein of the Federal Trade Commission, and even restaurant chains are usually franchised, meaning they are independently owned.

However, in the city of Chicago the Consumer Sales, Weights and Measures Division does have jurisdiction over this area through its deceptive advertising ordinance. According to Carol Witherell of that department, it is unlawful to employ misrepresentation in advertising and to represent merchandise as being of a certain quality or grade if it is not. She said the law would apply to restaurants and that the department would investigate if it received any complaints along these lines.

If you bought a new car last year between Aug. 15 and Dec. 11, you have until Sept. 30 to claim your automobile excise tax refund.

The 7 per cent tax repealed by Congress amounts to a consumer savings of about $200 on new cars. When you write to the manufacturer, be sure to give your car's serial number, place of purchase and date of delivery. If you have moved since then, give your new address.

OWNERS OF pickup trucks and van-type trucks purchased between Sept. 22 and Dec. 11 are entitled to a 10 per cent refund. The refunds are based on the wholesale price of the vehicles not the selling price.

Meanwhile, the proposed price increases for 1973 cars — from $90 and $150 a model — are being fought in court by Ralph Nader and Consumers Union, who contend that the Price Commission failed to hold public hearings as required by law before okaying the prices.

Mothers are beginning to ask questions about the value of chewable, candy-flavored vitamins for children, and with good reason. To begin with, the sugar in chewable vitamins is likely to cause tooth decay and to curb a child's appetite so that he doesn't eat the foods he needs, according to the American Medical Association.

A real hazard associated with these candy vitamins, the AMA spokesman said, is that children may eat them as candy and accumulate a toxic level.

AS VITAMIN supplements, these products leave something to be desired, according to George Bell, manger of Nature's Finest organic health food store in Arlington Heights. He said the vitamin contents often are not properly balanced. Moreover, according to the Schiff Co., which markets natural vitamin supplements, many vitamins lose their nutritional value when put into chewable form.

What you are buying, then, is artificial coloring and flavoring, a clever, animal-shaped pill, the use of patented cartoon characters on the package — and negligible vitamin value.

When taken indiscriminately, vitamins are often simply wasted, according to the AMA spokesman. The AMA recommends that consumers consult their physicians to determine their particular vitamin needs.

Area Bonsai Show Coming To Hill's

Junipers, pines and spruce will share headlines with Picasso at an unusual art fair to be held Aug. 18, 19 and 20 on the grounds of D. Hill Nursery in Dundee.

In a shady outdoor "gallery" constructed specifically for the event, Hill's will host the 14th annual Midwest Bonsai Show, which last year drew over 15,000 to this nursery.

The complete secrets of the Bonsai art will be told at the show in three days of intensive lecturing and demonstrating by Kaneji Domoto, the western world's leading Bonsai authority.

The show is free to the public. Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

David Dutro Takes Bride

David Ralph Dutro of Arlington Heights met his future bride on the campus of the University of Arizona at Tucson.

Jan Judith Siegel had enrolled at the university from her home in Pittsburgh, Pa., and the couple are now back in Pittsburgh as newlyweds.

They were married July 1 in the Webster Hall Hotel where a reception followed for 150 guests. The couple honeymooned at a resort at Champion, Pa.

DAVID's FAMILY the George F. Dutros of Arlington Heights, went east for the nuptials.

The groom's sister Debra Sue was bridesmaid and his brother Daniel was best man for the evening ceremony. Also in the wedding party were Sarah J. Dobbs of Tucson as maid of honor and Gregory Leydig, Hollywood, Calif., and Neil Siegel, the bride's brother, as ushers.

Jan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond H. Siegel of Pittsburgh. She works for Rabco Corp. in the city, and David works there for Royal Bedding Co.

He attended St. Viator High School and the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater before going to Arizona.

More Benefits

Insurance companies paid $9.5 billion in health benefits last year. The increase — $408 million over the previous year — marks a rise of more than 4 per cent. (UPI).

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

For me, this is the best time of year, when I can sit back and do not much more than reap the harvest of the spring's labors.

The corn looks good, and I hope you are putting a squirt of mineral oil down the tips of the ears and pinching off a bit of the brown silk to discourage earworms. They try to beat you to it every time.

Your tomatoes did better this year if you used metal pipes rather than wooden stakes for support.

BEND OVER onion tops to speed ripening if necessary.

Start picking potatoes three weeks after you see potato plants flower.

Mulch with black plastic to keep the string beans producing.

Pinch off any leaves affected by leaf miners. You can tell a plant has leaf miners if it has a whitish stringy line on the leaf. That indicates the insect is laying eggs between the layers of the leaf. Better get rid of them before they set up housekeeping.

Here are some garden-related activities going on that might be of interest:

The Chicago Horticulture Society welcomes guests to its summer workshops and tours. You don't have to be a member to get in on the activities.

Saturday, Aug. 5 — 10 to 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., a workshop on summer pruning, Dr. John Baumgardt, instructor. No fee.

Tuesday, Aug. 8 — 10:30 to noon or 1:30 to 3 p.m., a workshop on starting perennial seeds, Carl Quasthoff and Glenn Park, instructors. Fee $3.

Wednesday, Aug. 9 —, 3:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., a tour of the Prairie Path and Morton Arboretum Prairie, Morton staff and Helen Turner, tour leaders. Fee $6.

TUESDAY, Aug. 15 — 10:30 to noon or 1:30 to 3 p.m., a workshop on planning the tulip garden, led by noted bulb authority Mary Black. Fee $3.

Then on Wednesday, Sept. 20, from 9 to 5 p.m., there is a trip to Milwaukee for a first-hand view of organic gardening methods. Bus leaves from 18 S. Michigan, Chicago. Fee $6. Tour leaders, Bob Wintz, director of the Chicago Horticultural Society, and Ray Greiten, formerly of the Milwaukee Park District.

More information about the workshops, all to be held at the CHS Botanic Garden, is available by calling 332-2868 or writing the program coordinator, Chicago Horticultural Society, Room 600, 18 S. Michigan, Chicago.

Here's a quickie if you want to have some fun with those greedy squirrels around your house. Chances are they are pretty fat about now and in need of exercise. Instead of just putting out a handful of peanuts for the squirrels, tie a clothesline between two trees. Keep it about two and a half feet off the ground. Then tie strings at intervals along the clothesline and attach a nut to the bottom of each string. You'll see some comical capers as these little acrobats do their thing.

610—Dogs, Pets, Equipment

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

My name is Beau. I'm an eight month old, orange and white male Brittany Spaniel born last Thanksgiving Day. Last January my master chose me from all my brothers and sisters to go live with him and his wife and their 5 children in Lake Zurich. I was very proud! For the past 7 months I've had the time of my life. But now I'm growing faster than the kids. My master says maybe he's being unfair to me. So we sat down and had a "master to dog" talk. He told me of my ancestory . . . of how my mother loves hunting with her master . . and how I am AKC registered and what it means . . . that I've had all my shots and never been sick a day in my short life . . . of why I love to run and play in a BIG yard . . . and that I am the friskiest, most lovable dog he has ever owned. So we agreed, in choked voices, that if there is a family somewhere that has a lot of room for me to romp and play, and maybe a possibility to be taught hunting, I would be able to enjoy my life to its fullest and we all would be happy. If anyone would like to help us out, call 438-8003 for further details. Resume furnished on request. P.S. You have to have a big box of chocolate cookies!

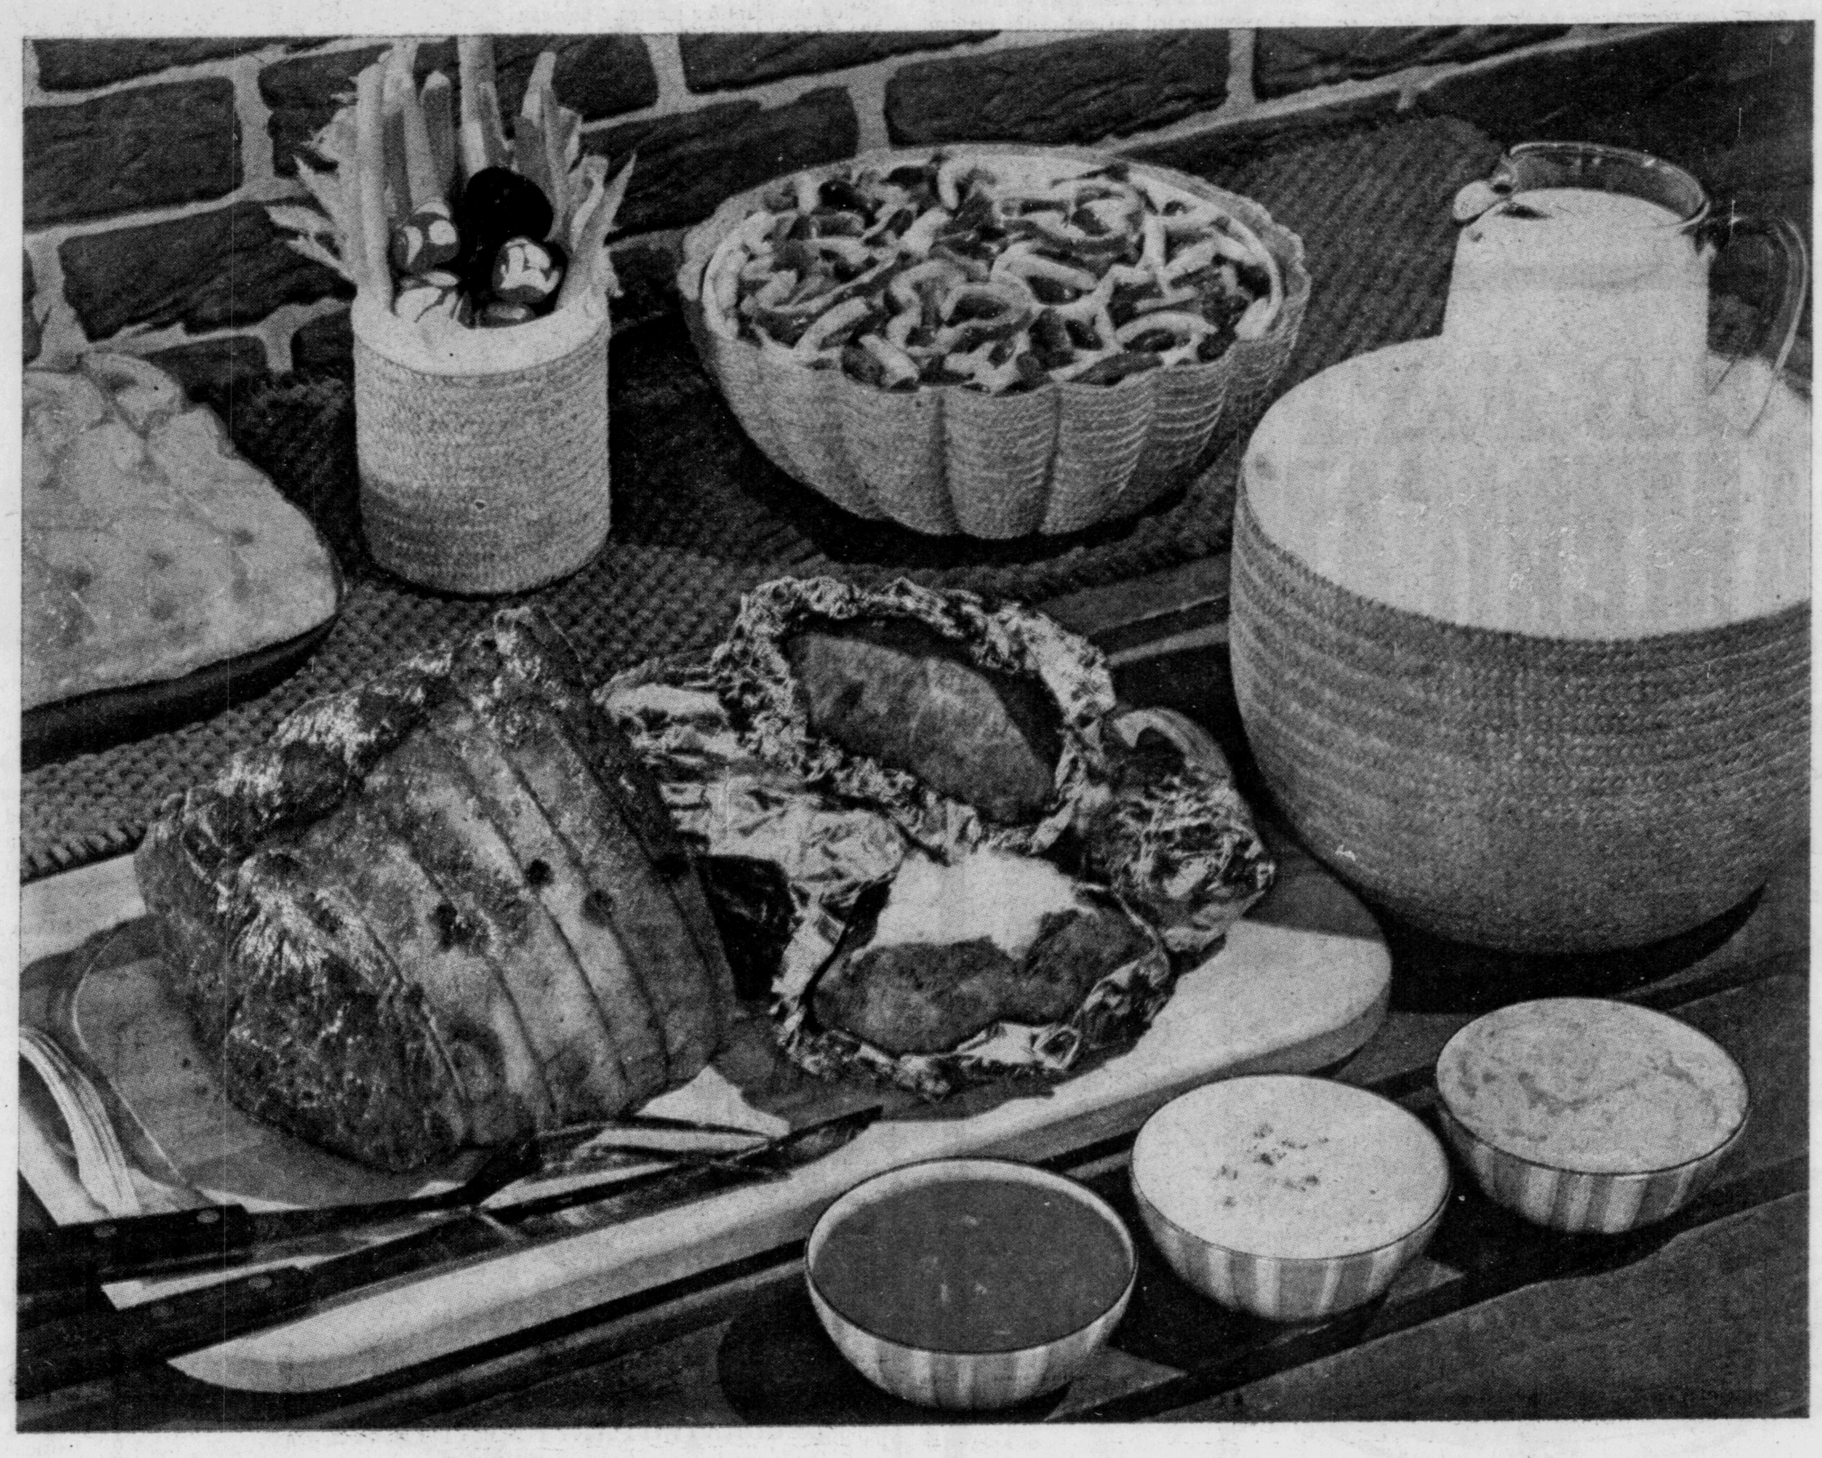
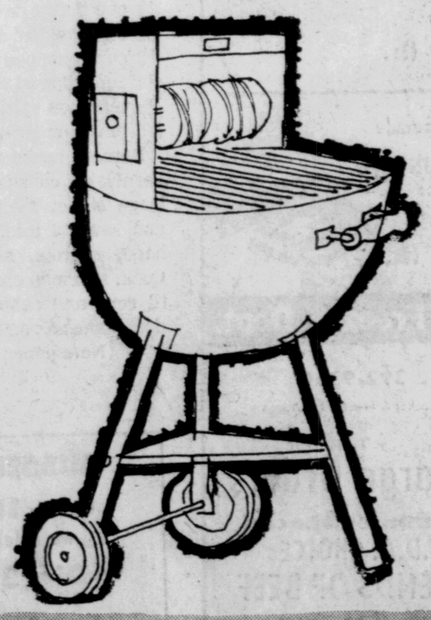
AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD



Great Grillings!

This is the season for outdoor cooking, time to give yourself a change from the usual indoor meals and relax with refreshing outdoor meals. Choose cool, easy-fixing recipes and do as much as you can ahead of time. Fresh air stokes up family appetites for casual outdoor meals.

For an entirely different type of cooking, plan a patio party around a rotisserie rump roast. Cook it to tender perfection on the spit of your outdoor grill or in a rotisserie oven. For a new twist serve a choice of toppers for the roast made with Blue cheese or Cheddar. The Cheddar topper will double for use on the baked potato. To add an impressive touch to this outdoor meal bake the dessert — a pineapple upside down cake — on the grill.



ROTISSERIE RUMP ROAST

Insert rotisserie rod lengthwise into a 4-5 pound rump roast; fasten meat securely so that it turns only with the rod. Insert meat thermometer at a slight angle. Attach rod with meat and start motor. Cook 1½-2 hours or until desired degree of doneness. Serve with Tomato-Blue Cheese Sauce or Sour Cream-Blue Cheese Sauce.

Tomato-Blue Cheese Sauce

½ cup (1 stick) butter
½ cup catsup
½ cup crumbled Blue cheese

In a small saucepan combine butter and catsup; heat, stirring occasionally, until butter is melted and mixture hot. Add Blue cheese; stir until cheese is melted. Spoon over slices of rump roast. Yield: 1½ cups.

Sour Cream-Blue Cheese Sauce

2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ cup crumbled Blue cheese

In a small saucepan combine sour cream, vinegar, mustard, sugar and Blue cheese. Heat, stirring constantly, until warm. (Do not boil). Yield: 1⅓ cups.

WHIPPED CHEESE TOPPER FOR BAKED POTATOES

½ cup (1 stick) butter
2 cups (½ lb.) shredded Cheddar cheese
½ teaspoon oregano

In small mixing bowl cream butter until light and fluffy; add Cheddar cheese and continue to beat until mixture is smooth. Stir in oregano. Good over hot baked potatoes. Yield: 1 cup.

GRILLED PINEAPPLE UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) sliced pineapple, drained
1 package (9 oz.) yellow cake mix
Whipped cream or ice cream

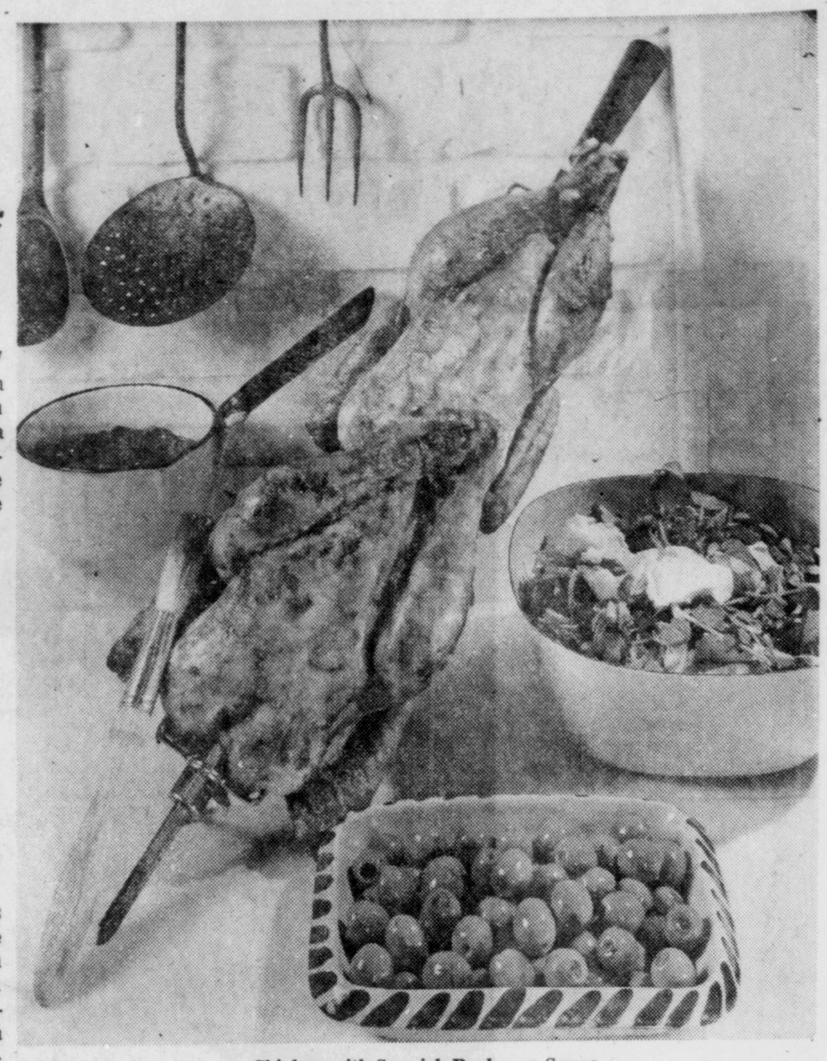
In 9-inch, square baking pan melt butter; sprinkle with sugar. Cut pineapple slices in half and arrange in bottom of pan. Prepare cake mix according to package directions; pour over pineapple. Cover top of pan securely with aluminum foil. Place pan on charcoal broiler grill 4-5 inches from hot coals and allow to bake 20-30 minutes or until cake is done. Turn upside down onto serving plate. Cut into squares and serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream. 9 servings.

Chicken Without Barbecue Sauce Is Like A Cake Without Frosting

Most families are big on chicken — particularly when it's spit-roasted either in the oven or on an outdoor grill and basted with a spicy barbecue sauce. Barbecue sauce is kind of like frosting on a cake — it's the reason most of us enjoy barbecue so much. And this barbecue sauce is a particularly good blend of a sweet and savory tomato sauce with chopped pimiento-stuffed olives and raisins to lend flavor and texture. Spanish olives, the pimiento-stuffed green ones, are a favorite for picnics whether they are chopped for a sauce, sliced for a salad, or served whole for nibbling before and during the meal. And they are light in calories too, only 4 to 5 calories per olive.

When barbecuing larger pieces of meat such as a whole chicken or a roast, it's a good idea to cook the meat for a while without the sauce, then start to brush on the sauce toward the end of the grilling time. Otherwise, the outside chars before the inside is cooked. For small pieces of meat — frankfurters and hamburgers — the sauce can be brushed on at the beginning of the grilling time.

Marinated salads of cooked and raw vegetables that don't get soggy with standing are ideal for picnics. They can be packed in a plastic container with a tight-fitting cover and carried in the chiller. Add some meat or seafood to the salad, and it becomes the main course for the picnic.



Chicken with Spanish Barbecue Sauce

CHICKEN WITH SPANISH BARBECUE SAUCE

2 broiler-fryer chickens (3 pounds each)
Salad oil
Salt and pepper
3 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce with onions
1 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
1/3 cup seedless raisins
6 tablespoons water
6 tablespoons honey
1½ tablespoons vinegar
2 teaspoons soy sauce
2 cloves garlic, crushed

Tie legs of chicken together; fold wings under back. Brush with oil and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Balance chicken on rotisserie spit; secure with skewers. Place pan under chicken to catch drippings. Roast chickens 9 inches from source of heat for about 1½ hours or until meat thermometer registers 190 degrees.

Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients in saucepan and cook over low heat 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Brush chickens with sauce during last 15 minutes of roasting time. Heat remaining sauce and serve with chickens. Makes 8 servings.

MARINATED OLIVE SHRIMP SALAD

2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen lima beans
1 can (16 ounces) small white onions
2/3 cup cider vinegar
1/3 cup olive oil
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 teaspoons capers
1 bay leaf, crushed
½ teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 pounds shrimp, cooked, shelled and cleaned
1 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
½ cup thinly sliced celery
Lettuce

Cook lima beans according to package directions; cool. Drain onions; reserve 1/3 cup onion liquid. Mix together vinegar, oil, onion liquid, garlic, capers, bay leaf, basil, salt and pepper. Pour over shrimp, lima beans, onions, olives, and celery. Chill several hours, stirring occasionally. Serve salad on lettuce if desired. Makes 8 servings.

ITT Continental 'Open Dates' Bread

A system designed to help shoppers buy the freshest bread possible has been established nationally by ITT Continental Baking Company for its Wonder white enriched bread, according to M. Cabell Woodward Jr., president. The system is called "open dating" and involves clearly labeling each loaf with a guaranteed freshness time period.

Mr. Woodward stated that the dating program, begun in the New York area last September, was extended to all Wonder Bread markets last month. Wonder is the first nationally distributed wholesale brand to be "open dated."

The program calls for a "pull date" on every twist-tie closure. The "pull date," is the date through which the shopper is guaranteeed that the product meets Wonder Bread's freshness requirements. However, the bread is still fresh for consumption several days after the "pull date."

The company pledges that the bread is sold fresh through the day printed on the twist-tie of every wrapper. A new twist-tie is being used with a broader surface and larger type than those previously used in Northeastern markets. In addition, the twist-ties are color coded so that consumers can spot the pull date quickly.

Corn, Cabbage Combo

Fresh corn remains a summer favorite. For barbecues, try a change of pace dish with a Corn and Cabbage Saute. Merely cut uncooked fresh corn from the cob and combine with scallions or fresh green onions, chopped cabbage and slivered carrots. Saute quickly. This dish may be cooked on a camp stove or barbecue unit.

CORN AND CABBAGE SAUTE

5 ears fresh Florida corn
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup chopped scallions
2 cups chopped cabbage
¼ cup slivered carrots
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper

Remove husks and silks from corn. Cut kernels off cobs (makes about 3 cups). In large skillet melt butter. Add scallions and saute 3 minutes. Stir in corn, cabbage, carrots, salt and black pepper. Cook, stirring constantly 5 minutes or until corn and cabbage are just crisp-tender. Makes 6 portions.

Homemade Breakfast Breads

Baked To Awaken Sleepy Appetites

What's for breakfast? Usually, too little. One of the reasons many people skip breakfast is because they regard it as the dullest meal of the day. The hasty dash out the door, tummy empty, is more than a nutritional loss. Tests have shown that people skipping breakfast were slower in reactions, turned out less work and used up more energy for the same amount of work than those who had taken the time to eat.

Fresh homemade bread and rolls will stimulate bored appetites. Breads contribute thiamine, niacin, riboflavin and protein to your diet. The carbohydrate they contain is a good source of energy for the day's activities. Sugar's main role in breadmaking is to produce fermentation. It reacts with the yeast and makes the dough rise more quickly and helps the crust to brown. Too much sugar slows down the action of the yeast cells.

A basic bread recipe such as Buttermilk Bread may be varied for breakfast as many times as the cook's imagination allows. Cheddar cheese added to the dough gives it a tangy flavor. The bread takes on an interesting shape when baked in 6-ounce juice cans. A filling of brown sugar, cinnamon and chopped walnuts turns the plain buttermilk dough into sweet rolls. Change the filling to spiced prune and ice the rolls with powdered sugar frosting for a finished appearance. Candied fruits and almonds transform the basic dough into a festive round coffee cake.

Breakfast Breads

Bread has not escaped the craze for herbs and seasonings that has swept this county in the last ten years. Herb breads are good for breakfast when served with bland flavored dishes such as eggs or cereal. They usually contain sugar to react with the yeast for rising but are not as sweet as many breakfast rolls. Dill Bread has a strong onion and dill seed flavor. It is good warmed in foil on a grill for a patio breakfast.

DILL BREAD

- 1 package dry yeast
- ¼ cup warm water
- 1 cup large-curd cottage cheese
- 1 egg lightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon dill seed
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- Additional melted butter
- Coarse salt

Dissolve yeast in warm water for 10 minutes. Heat cottage cheese until lukewarm. In a large bowl combine the warm cheese with the yeast, egg, grated onion, 1 tablespoon melted butter, sugar, dill seed, salt and baking soda. Gradually add the flour, enough to make a stiff batter, beating thoroughly after each addition. Place dough in a buttered bowl, cover with a linentowelandletrise in a warm place until doubled in bulk.Punch the dough down, knead it for one minute and turn into a buttered 1½ quart casserole. Cover and let rise 30 to 40 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes, until done. If it begins to brown too much on top, cover with foil for the last 15 minutes of baking. Remove from oven, brush top with melted butter and sprinkle with coarse salt. Makes 1 round loaf.

BUTTERMILK BREAD

- ¼ cup shortening
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- ¼ cup warm water
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

Beat shortening and sugar together. Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add 1 cup buttermlik; set aside. Sift 4 cups flour with soda, baking powder and salt; add to sugar mixture alternately with yeast mixture and second cup of buttermilk. Work in enough of the 2 cups flour to make a soft dough. Place dough in a bowl; cover and refrigerate 7 to 10 days. Remove from refrigerator. Divide in two parts. Put into two greased 9x5 inch loaf pans or form into rolls. Let dough rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Bake loaves at 375 degrees for 20 to 40 minutes until golden brown. Loaves will sound hollow when tapped on base. Baking time for rolls is shorter. Makes 2 loaves or 48 rolls.

MINI CHEESE LOAVES

- ¼ recipe refrigerated Buttermilk Bread dough
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 2 cups grated sharp cheddar cheese
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Roll dough out ½-inch thick. Sprinkle with oregano and half the cheese. Fold dough toward the center dispersing the cheese into the dough. Continue the process with the remaining cheese until it is distributed throughout the dough. Knead five minutes. Shape into 2-inch balls. Grease and line base of 12 (6 ox.) cans with butter. Place a ball of dough in each can. Arrange cans on a cookie sheet. Let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown. Cut the loaves in ¼-inch thick slices and spread with favorite jams or jellies. Makes 12 loaves.

Note: These small loaves are excellent for hors d'oeuvres. No crusts to trim off; already pre-shaped circles.

Festive Coffee Ring

- ½ recipe refrigerated Buttermilk Bread dough
- ½ cup mixed candied fruit
- ½ cup citrus fruit peel
- ¼ cup blanched, chopped almonds
- ¼ cup melted butter
- Additional candied fruit
- ½ cup maraschino cherries
- 1½ cups confectioners' sugar, sifted
- 1 egg white

Let dough rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough; knead in mixed candied fruit, citrus peel and almonds. Divide dough in half. Roll each piece of dough into a 24-inch rope. Twist ropes together loosely. Form into a ring on a greased baking sheet. Brush with melted butter. Decorate surface with nests of additional candied fruit. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes until done. Cool on a wire rack. Decorate with maraschino cherries. Beat confectioners' sugar and egg white until smooth. Frost coffee ring. Make 8 to 10 servings.

PRUNE SQUARES

- 1 cup chopped, pitted prunes
- 2/3 cup water
- ½ cup sugar
- 1½ tablespoons cornstarch
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground allspice
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cloves
- ¼ cup chopped walnuts
- ¼ recipe refrigerated Buttermilk Bread dough
- 1½ cups confectioners' sugar sifted
- 1 egg white

Combine prunes, water, sugar, cornstach, cinnamon, allspice and cloves in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in walnuts. Cool. Meanwhile roll dough into two 9-inch square pieces. Press one piece into bottom of greased 9-inch square pan. Spread with prune filling. Cover with second square of dough; seal edges. Slash surface of the dough to allow steam to escape. Cover, let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes until done. Cool in pan. Beat confectioners' sugar and egg white until smooth. Frost coffee cake while still warm. Cut into 24 squares.

Mexican Flavor In American Style

by LOIS SEILER

"Spanish-Americans may be amused by what we call a 'Mexican dinner', but we love it," smiled Mrs. Henry W. Speer of Mount Prospect. "It is a meal-in-one and ideal for a light Saturday night company or family supper," Marilyn Speer added.

Assembled in layers in a large bowl, it consists of ingredients common to many Mexican-style dishes: Fritos, browned ground beef, kidney or pinto beans, salad ingredients and shredded cheese with an enchilada sauce poured over all. The combination of textures and flavors make this an interesting meal, and the hot sauce gives it tang.

Another "quickie" that makes an appealing late evening snack is her Pizza Hero Loaf.

Italian bread is split lengthwise and covered with a mixture of ground beef, pizza sauce, onion, seasonings and grated cheese. Broiled until brown, the "sandwiches" are then covered with Mozarella cheese and additional pizza sauce and broiled again until bubbly.

Marilyn cuts the loaves in 2 to 3-inch pieces and serves them as a tasty snack with beer.

During the summer months she likes to make a coffee cake utilizing fresh fruits that are in season.

"My husband is of German descent and loves kuchens," Marilyn said. "However, as a young bride I wasn't very good at yeast doughs," she admitted frankly, "so I was delighted to find a good baking powder recipe." The recipe is so good that Marilyn has been using it for the past 15 years.

"It is also very quick and easy to prepare and is made with ingredients one always has on hand — except, perhaps, the fruit," she said.

Marilyn is partial to the Italian plums which are in abundance this time of year, but she also likes to use peaches and apples.

"The kuchen is at its best fresh from the oven," she remarked. Along with winning the approval of her husband, it also makes a hit with their children, Kyle, 14, and Jean, 12.

MEXICAN DINNER

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 can kidney or pinto beans (do not drain)
- 1 medium-size bag Fritos
- 1 small can mild enchilada sauce
- 1 small (8-ounce) can tomato sauce
- ½ head lettuce, shredded
- ½ green pepper, chopped
- ½ onion, chopped
- 1 tomato, chopped
- 1 cup sharp Cheddar or longhorn cheese, grated

Brown meat; add salt and pepper to taste. Warm beans in a saucepan. Warm Fritos in oven. Combine enchilada sauce and tomato sauce and heat in a saucepan.

When ready to serve, layer the ingredients in a very large serving bowl in the following manner: first the Fritos, then meat, then beans, then lettuce, green pepper, onion and tomato and lastly the cheese. Pour hot tomato and enchilada sauce over all and serve immediately. Serves 6.

PIZZA HERO LOAF

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 10½-ounce can pizza sauce
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon oregano
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 long loaf Italian bread
- Sliced Mozarella cheese

Mix meat with ¼ cup pizza sauce, onion, seasonings and Parmesan cheese.

Split bread lengthwise. Spread each half with meat mixture, being sure to cover bread well. Broil about 4 inches from heat for ten minutes, or until meat is thoroughly browned.

Cover with Mozarella slices. Pour remainder of pizza sauce over sandwiches and heat in broiler an additional five minutes to melt cheese and make sauce bubble. Cut in 2 to 3-inch pieces and serve as a snack. Serves 5 to 6.

FRUIT KUCHEN

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/8 teaspoon mace
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 1 egg, well-beaten
- ¼ cup butter, melted
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 3 tablespoons granulated sugar
- Sliced fresh Italian plums, peaches or apples

Sift together the flour, salt, baking powder, mace and ½ cup sugar.

Combine milk, egg and melted butter. Stir into dry ingredients just until blended.

Pour batter into a buttered, 9 by 13-inch pan. Cover closely with fresh sliced fruit. Mix together cinnamon and 3 tablespoons sugar. Sprinkle over fruit and dot with butter.

Bake at 375 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. While hot, sprinkle with another tablespoon or so of sugar, depending on tartness of fruit. Best served fresh and warm. Serves 12.

Hearty Fare Starts The Day

For a hearty Western-style breakfast serve eggs with French fries.

WESTERN BREAKFAST

- 1/3 cup butter
- 1 large jar (5-oz.) sliced dried beef
- 1 package (1-lb.) frozen French fried potatoes
- 8 eggs
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup grated cheese
- Pepper

For each serving, melt 1½ tablespoons butter in an 8-inch omelet pan; add 2 tablespoons minced dried beef and ¼ of the potatoes. Cook until potatoes are golden brown on all sides. Arrange potatoes in a single layer on bottom of pan. Combine 2 slightly beaten eggs, 2 tablespoons cheese and a dash of pepper; pour over potatoes. Lift edges and tip pan to allow egg mixture to run under edges as it cooks. When egg mixture is set (center of egg will still be soft since heat of potatoes will cook it after it is turned out), carefully fold and turn out of pan. Serve with catsup if desired. Makes 4 servings.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is soliciting views from consumers to determine whether there is a distinctive style or type of product recognized as "Italian Sausage."

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) has received a petition to label a product as "Italian Style Sausage." Federal meat inspection regulations require that terms referring to a locality different than that in which the product is prepared may appear on the label only when qualified by the word, "style" or "type." When the word, "style" is used, there must be a recognized style of product identified with and peculiar to the area represented by the geographic term. The product must possess characteristics of this style.

Details of the proposal — including a proposed standard of composition for "Italian Sausage" — appearedin the July 14 Federal Register. Copies are available from the Meat and Poultry Inspection Administrative Group, APHIS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Comments on the proposal should be sent in two copies by Sept. 12 to the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, Washington, D.C. 20250.

THE USDA IS also seeking public comments on a revised proposal to set standards and labeling requirements for country and country-style pork products.

The revision proposes requirements designed to ensure that hams and pork shoulders labeled "country" of "country-style" have characteristics traditionally associated with such products — that is, that they are properly "dried out" and have a high salt content.

The revision, if adopted, would require processing to ensure that the products shrink at least 18 per cent below the weight of the raw meat, and to have a salt content of at least four per cent. The revision would add honey, approved sweeteners, and other spices and flavoring to the list of optional ingredients which may be used. Some previous proposed curing and aging requirements have also been changed slightly.

As at present, the products would still have to be prepared so as to destroy any live trichina in the meat.

Comments and copy requests should be directed to the same addresses listed above. The deadline is Sept. 11 for comments on the pork terms.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Hawaiian cuisine has widespread impact on the mainland. It's not only that our sole island state attracts tourists by the thousands but also that Hawaiian cooking represents a blend of many national interests.

It may be Polynesian or Japanese, Chinese or Filipino, Spanish, Portugese or American. But, for variety and unusual taste ingredients, there's a world of interesting things to do Hawaiian style.

One is this pork roast with a peanut butter crust reflecting how big a favorite peanut butter is with island chefs. Allow about ¾ pound per person for this delight product although it might serve slightly more.

I did a 4-pound loin roast. Heat the oven to 300 and set the roast, seasoned with salt and pepper, on a rack above about an inch of water. Roast for 2 to 2½ hours. If you use a meat thermometer, which is highly recommended, bring the roast to 160 degrees.

Meanwhile blend 1/3 cup peanut butter with 1/3 cup fresh orange juice, and add a slice of sugar ginger cut fine and about 1 ounce soya sauce. Stir well. Brush the roast with this mixture every 10 minutes until the thermometer comes to 185 which means fresh pork is done.

Garnish the roast with slices of oranges or whole kumquats.

THIS DISH ALSO can be done on a spit over charcoal although you must be very careful not to char it when the peanut butter mixture is basted. I'd suggest having the spit high above the coals and pushing fire to the sides during the basting.

For dessert with a Hawaiian touch, try this parfait. Chill stemmed champagne or sherbet glasses. Place slices of fresh pineapple to cover the bottom, then top with the generous scoop of vanilla or peppermint ice cream.

Pour over a half jigger of green creme de menthe. Sprinkle with toasted coconut, then cover with crushed pecans and top with a maraschino cherry. Beautiful and good!

Do have a favorite Hawaiian recipe or a question about food? Write Chuck Flynn, care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. For personal reply, please enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

New Cookbooks Could Slow Organic Food Boom

by JEANNE LESEM

If anything can slow the progress of the natural and organic foods boom, it may be cookbooks rushed to press in recent months.

Even some otherwise good ones are flawed by undocumented and thereby questionable condemnation of aluminum and Teflon-lined cookware as dangerous to health; often inadequate cooking directions; and misinformation, including a sauce recipe that calls for 3 tablespoons of arrowroot to 1 cup of liquid. Arrowroot has twice the thickening power of flour, so the suggested proportions produced a texture more akin to paste than sauce.

Despite drawbacks, some new publications have good ideas for using familiar and unfamiliar ingredients.

Some capsule reviews follow:

"The Vegetarian Epicure" by Anna Thomas, Knopf hardcover, Vintage Books paperback, is the first such book to make meatless, fishless meals sound truly appetizing. Recipes include such little known dishes as pizza rustica, an Italian-cheese-filled main dish pie; almond and artichoke soups and riosetto, AN Italian rice with vegetables casserole.

"The Eatgood Revival" by Holly Finlay and Judy Wallace, Hastings House, is a charming, hand-lettered production but purists doubtless would object to souffle made with packaged tapioca mix and apple cake made from a biscuit mix, alongside such health food favorites as roasted soybeans, home dried beef jerky and homemade breakfast cereal containing dried fruit and nuts.

"The Organic Grow It, Cook It, Preserve It Guidebook" by Barbara and D. A. Fenten, Grosset & Dunlap, is valuable chiefly for the gardening, canning and freezing information. There's lots of practical advice on planting and protecting produce from natural predators without endangering people or the environment.

Both Maureen Goldsmith, "The Organic Yenta," Atheneum and Crescent Dargonwagon, "The Commune Cookbook," Simon and Shuster, are "into" the language of the counterculture as well as its recipes and special ingredients, including nutritional yeast, pumpkin, sunflower and sesame seeds, alfalfa sprouts, cold-pressed oils and tamari soy sauce. The texts read like put-ons.

"COOKING CREATIVELY With Natural Foods" by Edith and Sam Brown, Hawthorn, resembles a sales pitch for the authors' restaurant - bakerystore that has been a New York landmark since 1936. Many ingredients are designated by brand names. Foods I can well live without include strawberry corn bread, avocado rye bread and a beverage called cherry chirp. It consists of water, nonfat dry milk, brewers yeast, lecithin, a soybean product, cherry concentrate and honey.

Jane Kinderlehrer in "Confessions of a Sneaky Organic Cook" Rodale Press, has some good cooking ideas, including ways of putting life undetectably into ground meat dishes. She also advocates self-dosage with vitamins and blames dietary deficiences for such diverse ailments as anxiety, swollen gums, chapped lips, burning feet, varicose veins and backache.

Natural foods as they used to be are covered nostalgically by Marie Nightingale's "Out of Old Nova Scotia Kitchens," Scribners, and Sandra Oddo's "Home Made," Atheneum. Appealing dishes in the former include green tomato mincemeat, scones, folk wines, fiddlehead greens, cinnamon and ostrich fern heads gathered before they unfurl and homemade sausages.

Miss Oddo's book is an interesting period piece with recipes that include boiled poke greens, primrose wine, stewed breadfruit, baked taro and soup made from a 40 to 50-pound turtle. Even recipes using widely available ingredients are sometimes questionable. For instance, lobster boiled 30 minutes to an hour will almost certainly be tough. And how many ketchup fanciers do you know who will spend hours making a product they can buy commercially at reasonable prices?

(United Press International)

Fact Sheet Available

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) published fact sheets to explain standards, regulations, laws and policies it enforces. Two recent fact sheets explain milk and milk by-products such as coffee lightners, which are imitations of cream and symbols on food labels such as C indicates the label is copyright.

Mrs. Virginia H. Knauer, director of the Office of Consumer Affairs, says consumers may obtain copies of the publication, "FDA Fact Sheet," by writing to Food and Drug Administration, Office of Consumers Affairs, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockfille, Md. 20852.

Fruit Syrup

A steaming stack of pancakes is one of the best ways to greet the day. Next time your menu calls for them (or waffles), why not serve a syrup with a new idea atop?

Peach 'n Berry Pancake Syrup is an easily created sauce that's off to a special beginning with pre-sweetened strawberry drink mix. The mix is combined with corn syrup and a can of sliced peaches and simmered only five minutes for a refreshing flavor blend.

Use this idea to create other fruit flavored sauces, too. For example, you might combine raspberry drink mix with blueberries or frozen raspberries, the orange drink mix with sliced pears or peaches.

PEACH 'N BERRY PANCAKE SYRUP

1 package pre-sweetened strawberry soft drink mix (2 quart size)
1/3 cup light corn syrup
1 can (1 lb.) sliced peaches, undrained

In large saucepan, combine powdered drink mix with syrup and undrained peaches. Bring to a boil; simmer 5 minutes. Serve hot over pancakes or waffles. Store in refrigerator. Makes 2½ cups.

Perky Party Tricks

Make use of the wheelbarrow when entertaining in the yard. Clean it out, line with foil and fill with ice. Then add bottled or canned drinks or fresh fruits or salads on plates. The huge ice tray will keep things cool and crisp.

Use pretzel sticks instead of toothpicks to serve cheese squares, olives and other munchies.

Royal Orange Coffee Cake

Royal Orange Coffee Cake is a "something special" breakfast bread. Special because it's easy to make, fun to serve and simply delicious!

This sunny breakfast bread begins with a can of refrigerated orange Danish rolls and is so easy to put together that it's a perfect idea for "Mother's helper" to create.

To make, the rolls are separated, dipped in coconut, then arranged on a cookie sheet to form a flower-like ring. After baking, top the warm coffee cake with a flavorful mixture of cream cheese and the packaged orange-flavored icing. For the finishing touch, sprinkle with toasted coconut.

Serve warm with freshly brewed coffee, chilled juices or fruit and a platter of fluffy scrambled eggs and sausage.

ROYAL ORANGE COFFEE CAKE

- 1 can (11 ounces) refrigerated orange Danish rolls with icing
- ½ cup flaked coconut
- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
- Toasted coconut

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease cookie sheet. Toast 2 tablespoons coconut; set aside. Separate dough into 8 rolls. Press one side of rolls into remaining coconut. Arrange rolls, coconut-side-up, to form an 8-inch ring on prepared cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown. In small bowl, combine icing and cream cheese; beat until light and fluffy. Spread over warm coffee cake. Sprinkle with toasted coconut. Serve warm. Store in refrigerator.

Social Security and You

Q. My neighbor just told me his wife received a social security check for over $1,000. She hasn't worked for a few years because of arthritis and high blood pressure but is only 50 years old. How could she get this money?

A. Regardless of age, a disabled person can get social security benefits if he or she has worked enough in work covered under social security. If a person does not apply immediately after they become eligible for benefits, we can go back one year from the time he applies and pay a retroactive check to cover several months. However, if a person waits longer than this, he could lose benefits. A pamphlet, "If You Become Disabled" explains the requirements and disability program. You can call 239-7000 or contact your local social security office for copies of this pamphlet.

Q. I will be 65 later this year, and I plan to sign up for Medicare. Since over half the year will have passed when I reach 65, must I still meet the $50 medical insurance deductible for this year before medical insurance will help pay my bills?

A. Yes. Even though your medical insurance coverage starts late in the year, the $50 annual deductible will have to be met before any reimbursement can be made on your medical expenses this year, and only medical bills after the effective date of your medical insurance coverage can be counted toward the deductible.

However, if you have covered expenses in the last three months of a year that can count toward your $50 annual deductible for that year, these expenses can be used again to help you meet the deductible for the next year.

Q. I have some social security questions, where can I go to discuss them with a social security representative?

A. Most social security questions can be answered at our Social Security Service Center. Call 239-7000. If it is necessary for you to go to your local social security office, the representative at the Center will tell you where it is located. If you live in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Inverness, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows or Wheeling, your office is at 120 W. Eastman, Arlington Heights.

The Search For Mental Health

When A Baby Shuns Physical Contact . . .

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, one of the foremost hospitals devoted to the care of the mentally ill. Forest Hospital is known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Most babies thrive on affection and tenderness. Rarely do infants withdraw from physical contact — especially from their mothers.

Infantile autism is a syndrome that affects three of every 10,000 newborns. Within the first three months of his life the infant with autism can be found not interacting with its parents like a normal baby does. The baby withdraws from physical contact and at the age where a child should start eye-to-eye contact with his mother (one to two months or earlier) the autistic child will not.

"Mothers later describe these children as perfect," explained Dr. James White, a psychiatrist from Galveston, Tex., who works with autistic children. "They think their child is perfect because he never cried or caused trouble. Since the autistic child is usually first-born the parents don't realize that there's something wrong with the infant because they don't know how infants behave."

ACCORDING TO Dr. White, a mother usually becomes increasingly aware that her child doesn't like to be held. "Often the feeding is taken in a very mechanical way. Most normal babies respond warmly to mother when she's feeding while the autistic child will take the bottle until he's finished and then turn away. Also he will frequently lie alone for hours undisturbed without making any noises or crying. This is not normal at all."

Dr. White said the primary defect in the autistic child is his lack of language by the age of five. Those who don't use language at all past the fifth birthday have an extremely poor outlook.

"The best approach to helping an autistic child is the psycho-educational approach which puts emphasis on language development. In studies made in England it was found that the more successful adjustment made in adolescence is made by those whildren with more exposure to higher amounts of educational experience or in other words much more language stimulation.

"Another factor which helps," Dr. White continued, "is for the parent to accept the child's condition and his limitations and to take an active part in working with him."

DR. WHITE explained that even with the best approach a maximum of 30 per cent of those children afflicted with infantile autism will achieve satisfactory social adjustment in adolescence. "This means they can return to regular classrooms and can take care of their own personal needs. Of the other 70 per cent, 25 per cent end up being institutionalized because they can never care for themselves and a large per cent later turn out to be mentally retarded. The autistic child who is institutionalized early develops irreversible mental retardation."

Psychiatrists and physicians do not know what causes infantile autism. They do know that autistic children are found in all socio-economic strata and the preponderance are males and more first born infants are affected but one autistic child in a family doesn't mean there is liely to be another.

"Having an autistic child," added Dr. White, "is very difficult for the parent. It's not like having a retarded child. When you get the diagnosis you have some idea what to expect from the retarded child and what to do about him. But you have an autistic child and no one knows what to tell you and the parents cling to the last bit of hope that maybe something will come along."

Would You Aid Someone In Elevator?

by RICK VAN SANT

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — A handful of coins clatter to the floor of a crowded elevator.

Although a few people clear their throat, no one offers to help the man who dropped the change pick it up. So the man rounds up his loose coins by himself and jots something in a notebook.

A little later, the man gets in an elevator in another building. He drops another handful of coins. Again he has to pick them up himself.

That "accident," with its effects on passengers dutifully noted, was repeated 1,500 times in three American cities.

"The more people on an elevator the less likely I was to get help picking up the coins," concluded the purposely clumsy Dr. Bibb Latane, an Ohio State University social psychologist.

THE ELEVATOR experiment is the basis for two major academic papers Latane is presenting at psychology conferences in Tokyo and Honolulu this summer.

Latane's experiments make the point that if you need help, it's better to have one bystander than a crowd.

"People are embarrassed — inhibited — by other people," Latane said in previewing his papers. "I call it diffusion of responsibility.

"If you're alone, all the responsibility for action is on you. But if you're only one of a crowd, then diffusion of responsibility comes in. The responsibility is divided up. You don't feel you have to act. And many people don't."

Latane, along with some of his students, dropped handfuls of coins or pencils more than 1,500 times in elevators. Latane performed some of the experiments in Columbus and some in Seattle, Wash., where he was a visiting professor at the University of Washington.

A GEORGIA STATE University professor, Dr. James Dabbs, let coins slip through his fingers in Atlanta elevators to contribute to Latane's study.

"When only one person was in the elevator, we found he helped pick up the coins 50 per cent of the time," Latane said. "The more people on an elevator, the less help the coin dropper got.

"When two to four persons were on the elevator, an average of 31 per cent helped. Wtih five to seven persons aboard, 16 per cent reacted. With eight or more persons, 4 per cent helped.

"Men were more likely to give help, but if the clumsy person was a woman, she received assistance more often than the man," Latane said.

The Volunteer Bureau

A Key Factor In Any Successful Program: Training

by ESTHER RABCHUK

Training is the key factor in a successful volunteer program.

The Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County emphasizes during interviews, consultations and training programs that the volunteer needs to know what is expected of him. He needs to know how to handle possible problems, and he needs to know — eventually if not right away — how his role fits into the total program of the agency he serves.

He also needs to know such things as "where do I hang my coat?" and "who do I go to if I have a problem I can't handle?" in addition to knowing in some way that the agency appreciates having him there by saying so and by including him in an eyeball-to-eyeball relationship rather than a condescending one.

THE BRIDGE, a youth counseling service in Palatine, will be starting another training program for its volunteers. Aug. 9 is the first of eight sessions to be held Wednesday evenings and Sunday afternoons throughout the month to orient, train, and possibly screen volunteers to handle the crisis telephone the Bridge maintains.

After completing the training, the volunteer is asked to give one four-hour session a week either during the 2-6 p.m. tour of duty, which is available five days a week, or the 6-10 p.m. tour which is held daily.

The Bridge asks for a commitment of five months, again recognizing that volunteers are not paid employes and that one of the primary reasons that they do not seek paid employment is the fact that they cannot or do not want to commit themselves for long intervals.

Volunteers for the Bridge range in age from high school seniors to late maturity. The majority are young adults, including young marrieds. The criteria for being a successful crisis telephone volunteer is not an age factor, but rather enthusiasm, adaptability and collectiveness.

The phone number to call is 359-7490 after 2 p.m. if you are interested in serving the Bridge as a volunteer in their crisis telephone program.

TRAINING PROGRAMS are meaningful to the volunteers in the schools also. Mayme Andrews, who was designated Volunteer of the Month by the Bureau at its July meeting, will be one of a team including Roland Goins, principal of Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, who will conduct a training session for other high school volunteer coordinators and their principals late in August.

The Volunteer Bureau is fortunate in having experienced volunteer coordinators in some of the schools who can aid in training other volunteer coordinators who will be serving schools. This year the training programs are being geared to train both coordinator and principal, as the experience of the past years has been one of recognizing the importance of the cooperative nature of the assignment. Donald Stipe is the chairman of the education committee of the Volunteer Bureau, which includes James Hall, Robert Guthrie and Mike Zawacke, all of whom are principals of schools in the Northwest suburbs. The time and place of these training programs has not yet been set.

The Bureau office hours will be expanded to Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday from9 to 2 starting Aug. 21. The phone number at the central office at 799 W. Kensington Road, Mount Prospect, is 398-1320. The branch offices will be opening at about the same time as schools open and the Branch directors, who are volunteers, will be available to maintain the offices. Branch offices are located in Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect.

Pill Linked To Certain Breast Cancer

by DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) — Drs. Maurice M. Black and Henry P. Leis Jr. are among the medical scientists who suspect that "the pill" is somehow involved in the development of some breast cancers despite a present lack of direct evidence.

They sought indirect evidence and found it in 658 women that Leis, a surgical specialist in breast diseases, treated for breast growths, benign as well as malignant, over a six-year period. Black was the pathologist who in all cases determined malignancy or its absence.

These women were divided into subgroups: (1) those who were under 50 at the time of treatment; (2) those who were over 50; (3) those who were taking estrogens, either in "the pill" or as medication for menopausal disorders; (4) those who weren't: (5) those who had full-term pregnancies; (6) those who hadn't.

OF THE WOMEN UNDER 50 with benign growths, 39 were regular users of "the pill" and 253 were non-users. Twenty-three per cent of the former and 25 per cent of the latter had given birth at least once. These percentages indicated no real difference between the subgroups.

Of the women with malignant breast growths 23 were on "the pill" and 61 per cent of them had never given birth. Of the 98 who took no contraceptive only 28 per cent had had no full-term pregnancy. Among the over-50 women this comparison was similar.

It was a "highly significant" comparison, Black and Leis emphasized in referring to the studies of other scientists which showed that childless women are at higher risk of breast cancer than women who have been through one or more pregnancies.

THEY ALSO relied on another established fact — the estrogens, the hormones of femaleness which regulate conception and gestation among other functions, are somehow involved, although no one knows just how, in the origins of breast cancers. Contraceptive pills are estrogens in one form or another.

"In view of the widespread contraceptive use of estrogens" there is "real urgency" in establishing whether added estrogens increase the risk of breast cancer in childless women, they said in a report to the New York State Journal of Medicine.

Their own study could not provide "a direct measurement of such risk" and they urged the organizing of large-scale studies which could. They hold professional rank at the New York City Medical College.
